Bearden's Five-Hitter Gives Tribe Series Lead

Rookie Scores, 2-0, As 70,000 Witness Indians' 2d Win In Third Game

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Cleveland, Oct. 8.—In the second fastest game of World Series annals, the Cleveland Indians shut out the Boston Braves 2-0, today, with Rookie Pitcher Henry Eugene Bearden the man of the hour and 36 minutes.

The wavy-haired Bearden monopolized the third-game series scene with a rare and racy performance before 70,306 worshipful Cleveland fans, permitting only one Boston man to transgress as far as third base, and he walked nobody.

A towering lefthander from California specializing in hooks and knuckle balls, Bearden romped through the Braves with the same poise that landed him 20 victories in his freshman season in the majors. He pitched a five-hitter.

First Run Unearned

The Indians, too, made only five hits off Vernon Bickford, Bill Voiselle and Red Barrett but again they found chinks in the jittery Braves' infield and their first big run trickled in on a wild throw by Shortstop Alvin Dark in the third inning.

And so tonight the Indians are in front, two games to one, with what appears to be a strangehold on the championship after exhibiting pitching that has held the Braves to two paltry runs since the series started three days ago.

Manager Lou Boudreau of the Indians is in a position to gamble a bit at this point and there are indications that he will withhold Bob Feller from another pitching duel with Johnny Sain, his 1-0 conqueror in the opening game. Steve Gromek is expected to be Boudreau's choice.

For Manager Bill Southworth of the Braves, there is no alternative except to pitch Sain in an effort to square the series at 2-2 tomorrow, although with Sain involved it is a pleasant alternative for he stopped the Indians cold in the series opener.

Lineup Changes Fail

Today Southworth loaded his Boston lineup with eight right-handed hitters in a king-sized shuffle of his batting order, but it was of no avail against the imperturbable Bearden.

Bearden himself produced the first Cleveland hit of the ball game against Bickford, the Braves' rookie right-hander, and it launched the winning third inning. It was a well-tagged two-bagger over Right Fielder Tommy Holmes' head and caromed off the screen fence at the 365-foot mark.

Bickford then lapsed to the point

1 Dead, 33 Hurt As Reds' Strike Gains in France

Paris, Oct. 8 (AP).—Spreading violence broke out in France's Communist-called 5-day-old strike today and one person was killed and 33 injured.

The strike spread to ports and railroads, and the government ordered coke-oven operators back to work, under threat of fines and jail terms if they refused.

Most prolonged fighting was in Micheville, near Nancy, where 500 troops battled striking coal miners with clubs and tear gas for five hours.

The troops fought into the Micheville steel mill, which had been occupied by striking coal miners. But the strikers finally reoccupied the mill. Eight soldiers and two strikers were injured.

The fatal casualty occurred near Metz.

Warren Austin's Brother Found Dead in Chicago

Chauncey G. Austin, Washington attorney and brother of Warren R. Austin, United States delegate to the United Nations, was found dead yesterday in a Chicago hotel room.

Austin had registered at the hotel Thursday, the Associated Press reported. Death was believed due to natural causes.

Hotel officials forced the door to Austin's room when a maid reported she was unable to enter. Austin's body lay in the bed.

Austin, who lived at 5717 Chevy Chase pkwy. n.w. was counsel for the Association of American Railroads.

Protests Balk Truman Plan To Send Vinson to See Stalin

By The Associated Press

The Capital was alive with reports last night that President Truman has been planning a sensational move in American relations with Russia which he originally intended to announce to the Nation and the world in a radio broadcast last Tuesday night.

Reports on which the White House and the State Department both refused to comment said that Mr. Truman had decided to send Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson as a personal emissary to Generalissimo Stalin to try to break the deadlock over Berlin.

According to these accounts, the State Department intervened after the White House had begun arranging for radio time and it was finally decided that Secretary of State Marshall should return from Paris to confer with the President about the matter.

Last Tuesday, White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross contacted major radio networks and asked for free time for the President, now deeply involved in his campaign for reelection, to make a "non-political" radio speech.

Network officials, concerned over the possible political repercussions of Mr. Truman's appearance on the air in free time, asked Ross for an explanation of the nature of the President's statement.

Eventually they were informed, according to highly authoritative sources, that the President planned to announce he was sending Vinson to Moscow.

Several hours later, and before all the networks had finally worked out arrangements, Ross called back and said the project was off, and advised them to forget the whole affair.

One rumor was that Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett got wind of the project and objected to such a degree that it was finally suspended. Another was that Marshall himself vigorously protested.

Another aspect which was unclear was the degree of coordination—if any—which the Administration had planned in the event of such a move, both with Republican foreign policy leaders and with the other western powers, Britain and France.

Report Hits Alexandria Health Setup

Dr. Schafer Draws Strongest Criticism Of State Experts

By William H. Smith
Post Reporter

Alexandria Health Department administration and many phases of the city's public health program drew scathing criticism yesterday in a report by 15 experts from the Virginia State Health Department.

In the 73-page report on a survey of local health facilities started June 30, the committee directed its strongest criticism at Dr. W. Lewis Schafer, who resigned as city health officer last Monday. The report also noted, however, some glaring shortcomings in most of the 15 departmental functions it surveyed.

Reported program deficiencies were linked by the experts, it was said, to what was termed a "loose administration." The health officer, "apparently leaves the impression he is disinterested and neglecting his duties."

Findings Listed

In addition to its criticism of department administration, the report listed these major findings:

1. An "exceedingly limited" maternal and child health program, showing a tendency on the part of the Health Department to surrender these responsibilities in toto to other agencies.
2. Lack of a specific program for aiding crippled children.
3. "Lax" inspectiton of eating and drinking places, leading "for the most part to serious violations of the local ordinance, State law and good practice."
4. An "outdated" milk sanitation law, coupled with inadequate records of milk sanitation personnel.
5. Existence of outdoor privies which could be replaced by modern sewage.

Few of the departments surveyed escaped criticism in some form, and the report devoted little space to praiseworthy aspects of the health program. It did, however, single out the supervisor of nurses for commendation, describing her as "well qualified and keenly interested in giving Alexandria the best service possible."

VD Program Praised

The nurse supervisor is Miss Mary Carne, who was named by City Manager Nicholas A. Colasanto this week to act as head of the department pending appointment of a successor to Dr. Schafer.

The committee also found the city's venereal disease program to be "one of the finest in the State;" described the health department laboratory as well-arranged and adequate for the volume of work being done at present, and reported operation of the municipal swimming pool as "superior" with satis-

Ft. Meade Survey

Army Finds 2 of 3 Need Dental Work

A special survey of recruits at Fort George G. Meade has shown that two out of every three men entering the Army today require dental treatment—and that the Army Dental Corps cannot cope with the problem.

Lieut. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, commander of the Second Army, who ordered the survey, is attempting to meet the situation in two ways. He has:

1. Recommended to the Department of the Army that the dental requirements for acceptance of men under selective service be raised.
2. Opened negotiations with the Baltimore Dental Association to see if civilian dentists will agree to put in one day a week at Meade and other Army posts. Should the latter plan be successful there, dentists in other cities will be approached with the same proposition.

"If we can get enough of them to serve in this way, we can lick the problem," said Gerow. "Otherwise, I don't know any other way except to ask Congress to draft dentists."

The Second Army commander said that of 1161 recruits received by the Third Cavalry some weeks ago, 772 required dental treatment. It was estimated that it will take dentists a total of 3501 hours to complete the treatment—an average of nearly five hours per man.

This amount of work is far beyond the capacity of the Fort Meade dental department, it was said.

Brig. Gen. George W. Rice, Second Army surgeon, said that another survey has just been completed with 5000 other recruits, and that it shows about the same

Red Army Garb Hoax Backfires On Reporter

Alison Canyon, Calif., Oct. 8 (U.P.). — A reporter planted in a Russian uniform to observe joint Navy-Marine maneuvers as a test of military security was held for the FBI today by the Marine Corps. The Marines were not taking kindly to the hoax.

He was John D'Alfonso, reporter of the San Diego, Calif., Journal. D'Alfonso spoke in broken English and identified himself as a Russian army officer when seized by military police.

He was placed in the custody of Brig. Gen. Omar T. Pfieffer, Chief of Staff of Camp Pendleton Marine base.

"If he had carried correct papers, he not only would have been welcomed as a military officer of a friendly power, but we would have extended him courtesies," General Pfieffer said.

Department of Army Reaches 50% of Its Chest Quota

(Related Story on Page 10)

The Department of the Army yesterday reported that virtually 50 per cent of its $137,940 Community Chest quota has been raised.

Department volunteers turned in $68,779.97 at their first report meeting in the Pentagon Building. The Army drive was kicked off September 21; official opening date of the 1949 Red Feather campaign was October 7. One installation, Fort Myer's South Post, reported more than 75 per cent of its quota.

E. Cortlandt Parker, chairman of the Chest's special gift unit revealed, after a luncheon meeting in Hotel Washington, that solicitors have raised some 20 per cent of their goal with 2386 pledges.

The area Chest has set a $4,566,790 goal.

At another luncheon get-together, attended by about 200 members of Business Unit 1, Earl O. Baker, president of the Washington Automotive Association, revealed that employes of his firm Williams & Baker, Nash dealers, plan to donate a day's work next Saturday for the benefit of the Chest. He said labor charges, plus all proceeds from repair work—minus the cost of materials—will go into the campaign coffers. Notices have been sent to some 2000 Nash owners urging them to get their repair work done on that day so as to help "assure your Community Chest a substantial gift . . . . ." he said.

In a similar undertaking AFL workmen, using materials donated by local contractors, will renovate parts of the Barney Neighborhood House, 470 N st. sw., today.

Marshall Flying Here For Report

Secretary Stresses Threat to Peace; U. N. Council Head, Vishinsky Confer

Paris, Oct. 8 (AP).—Secretary of State George C. Marshall left tonight for Washington to talk with President Truman and report on progress of the United Nations sessions here.

Marshall left on the Independence, President Truman's private plane, shortly after 9 p. m. (3 p. m. EST). He is expected to arrive in Washington about 10 a. m Saurday

Earlier, Marshall spoke before a group of labor leaders of western Europe, and the American Embassy quoted him as saying "if there ever was, in time of peace, a threat to peace," it is the Berlin blockade.

Newsmen were not allowed at the meeting but the embassy made available excerpts of the Secretary's extemporaneous remarks. He was quoted as saying there had been a long series of provocative acts since last March in Berlin and that "almost any one of these acts—30 years ago—could have been the basis for a serious breach."

Marshall said the greatest hope for peace is that "we have three great nations solidly standing together." He said no one has come forward with an alternative of action to that of the United States, Britain and France in referring the Berlin question to the U. N. Security Council.

"What we are fighting for is not just peace," Marshall said, "but a type of peace in which an individual or a trade union is free to see as it pleases, to say what it pleases. This is about as far from a police state as you can get."

The Secretary said the "very life" of a trade union depends on the freedoms of speech, assembly and opportunity.

Most of the labor leaders present were members of the trade union conference formed earlier this year to promote the European Recovery Program.

Bombers Boast 8000-Mile Range Now, With 12,000 Expected in Year

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Carswell Air Force Base, Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 8.—The United States now has a tactical unit of 18 outsize B-36 bombers ready for war at the drop of a hat, it was disclosed here today.

The Seventh Bombardment Wing, commanded by Col. Alan D. Clark, has been quietly put together as the great 300,000-pound B-36's came off the production lines until it now has in operation a full group of three squadrons of six airplanes each. Transition training of pilots and crews from B-29's to the much bigger and heavier B-36 has occupied most of the wing's time and effort. This transition, Clark said, has been less difficult than anticipated.

"It is," he explained, "easier to handle than a D-2 or even lighter ships, and is more comfortable for crew members.

"Designed for a 10,000-mile range, the B-36 already has flown more than 8000 miles with a 10-ton load and officers working with it are highly optimistic that it will do more than its theoretical performance.

"It is my personal belief," Gen. George C. Kenney, commanding the strategic air command, said, "that before another year is out it will be doing 12,000 miles."

Kenney lit into reports and rumors that the B-36 had failed to meet expectations—and that it was a costly failure.

His audience, composed of some 75 reporters most of whom were aviation writers and had heard all the rumors and reports, was frankly skeptical. But Kenney was enthusiastically supported by Air Force pilots and by officials of Consolidated-Vultee, who make the B-36 here.

Much of the skepticism had been overcome when the reporters went out to the field this afternoon to fly in the big aircraft. Six B-36s had been made ready for this flight, which was to demonstrate what the B-36 could do. But two of them did not get off the ground because of mechanical troubles. Some of the skepticism returned.

"I am here," Kenny declared, "to lay that ghost of the B-36. It has been the subject of much contro-

Public Trial Report Guarded

Royall Draws Veil of Secrecy Over Ilse Koch Case Record

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Army Secretary Kenneth Royall has drawn a veil of secrecy over the public record of the notorious Ilse Koch case, it became known yesterday.

Extraordinary measures have been taken to keep the transcript of the trial and review from public view at this time, though prior to the clamor over the case it was available to the press upon request.

Royall turned over a copy of the voluminous record to the Senate Investigating Committee three days ago, but only with the understanding that it was for their exclusive eye. The group agreed that if it decided the record should be made public after an investigation, Royall's permission must be obtained first.

And to assure that this agreement was kept, that no reporter got a peep into the record, the Army sent a "custodian" along. John P. Banach, an employe of the War Crimes division, sits all day in the Ferguson committee offices, where investigators are at work on the case, locks it in a file cabinet each night and opens it in the morning. He has the only key.

He is there not to assist the committee but merely to stand guard.

Committee attaches could not remember any similar instance in which Government records were given them under such "custody." In the past, the Army has turned over confidential documents without such precautions.

Yet the entire trial of Ilse Koch and her fellow defendants from Buchenwald was public and the transcript is entirely "unclassified."

At the trial, Frau Koch was accused of cruelties inflicted on prisoners of the Buchenwald camp. There was testimony that, as wife of the commandant, she whipped prisoners, had others tortured, and possessed lampshades made from the skin of human victims. She was convicted anad sentenced to life imprisonment.

On recommendation of reviewing officers, Gen. Lucius Clay, American commander in Germany,

Truman Sights Peace; Miners Condemn Him; Dewey for Home Aid

Governor Pledges Slum Clearance But Says U. S. Help Must Be Practical

New York, Oct. 8 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey said today this Nation "will not be satisfied until the curse of slums and tenements is lifted from every American family."

The GOP presidential nominee pledged that if he is elected Federal aid will be made available for slum clearance projects on a "realistic, practical basis."

A few minutes later he joined in breaking ground for the new Alfred E. Smith Housing Project.

It is a New York City project financed with State aid to provide homes for 7000 persons in the area where Smith grew to manhood.

Asserting the country faces "a gigantic housing deficit," Dewey said the Federal Government must pitch in and help local communities in some instances "to get action."

He said American builders were putting up one million new homes this year, adding:

"That is good. But it is not nearly good enough."

1500 Attend in Rain

Dewey was greeted by a band which played "Hail to the Chief," a tune usually reserved to greet the President of the United States, when he appeared for the ceremonies. Police estimated some 1500 persons attended.

Clad in a raincoat and sheltered by an umbrella in the pelting rain, Dewey called for revision and modernization of building codes throughout the Nation as one step toward increasing home construction.

He told the gathering:

"The Federal Government must stand ready to lend a hand to the States to encourage programs of community improvement and development. When Federal aid is required to get action, then that aid must be provided on a realistic, practical basis."

Silent on T-E-W Bill

While he did not go into details, Dewey said the people "will not be satisfied until the curse of slums and tenements is lifted from every American family and every American child."

The New York Governor did not put himself on record in the Senate-House controversy over housing in the Eigthieth Congress.

That legislative row centered around Senate approval of Federal subsidies or low-rent housing, as well as slum clearance projects, as laid out in the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill. President Truman called repeatedly for pas-

ECA Asks Nations To Agree on Joint U.S. Shipping Plan

ECA Administrator Paul G Hoffman warned European-recovery nations last night that unless they agree on a joint plan to ship 50 per cent of American cargo in United States ships, he will insist that each meet the requirement alone.

He pointed out in letters to each of the 16 countries that they had promised to submit such a plan to ECA by October 1. None, he said, has been received.

Under the recovery act, a minimum of 50 per cent of all recovery cagro shipped to participating nations must be carried in American ships. Recovery cargoes from other nations can be carried under any flag.

ECA recently reported that from April through August, 49 per cent of all ECA cargoes shipped from the U. S. moved on American ships.

Ask Nov. 2 Holiday

Cincinnati, Oct. 8 (AP).—John L. Lewis won support from the United Mine Workers convention today in his drive to defeat President Truman, whom he described as "an enemy of your union."

The 3000 delegates adopted by voice vote a resolution attacking Mr. Truman and Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath.

The statement said both favored injunctions against the UMW and Lewis in recent strikes.

The resolution called for a mine holiday on election day, November 2, to carry out the political action policy which the miners approved at today's session.

In contrast to the sharp criticism of Mr. Truman, the resolution said:

"As to the other major party candidate for President of the United States, we can only say that, to our knowledge, he has never uttered any statements that reflect upon the integrity or the objectives of the United Mine Workers of America, or its officers or members."

Store Union Fined $20,000 For Contempt

Federal Judge Says He'll Jail 6 Officers In Picketing Dispute

New York, Oct. 8 (U.P.).—Federal Judge Samuel Kaufman levied a $20,000 fine against a department store union today for contempt of court in connection with the Taft-Hartley law and announced he intended to jail six union officers Saturday.

This action was taken against Local 1250 of the Independent Department Store Employes Union which had been picketing the Manhattan and Brooklyn branches of Oppenheim-Collins in violation of an injunction issued by Judge Kaufman on September 14.

The judge said he would issue warrants Saturday, on grounds of contempt, for the arrest of Nicholas Carnes, local president; Nathan M. Freeman, financial secretary; Florence Nyitray, local administrator; Eugene Bell, organizer and strike director; Beverly Steinberg, picket captain, and Belle White, shop steward of the New York branch of Oppenheim-Collins.

After passing the sentence, Kaufman said he would delay its imposition until tomorrow in order to give the union a chance to purge itself of contempt by reporting that it had ceased picketing. Union Attorney Leonard Boudin replied that it was doubtful whether the union would do so.

The dispute rose out of the refusal of officers of the union to sign non-Communist affidavits as required by the Taft-Hartley Act in order to use the services of the National Labor Relations Board.

Oppenheim-Collins then called for an election to determine which union should represent its employes in collective bargaining. The election was held under NLRB auspices and Local 1250 was left off the ballot because

2 Billion Over Record July

215 Billion Personal Income In August Tops All U. S. Marks

Personal income of Americans smashed all records in August. It was up to an unprecedented annual rate of 215 billion dollars, the Commerce Department announced yesterday.

On the basis of the Census Bureau's latest estimate of 146 million population, this was at the rate of $1479 a year for every man, woman and child in the United States.

Pay raises for factory workers and Government employes, plus an increase in the number of persons working in farming and trade were the chief causes of a two-billion-dollar jump over July's previous record wage.

Wage and salary payments, themselves at an all-time high, accounted for $136,900,000,000 of the annual rate total.

Also counted in personal incomes are receipts of landlords, and owners of farms and unincorporated businesses, dividend and interest receipts of stock and bond owners, bonuses to veterans, social security payments, etc.

Farm owners' income went counter to the general tide. It dropped because marketings fell off. Nevertheless, the department said farmers' net income for the first eight months of this year was at an annual rate of $18,400,000,000, or 18 per cent higher than in the similar period of last year.

Meanwhile, the Census Bureau reported that total employment dropped in September for the second consecutive month, sliding off by 933,000 to a total of 60,312,000.

The bureau's report showed that was nothing to worry about, for:

President Hits Taber In His Home Town; All 'Misstatements,' House Chief Says

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 8.—President Truman tonight said that "war or peace" is the No. 1 question in American hearts and "I believe that our prayers will be answered and that we will have peace."

To a Buffalo audience at the rain-splattered end of his three-day campaign swing, Mr. Truman explained why he cut his Eastern trip short to return to Washington Saturday.

"I shall discuss with Secretary Marshall means for working out constructive and peaceful solutions of our problems abroad, within the framework of our basic American principles."

Leopard in Sheep's Clothing

Mr. Truman's train returns to Washington at 9:45 a. m. Saturday The President may proceed directly to the airport to meet Marshall upon the latter's return from Paris if the schedule permits. One informant said there are no "crisis" implications, however.

Mr. Truman termed the No. 2 question "hard times or prosperity" and proceeded to charge that Governor Dewey and his Republican Party would lead the country right into another depression.

"The leopard has not changed his spots," he said. "He merely hired some public relations experts. And they have taught him to wear sheep's clothing, and to purr sweet nothings about unity in a soothing voice.

"But it's the same old leopard."

In Buffalo, as in Jersey City last night great rocket flares and fireworks marked the President's arrival here.

A scheduled outdoor rally in Buffalo's ball park was called off because of the rain. The meeting was held instead in the small Eagle's Auditorium and police had to push back the crowds when the hall was jampacked.

Fails to Name Dewey in Home

It was the noisest audience Truman has encountered on this trip. It booed the mention of Herbert Hoover's name and yelled "let 'em have it," and "you tell 'em" when Truman lit into the GOP nominees.

Truman charged the Republican nominees are "tarred with the same brush" Congress is—"the brush that big business uses to brush off the needs and claims of the people."

Spurred by State leadership claims of a Truman "pick-up," the President drove deep into Governor Dewey's New York strongholds and practically dared him to come out and fight.

But he reserved his sharpest

Reds to Increase Broadcasts to U. S. Sunday

New York, Oct. 8 (NYHT).—The Soviet Union, apparently stinging from the effects of the Voice of America, will step up its English-language broadcasts to this country by 55 minutes daily, starting Sunday, it was disclosed today by United States Government monitoring services.

Eight powerful Soviet transmitters are involved in the program change, which has been announced in Russian propaganda broadcasts during the past two days. Apparently a high percentage will consist of attempts to convince the American people that the Voice of America is a bad investment.

It was learned at the same time that the Voice, supported by the United States Government to broadcast America's story, is changing the format of its Russian language programs to include a higher percentage of news items and to cut down on music, which does not carry too well over short-wave to Russia.

The new Soviet radio barrage at this country will total 2 hours and 55 minutes daily, compared to the 2 hours of American broadcasts to Russia.

Soviets Again Post Maneuver Notices

Berlin, Oct. 8 (AP).—For the second day the Russians posted notices of extensive air maneuvers in the British-American airlanes to Berlin today. No airlift pilot or air base official was able to confirm that the exercises were carried out.

The Russians said Western pilots should look out for gunnery and parachute jumping practice in the air corridors. The promised maneuvers were almost as extensive as those posted yesterday when the Russians said they also were going to send bomber formations over Berlin. Then one British flier witnessed only one such bomber flight, when live bombs were dropped 12 miles from the city.

How much of the announced Soviet air activity actually takes place is not easily determined since British and American fliers steer clear of the danger areas when possible.

Western allied authorities have given their opinion that much of the posting is for the purpose of harassing the airlift, though some of it may be connected with large-scale war maneuvers in the Soviet zone.

Meanwhile all Germans in the three western sectors of Berlin were given an increase in food rations tonight despite the Russian blockade which forces all food to be imported by air.

Maj. Gen. E. O. Herbert, British commandant, announced a blanket increase of 200 calories a day for all types of ration-card holders. The increase will go into effect November 1.

Airlift planes using Gatow Airport, in the British sector, were compelled to shift their unloadings to Templehof today when a British transport operated by World Air Freight, Ltd., crashed on the edge of the main Gatow runway. None of the crew was injured.

On the political front the Berlin City Council, which is dominated by Social Democrats, voted to hold municipal elections December 5. The elections had been scheduled for November 14.

search for a solution to the Berlin crisis.

If he made any headway, he did not say so this afternoon, and members of the American delegation insisted again that any compromise would have to begin with an agreement by the Russians to lift their blockade of Berlin.

In Western quarters the issue remained as simple as this. Either the blockade is raised or the stalemate continues. Efforts to arrive at an understanding along any other line are doomed to failure.

This is emphasized by the promptness with which vague rumors of a "truce" were knocked down late in the day. In American opinion there is nothing to have a truce about, for the Western powers have imposed no restrictions to match the restrictions of the land blockade of Berlin. The problem is regarded as a unilateral threat to the peace resulting from unilateral Russian action, and it can be solved only when the action is removed.

On the Soviet side there is as yet no indication that Moscow is unsatisfied with the present situation and, therefore, no intimation of any intention to reverse current policy. Vishinsky still contends this is not a matter for the United Nations and he still refuses to discuss the case before the United Nations. He asks for four-power discussion in the Council of Foreign Ministers and this the Western states will not accept until they can negotiate free from the force and threat of force employed in Berlin.

GEN. SIR WILLIAM SLIM
Up from the ranks

London, Oct. 8 (AP).—Gen. Sir William Slim, Britain's wartime commander in Burma, tonight was appointed chief of the Imperial General Staff.

He succeeded Field Marshal Lord Montgomery, who has been named military chairman of the defense council of the five-nation Western European Alliance.

Prime Minister Attlee recalled Slim from private life for Britain's top army job. He had retired early this year.

Short, broad-shouldered and square-jawed, the new 57-year-old commander has little of the jauntiness and glamour of Montgomery. He once told a newsman: "You can't make a Monty out of me."

Slim was little known until he led the British fourteenth army in the Burma comeback campaign in 1944 and 1945. That gruelling campaign won him the reputation of a "soldiers' soldier." He was immensely popular with his troops because he liked to get away from his desk and visit the front lines in the jungle. Behind his back, the soldiers called him "Bill."

Slim rose from lance corporal in the territorial army at the start of the First World War to Britain's highest military post. He says he became a soldier by accident and a wound in the first war almost ended his military career.

His formal schooling was limited to grammar school. He worked for a time as a clerk and foreman in a machine shop before volunteering for the territorial army (National Guard) after war broke out in 1914. He soon was commissioned an officer.

Seriously wounded in the ill-fated Gallipoli campaign, Slim was discharged as "permanently unfit" but by 1916 he had wormed his way back into the army.

Attlee Urges Bribery Probe

London, Oct. 8 (AP).—Prime Minister Attlee tonight called for a full-dress investigation into allegations that soccer football gambling money has been used to influence the Board of Trade.

A statement from his residence said a motion for a full judicial inquiry would be laid before Parliament October 26. The statement said allegations have been made "that money obtained from a member of a firm of football-pool promoters had been used to influence the course of action of the Board of Trade."

London newspapers for the last few weeks have hinted at a black market or important license scandal in high places.

The Board of Trade has general responsibility for British industry and commerce. It licenses industrial exports and imports and overseas supply, distribution. It rations clothes and furniture and controls prices on consumer goods.

The Prime Minister's statement said Lord Jowitt, the Lord Chancellor and Britain's highest legal officer, was looking into the case at the request of Harold Wilson, Board of Trade president.

Also to be investigated, the statement said, was the "allegation that in return for a substantial payment of cash, facilities for the import of equipment for funfairs (carnivals) could be obtained."

BERLIN CHILDREN WAIT FOR SWEETS—The airplanes drop only candy in this section of Berlin. It's near a runway of Tempelhof Airport, where the C-54 Skymasters of the airlift come in to land. German children flock to the area because this is the spot where Lieut. Gale S. Halvorsen, a pilot from Garland, Utah, drops candy on handkerchief parachutes on each of his trips into Tempelhof. The Berlin youngsters come from miles around to wait for Halvorsen and they watch every arriving plane hopefully

Peru Moves To Bar New 'Terrorism'

Lima, Peru, Oct. 8 (U.P.).—Armored vehicles, jeeps, cavalry and foot troops combed the metropolitan area today as the government intensified precautionary measures against "expected acts of terrorism" by the outlawed left-wing Apra party.

Police reported that 24 high ranking Apristas had been taken into custody. Their party was outlawed on the ground of "preparing and directing" the abortive sailors' uprising in the port of Callao Sunday.

Among those arrested were Andres Townsend, editor of the Apra newspaper La Tribuna, and Edmundo and Agustin Haya de la Torre, brothers of the Apra supreme leader, Victor Raul Haya de la Torre. The latter was still at large, as was Alberto Sanchez, rector of San Marcos University, one of the three top Apra men.

Commanders and top-ranking officers of all branches of the armed forces visited the presidential palace to pledge their loyalty to President Jose Luis Bustamante.

Police said 264 persons were arrested last night for violating the curfew and 74 vehicles were seized.

A government announcement said Lieut. Comdr. Jose Mosto, one of the leaders of the Callao revolt, had admitted belonging to the Apra and that another rebel leader, First Lieut. Victor Romero Davila, had expressed sympathy for the Apra cause.

Egyptian Planes Are Reported Bombing Bible Town of Gath

Tel Aviv, Israel, Oct. 8 (AP).—Scattered combat and air attacks were reported today in Palestine despite the United Nations truce.

Israeli headquarters said Egyptian planes bombed and machine-gunned the Biblical Jewish settlement of Goth, northeast of Gaza, at noon. U.N. observers were reported there at the time. The Army said no U.N. personnel was injured, but that Jewish settlers suffered casualties.

The Army spokesman said an unidentified enemy plane bombed Malkha, 4 four miles south of Jerusalem, a little later. No casualty was reported there, but there was damage.

An Israeli official source in Jerusalem said the Jewish suburbs of Ramat Rahel, Arnona and Mekor Haim at the south edge of the holy city were attacked heavily in the day.

The Israeli government said it had signed contracts with the Shell and Socony Vacuum Oil Co.s for supplies of refined oil sufficient for the state's needs while the truce continues. The agreement would become void if the war is resumed.

Paris, Oct. 8 (U.P.).—The chief of staff of the United Nations mission in Palestine has accused both Israeli and Eyptian army commanders in the Gaza area of a "serious breach of the truce" and has called on them to order a cease fire immediately, it was announced today.

Latin-American Bloc Seeks U. N. Bid to Spain

Paris, Oct. 8 (NYHT).—Fifteen of the 20 Latin American republics have organized a bloc in the General Assembly to support the admission of Franco Spain as a member of the United Nations, a Latin American delegate disclosed today.

The pro-Franco move reopened the entire Spanish question behind the scenes of the General Assembly meeting. It set off a series of moves and counter moves by friends and enemies of the Franco regime.

First, Secretary of State George C. Marshall discussed the Spanish question in a private talk with British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman.

This led to speculation, later denied by a State Department spokesman, that Marshall had proposed rescinding the General Assembly resolution of 1946 recommending withdrawal from Madrid of chiefs of foreign missions.

Actually, it was learned today, Marshall made no such proposal. He adhered to the previous American position. His British and French colleagues likewise retained their previous positions.

Fifteen republics backed the move to bring Spain into the U. N. Five declared their opposition—Mexico, Guatemala, Costa Rica, the Dominican Republic and Venezuela.

Johnston Urges Full Relations With Spain

Madrid, Oct. 8 (AP).—Eric A. Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Producers Association of America, urged full American diplomatic relations with Spain today after a talk of 2½ hours with Generalissimo Franco.

Johnston was the third prominent American in little over a week who has talked with Franco and urged closer diplomatic relations. The others were Senator Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.), chairman of the Senate Armed Forces Committee, and James A. Farley, former Democratic national chairman.

Johnston said he told Franco it was "perfect nonsense" for the United States not to give Spain full diplomatic recognition. The American Ambassador was recalled in 1946, when the United States went along with a U. N. Assembly resolution to withdraw top-level diplomatic representation in Madrid.

(In Washington, Associated Press Correspondent John M. Hightower reported President Truman and Secretary of State George C. Marshall might review United States policy toward Franco Spain in their conference on the international situation scheduled for Saturday morning.)

Johnson also told newspapermen he had been given assurances by Foreign Minister Alberto Martin Artajo that the American film, "Gentlemen's Agreement," would be shown in Spain after a few possible deletions.

(A board of censors source in Madrid said last week the film was banned because it condoned divorce, showed no differences between Jews and Christians and contained theological errors.)

The monarchist newspaper ABC, in common with the rest of the Spanish press, today denounced what it called the "ill-considered action" of the British Foreign Office in "diffusing the totally false news of the accord between Spanish Monarchists and Socialists."

(The British Foreign Office yesterday said it had been informed that eyiled Spanish Republicans and Monarchists had reached an anti-Franco accord.

(Spanish Monarchists in Paris today supported Spanish Republicans in saying the accord exists.)

CALVERT MANOR

CALVERT MANOR has a surprisingly beautiful location 10½ miles from the D. C. Line, on the wide water of Piscataway Bay and can now be reached over the new modern Federal Highway to Indian Head, Maryland. Calvert Manor is a year 'round home community which, upon completion of the South Capitol Street bridge, will be served by the best Maryland approach into Washington.

Situated two miles in from the Potomac River channel and close in to the constant flow of fresh water from Piscataway Creek, the water here is rightfully regarded as being free from sewage pollution. Manor Park Beach which is in view of Mt. Vernon is safe for children in every respect and the boat basin has 5 feet water depth at mean low tide.

A wide choice of locations and prices is provided, beginning at $650 for 125x 270-ft., wooded sites having up to 100 feet elevations. Water front and water view tracts, some of which have over 200 foot frontages, from $750 to $2,500. All ground owners have shore rights on Manor Park and protective restrictions are in force to assure stable values and conditions.

Politician Found Slain in Chicago

WILLIAM J. GRANATA
Slain Republican

Chicago, Oct. 8 (AP).—A phantom killer who struck swiftly and apparently unseen hacked a Republican State politician to death early today on busy Randolph st.

The victim was William John Granata, 42, who was found in a splash of blood at the entrance of his skyscraper apartment building at 188 W. Randolph st.

Granata was a member of the Illinois Industrial Commission and a candidate for Circuit Court clerk. His brother, Peter C. Granata, is a State representative.

The attack, to which police have found no witnesses, was made a few doors from the State of Illinois Chicago office building and less than a block from the combined City Hall and County Building. Chicago's main theater district is two blocks east.

Dr. Jerry Kearns, coroner's physician, said the assault apparently was made with a heavy weapon of the bayonet type. Two deep slashes apparently inflicted from behind, split his skull.

Alfred J. Flynn, executive assistant to the State Industrial Commission, said a possible suspect was "a man with a heavy foreign accent" who had called at the commission office several times and asked for Granata. He said the man carried a package "that very well could have concealed a weapon." The commission handles workmen's compensation claims.

After conferring with Chief of Detectives Walter Storms, Police Commissioner John Prendergast said:

"We are not overlooking any possibilities of this murder—and these possibilities include gang murder, robbery or personal vengeance."

Granata had spent the evening and part of the night touring political rallies.

The Gallup Poll

Truman Due To Get Major Labor Vote

By George Gallup
Directors, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 8.—Despite John L. Lewis' slashing attack on President Truman last week, a majority of the rank and file members of labor unions today favor the President's reelection.

While Mr. Truman's support is not as strong among these important groups of voters as was Roosevelt's, nevertheless his lead over Governor Dewey among labor union members is large. This is true despite defection of some union members to Henry A. Wallace and to the Republican ticket.

Labor union voters are concentrating largely in the big cities where recent polls have shown Democratic strength declining. For this reason union political strategists supporting Truman are attempting to stimulate a large turnout of union members on election day.

A substantial proportion of the Wallace following among union members is made up of voters who supported the Democrats in 1944. If Wallace were not in the picture today, President Truman's popular vote advantage would give him an almost two to one advantage as far as union members are concerned.

Institute interviewers asked union members this question:

"If the presidential election were being held today, how would you vote—for Truman, Dewey, Wallace or for Thurmond?"

THE LABOR UNION VOTE

	Truman	Dewey	Wallace	Thurmond
Total Unions	55%	38%	7%	*
C.I.O. members	58	32	10	*
A.F. of L. members	54	40	6	*

Less than 1 per cent. Only voters in those Southern States where Gov. J. Strom Thurmond is on the ballot were asked if they would vote for him.

Democratic strength in presidential elections since 1936 has been greater among union members than among manual workers not members of unions. A slightly larger proportion of C. I. O. members than of A. F. of L. members has favored the Democratic candidate.

The following table shows the trend of union voting in the last three elections and, by comparing that trend with today's survey, illustrates the effect of the Wallace vote and the increase in the Dewey vote:

LABOR UNION VOTE
(Democratic Percentage Major Party Vote)

	1936	1940	1944	TODAY
All Unions	80%	72%	72%	55%
C. I. O.	85	79	78	58
A. F. of L	80	71	69	54

Included among "all unions" are members of a number of unions not affiliated with either the A. F. of L. or the C. I. O.

Despite past differences with the Truman Administration, a large part of the Nation's top labor leadership has pledged its support to the President's campaign. The CIO executive committee came out for Mr. Truman early in September, followed by Labor's Committee for the Election of Truman and Barkley (consisting of a large part of top AFL leadership), the International Association of Machinists and A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. However, John L. Lewis last week strongly attacked the President without specifically indorsing Governor Dewey.

The President and the Democratic Party platform appeal to the labor union vote by asking for outright repeal of the Taft-Hartley Labor Relations Act. Mr. Truman made the first major address of his campaign on Labor Day before a large labor union audience in Detroit and has referred to his opposition to the Taft-Hartley Act many times since.

Harold E. Stassen answered the President's Labor Day address, but thus far Governor Dewey has not dealt with major labor issues in any of his campaign speeches.

Warren Makes Farm Pledges In Uncertain Minnesota

Duluth, Minn., Oct. 8 (AP).—Gov. Earl Warren brought his party's battle for politically uncertain Minnesota into this Democratic-farm labor stronghold tonight with promises of strong GOP support for conservation, rural electrification and farm prices.

On all three issues, the Republican vice presidential candidate was speaking directly to the large and independent rural vote which can swing the State into the GOP presidential column for the first time since 1932.

Are Matters of Concern

These three issues, Minnesota Republican leaders informed Warren, are matters of public concern.

Traveling into the iron range country of northern Minnesota with Warren today were Gov. Luther Youngdahl and United States Senator Joseph H. Ball of Minnesota.

Warren gave warm support to Ball in his hard-pressed campaign with 37-year-old Hubert Humphrey, youthful Mayor of Minneapolis who has been carrying an intense fight on Ball into corners of Minnesota.

"Tom Dewey needs a Republican Congress, a Republican team, and he needs your Senator Joe Ball to help him," Warren told a large audience in downtown St. Paul and during trainside talks en route to Duluth today.

In his prepared speech in Duluth's Central High School auditorium tonight, Warren read the record of Congress and the Republican platform.

42% of All REA Loans

"The present Republican Congress has appropriated 800 million dollars within two years for rural electrification—the equivalent of 42 per cent of all REA loans authorized during the history of electricity on the farm," he said.

"And the Republican Party is pledged to continue that program."

The GOP vice presidential candidate was equally strong in his indorsement of soil conservation programs.

The conservation aand farm platform planks on this subject are "clear anad unmistakable," he asserted.

"We want to see to it that the farmer who works the soil is encouraged to produce for our needs both at home and abroad, and that he is protected from cycles of boom anad bust."

Soil erosion, he declared, must be prevented by "public works and new farming methods with the cooperation of the Government."

Miners Call Truman Foe

Republican Candidate Thomas E. Dewey, and it did not name him.

One top officer of the union said it was an indirect indorsement of Dewey.

Lewis, in a speech to the delegates, said:

"When you see an enemy in public office you better withhold your support from him."

"Forget your fealty to a political party and remember your fealty to your home, your family, your country and your union," he said.

Even former coal miners sometimes forget their friends when elected to public office, he said. Representative Gerald Landis (R., Ind.), a member of the House Labor Committee, and one time coal digger, was one of them, Lewis said. Landis voted for the Taft-Hartley Act.

"So the hell with Gerald Landis," Lewis shouted. "I'm against Landis, like I'm against Taft, like I'm against Truman, like I'm against any enemy of this union."

At his home in Linton, Ind., Representative Landis said Lewis' attack on him was an abrupt change from indorsements formerly gven him. Landis added: "I and my secretary both signed non-Communist affidavits. I wonder why Lewis didn't."

"They said I'm a dictator and rule the union with an iron hand," he said. They don't know, and I don't bother to explain anymore.

"If I was just dumb enough not to know what's in your heart, you wouldn't have much to do with me.

"I rather don't enjoy prosecution and persecution by my Government. But I take it—for you. And I laugh about it.

"Because I don't laugh publicly but laugh privately they call me a bitter man, a disappointed man. I'm not disappointed about anything. I'm not running for any public office.

"The only office I'm a candidate for is president of this union."

When he said that, the delegates gave him a standing ovation.

He is unopposed for reelection.

Lewis also said the UMW would continue to oppose the appointment of James Boyd as director of the Bureau of Mines. He said he had nothing against Boyd personally, but that Boyd had no experience in the mines.

Boyd was appointed by Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug, who is disliked by Lewis for his part in the injunction fight of 1946. During Government operation of the mines at that time, Krug was in charge.

The Senate has not confirmed the Boyd appointment, and Lewis said he had not been paid since last December, "living, Boyd knows how."

"Yet he continues to work in that job, scabbing on somebody else," Lewis said.

Wallace Sees 'Misleaders' Hurting Labor

Seattle, Oct. 8 (AP).—Henry Wallace said tonight "misleaders of labor" in some unions are "more dangerous to organized labor than the Taft-Hartley Act itself."

The presidential candidate, in a speech in a State armory here, also said communism is "far less of a danger" to America than "the irresponsible use of the word 'communism' to create a phychological iron curtain in the American mind."

One of the greatest issues of the political campaign, said Wallace, is whether we are going to have "a police-state America, or a free America."

He chose Seattle—a strong union city—to make what was probably his sharpest attack on what he often calls "misleaders of labor."

He didn't name these men nor their unions, but said "they betray working people, sell out their interests, change their unions into pliable, subservient organizations."

Wallace said:

"We have seen proud democratic unions confused and broken more effectively from within than by pressures from without.

"We have seen their leaders blacklisted, and replaced by misleaders.

"We have seen unions that stood up for economic and political rights of Americans forced to their knees."

The candidate flew here from Portland, Oreg., in his chartered plane and spent another day crammed with activities.

At a news conference he said a speech made last night by Assistant Secretary of State Charles E. Saltzman at Durham, N. H., was aimed "either to stir up a sense of crisis for new military appropriations or to prepare the public mind for war."

Referring specifically to Saltzman's statement that perhaps it "will not be possible" to avoid war with Russia, Wallace said:

"The spirit of Saltzman leads toward war. The spirit of my letter to Stalin, and Stalin's favorable reply, leads toward peace."

Then the candidate went to the University of Washington campus and informally addressed an open-air throng of students—police estimated about 2000. Most of them listened attentively. There was mild applause and some heckling.

Tomorrow Wallace drives to Tacoma and Aberdeen, then flies to Spokane.

Barkley Pledges Adequate Housing

Boise, Idaho, Oct. 8 (AP).—Senator Alben W. Barkley called today for election of a Democratic National Administration to assure adequate housing for veterans, rural residents and low-income workers.

In a speech here, the westernmost city of his airborne campaign tour, the Democratic vice presidential nominee accused Republicans of having blocked housing programs, which he said were intended to aid the masses.

"The need for housing for farmers and farm tenants," he said, "is urgent."

Barkley recalled that legislation President Truman requested of the Eightieth Congress provided for rural housing as well as city housing. But the GOP leadership, he said, followed the desires of "the real estate lobby" and refused to act.

"If it had not been for Democratic insistence in the Senate, with the aid of a few broad-minded Republicans, they would have crippled soil conservation, rural electrification and reclamation programs," he said.

He made a strong plea for the election of Bert H. Miller to the United States Senate. Miller, a Supreme Court justice, is opposing Republican Henry C. Dworshak.

Barkley repeated his belief the Taft-Hartley labor law should be repealed and said election of a Democratic Congress would assure removal of the law from the statute books.

He laid at the doorstep of the Republicans much of the blame for the high cost of living. Because of GOP tax policies, he said, estimated business profits this year are 21 billion dollars after payment of all taxes. That, he said, is about twice the peak wartime profits and about three billion dollars more than 1947 profits.

"You can't say that hasn't had something to do with high prices," he commented.

He is scheduled to leave here tomorrow morning for an afternoon speech at Yakima, Wash., and a night speech at Seattle.

Won't Vote for Truman, Alabama Elector Says

Selma, Ala., Oct. 8 (AP).—An Alabama Democratic presidential elector said today he was "prepared to spend the rest of my life in jail" before he would vote for President Truman.

Walter C. Givhan sent a wire to Gessner T. McCorvey of Mobile, chairman of the State Democratic Committee, saying:

"I note from the papers Governor Folsom expects to bring legal action forcing Alabama electors to vote for Harry S. Truman.

"Please say to the people of Alabama that I, for one, will spend the rest of my life in jail before casting a vote for Harry S. Truman or any other candidate who supports his theories of government."

Big Vote Urged to Show Reds 'We Mean Business'

Baltimore, Oct. 8 (AP).—Maryland's Democratic national committeewoman called on Republicans and Democrats alike to "pile up the greatest number of votes this country has ever seen to show Russia we mean business."

Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, addressing the party's "kickoff rally" at the Emerson Hotel, admitted a certain lack of interest within the party during the early part of the campaign, but declared "tonight we know there is no apathy among the workers."

More than 13,000 persons filled the hotel ballroom for the rally.

Governor Lane presided at the gathering.

Md. Ballot Fight Lost by Dixiecrats

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 8 (AP).—States' Rights Democrats today lost their court fight for a place on the Maryland ballot.

The Court of Appeals turned down their plea for a writ ordering election officials to list Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina as a candidate for President and Gov. Fielding L. Wright of Mississippi for Vice President.

A write-in campaign appeared likely. Attorney Thomas F. Cadwalader of Baltimore said "probably" the party will issue gummed labels listing eight electors pledged to Thurmond and Wright.

Maryland's highest court upheld a Baltimore Superior Court ruling that parties seeking a place on the ballot by petition must file the petition in April.

Cadwalader said Governor Lane would be asked to call a special session of the State Legislature to amend this election law. There was little expectation that Lane would comply.

Attorney General Hall Hammond said he would instruct county election supervisors to provide space for the names of eight electors on the November 2 ballots, beside listing the names of Democratic, Republican, Socialist and Progressive Party candidates.

Cadwalader argued before the court: "The voters of Maryland will have to stifle their indignation at parties that declare for things they don't believe in" and vote for "least worst" tickets.

District Attorney General contended: A 1927 State law "clearly" provides that nominating petitions of minority parties must be filed at least 15 days before the May primaries.

The States' Rights Party, organized months later, filed its petition with more than 2000 signatures on September 29.

Not So Friendly

Price Talks Turn Into Party Debate

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

What was billed as a friendly discussion of Government price supports for farm products developed into a political debate at the National Press Club yesterday.

First, Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan charged two prominent Republicans, Harold E. Stassen, "on Governor Dewey's doorsill" and Representative August H. Andresen (R., Minn.) with attacking the price support and grain export programs.

Second, Senator George D. Aiken (R., Vt.), one of the authors of the new price support law, declared that it was put through by Republicans — that Democrats opposed it.

A third speaker, Allan B. Kline, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, stayed away from politics. He told, from a farmer's viewpoint, why supports are necessary to avoid depression.

Brannan, the first speaker, took Aiken by surprise when he injected politics into his talk. Aiken had already released his text in which he had avoided politics. He added some angry responses to Brannan's charges.

Brannan declared that in recent months "I have seen a concerted and frightening effort to embarrass the American farmer and his programs . . .

"I know there is a very good political reason why some people want to blame existing farm program for the high cost of food. These are the people who are interested in relieving the Republican Party of the blame that has come upon it, because of its leadership in Congress, for the high cost of living.

"Mr. Stassen accepted the job of front-man in the effort to shift the blame, and by doing so lent encouragement and impetus to the efforts of other enemies of the price support program.

"More recently Mr. Andresen has tried to bolster that attack with an effort to shift responsibility for high food prices off Republican shoulders and onto the export program.

He criticized also "those who think their business interests require cheap products and cheap labor anad those who profit in a falling market just as well as in a rising market."

Brannan then declared that price supports have little effect on living costs.

"Of course we have nothing to do with the price of coffee, which has gone up more than 100 per cent since June, 1946, or the price of fish, which cost three times as much as in June, 1946. Those are examples.

"You have seen wheat drop by about one-third without making a dent in the price of bread. But when it got down to the support level, the support came under attack for holding up the cost of living."

He then called upon the Republican presidential candidate, Thomas E. Dewey, for "some really forthright statements" about price supports.

In his response, Aiken declared that Dewey had assured him personally that he indorsed the crop support measure passed by the last Congress.

Democratic members of the House Agriculture Committee walked out of the conference committee in the last Congress, refusing to sign the report indorsing the measure, he charged.

"There were about 70 Democrats in the House that fought it to the bitter end," he declared.

When asked when he thought price supports might be discontinued entirely, Aiken replied: "About the time we discard the minimum wage law."

Kline declared he had hoped that farm policies were above party levels, and added: "I am happy that they—both parties—are so interested in them." In support of the price support program he said:

"Corn has been up to $2.75 a bushel, and has since sold for less than half that. The price of tractors that farmers must buy hasn't done that—the price of farm labor doesn't do that."

Hoover Commission Adjourns Until Nov. 8

The Hoover Commission, studying reorganization of the Government, wound up its first fall meeting yesterday and adjourned to November 8.

The commission, since mid-September, has studied reports of several of its task forces looking into various Government operations.

Among reports gone over so far are studies of Government procurement agencies, Federal-State relations and Government administration producers.

FBI Explores 'Kidnaping' of Wallace Men

By the United Press

The FBI is making a preliminary investigation of charges that two groups of Progressive Party workers were kidnaped and threatened in Georgia last month, it was revealed yesterday.

The Justice Department's civil rights section asked the FBI to look into the charges, made by associates of Progressive Party presidential candidate Henry A. Wallace.

The complaint said seven Wallace supporters were forced from their Columbus, Ga., hotel room at gunpoint on the night of September 24. They were allegedly driven 30 miles out of town and threatened with violence if they returned.

Five others claimed they were taken from their headquarters in Augusta, Ga., two nights later by a gang of 300 men. They said they were driven 10 miles out of the city and warned to "stay out of Augusta or we'll get you."

The FBI has been asked to interview the alleged kidnap victims to get their story. If the Justice Department decides the incidents are a violation of Federal civil rights laws, a more thorough inquiry will be ordered.

Truman Expects Peace, Fears Slump, Hits Taber in Home

challenge for House Appropriations Chairman John Taber, the GOP's ax-man in Congress.

At the depot in Taber's home town of Auburn, he shouted:

"Your Congressman from this district has used a butcher knife, a saber and a meat ax on the appropriations that have been made in the public interest."

From Dewey-deserted Albany to lake port Buffalo, he campaigned all day through a driving rain, inveighing New York up-Staters in 14 different cities to register and vote.

Soggy crowds, thinned by the rain from the big ones that greeted him yesterday in Pennsylvania and New Jersey, failed to dampen the Truman brand of optimism that still somewhat puzzles the voters.

In Albany, his absent gubernatorial host granted State civil services employes leave to see him and wished him a pleasant visit. Truman said that practice was customary when a President came to town, but he "appreciated" it.

He even granted that the Governor, whom he still failed to name, has "been forced to take a few steps along progressive lines, laid down by Alfred E. Smith, Herbert Lehman and Franklin D. Roosevelt."

"They had to go along whether they wanted to or not," he added.

Taunting Dewey at nearly every stop, he chose Syracuse to challenge his "school" record in New York State. He said New York is now trailing in thirty-seventh place in the adjustment for pupil expenditures to the rising costs between 1940 and 1947.

Lays School Bill Failure to GOP

"If New York State had a forward-looking Governor, it wouldn't do that," he said.

Then he charged House Republicans with "killing" the Senate-passed Federal aid to education bill last session. He called the education bill the best possible safeguard against communism because "when you have an educated people, communism hasn't a chance in the world."

The rain poured down in sheets when his train pulled up to Taber's Auburn depot, but it failed to disperse the crowd of 7000 that stood through it all to cheer Truman. Taber himself remained uptown in his office.

Mr. Truman told the crowd about Herblock's cartoon in The Washington Post, called "Saber Dance." He said it showed a man slashing the head off Agriculaure, Interior and other departmental appropriations—"I named it the 'Taber Dance.'"

Mr. Truman told the Auburn voters they have this choice in November:

"You can elect a man who doesn't care about the welfare of the people, or you can elect a man who does."

Plugs for Taber's Rival

Here he plugged for Francis J. Souhan, 41-year-old Auburn yarn manufacturer who is running for Taber's House seat. Taber has been winning by 4 to 1 majorities in this heavily Republican district. Souhan, who is conducting a doorbell ringing campaign against "Taber's false economies," claims he will at least put a dent in the Taber vote.

Mr. Truman's speaking marathon for the day read like a fast mail schedule. Starting bright and early in Auburn, he spoke from the rear platform in the rain at the trackside or from umbrella-covered stands in these other cities before he reached Buffalo:

Schenectady, Amsterdam, Little Falls, Utica, Rome, Oneida, Syracuse, Seneca Falls, Geneva, Rochester and Batavia. All but two of the cities went for Roosevelt in 1944 but the surrounding territory is predominantly Republican.

Told Campaign Is Clicking

What helped cheer Mr. Truman were reports from Paul Fitzpatrick, State Democratic chairman, that the up-State countryside is unhappy about Dewey's State tax policies and is ripe for some Democratic courting. Fitzpatrick, who came aboard early this morning, told the President his "meeting the issues" campaign is beginning to click with the voters. Fitzpatrick even predicted Truman will carry the State by whittling down Dewey's up-State margin.

Mr. Truman perked up because the real Democratic bosses in the two States he stumped Wednesday and Thursday told him the same thing.

Former Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, who came aboard for a visit last night after his pyrotechnical atonement in Jersey, told reporters Truman's stock has started rising "and when that happens you can't predict how far it will go."

David L. Lawrence, Pennsylvania's National Committeeman and State leader, similarly told Mr. Truman his campaign is helping "wash out" Wallace and is cutting into the independent vote.

Chides GOP on Trade Act

All of which may explain why the President was smiling happily today in the rain. Some of his thrusts.

At Albany: Republicans made "the first step back to isolationism" when they tried to hamstring the Reciprocal Trade Act last session.

At Amsterdam: Republicans put a "halter" on labor and "tried to leave the farmer out on the limb so he could no longer have a floor under his prices."

At Little Falls: the Eightieth Congress "tried to cut the throat of labor," and wants us to "turn the clock back, and go back into our shells."

At Syracuse: "Some Republicans . . . talk unity out of one side of their mouth, then do their best to set the people in the cities against the people on the farms."

At Buffalo: Dewey has dispelled any illusion that he does not stand for what the Eightieth Congress stood for by praising what it did "for the future of our country."

Tobin Tells Teamsters Not to Vote for Reds

Indianapolis, Oct. 8 (AP).—Daniel J. Tobin, president of the AFL International Teamsters, told members of that union today they "should not vote for Communist candidates" in the November 2 election.

Writing in the October issue of the International Teamster, Tobin pointed out "the international union believes that Communists or near-Communists are the greatest danger today to the legitimate labor movement of our country and Communists are prohibited from holding membership in our international union."

Thurmond Virtually Indorsed By Tuck in Virginia Welcome

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Richmond, Oct. 8.—Virginia's Gov. William M. Tuck today paid South Carolina's Gov. J. Strom Thurmond every mark of welcoming tribute short of outright indorsement of the latter's States' Rights campaign to be President.

As Governors, the two men have been allies in leading Southern opposition against President Truman's civil rights program. But Tuck, like other leaders of the dominant Virginia State Democratic organization, has followed a hands-off, say-nothing line toward tht question of supporting either the Thurmond of Truman presidential ticket.

Today, the Governor of Virginia introduced the Governor of South Carolina to a crowd at the Atlantic Rural Exposition in terms that seemed to give Tuck no choice but to vote for Thurmond.

Tuck declared:

"I'm glad to welcome to the Commonwealth of Virginia a distinguished visitor who has demonstrated in public life the courage and stability which he displayed on the field of battle, and who has espoused at home the same fundamental principles of democracy that he so ably defended abroad as a soldier of the United States.

A reporter asked Tuck whether his remarks were to be construed as an indorsement of Thurmond's campaign for the Presidency.

"You can construe it just like you please, that's all I can say," replied Tuck.

A trained seal act had just ended when the Governors arrived. They waited through a comedy diving and an acrobatic act. Then with the end of the show, many of the crowd stood up to go. There was a quick announcement of Thurmond's speech. More than half of the crowd, including a large group of children, continued on their way and left the grandstand.

About 600 persons remained to hear Thurmond. He renewed his hard-hitting attack against the Federal civil rights program, criticizing his three major opponents for their support of Federal civil rights legislation.

He said that if the civil rights program is approved "you'll think you're living in a foreign country, you won't know you're living in free Virginia."

His speech was applauded at several points by the crowd, and Tuck clapped hands with the rest.

The Thurmonds arrived in Richmond about 11 a. m., having been driven in a Virginia State Police car from Charlottesville. The Governor held a press conference in which he read anew the statement on his campaign which he made to a Washington press conference last week.

In the evening, the Thurmonds were guests at a States' Rights Democratic dinner in the John Marshall Hotel here.

The dinner crowd of more than 500 persons went all out for Thurmond with yells, whistles, standing ovations and encouraging shouts.

Governor Tuck did not attend. He missed hearing an entertainer sing, "I Love Somebody, Yes I do, I Love Somebody, But I Won't Say Who."

One guest tonight was Mrs. Byrd, wife of United States Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.), leader in the dominant Democrat organization of Virginia. Mrs. Byrd said the Senator was at his home near Winchester, and she would not say how she herself will vote. Other guests included C. C. Carlin, publisher of the Alexandria Gazette, and Mrs. Carlin, and R. O. Norris of Lively, Va., president pro tem of the Virginia State Senate.

Governor Thurmond was introduced by Thomas D. Odom of Suffolk, Va., State president of the Virginia Young Democrats. While its executive board has voted for the Truman ticket, Odom announced that he personally will support and vote for Thurmond.

The Thurmonds will stay here tonight, and Saturday will visit Norfolk and Williamsburg. They will be in South Carolina Sunday, and will visit Lynchburg, Va., Monday. That is Thurmond's last scheduled campaign appearance in Virginia.

Dewey Backs Housing Aid

sage of the bill, which died in the House.

But Dewey did praise research provisions of the housing measure which Congress finally approved.

Appearing on the same platform with Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York City, who recently voiced political criticism of the GOP nominee, Dewey noted that tenements were being cleared from the spot 56 years after a New York State Senate committee had found the houses there unfit for human beings to live in.

"I am deeply proud," Dewey said, "that we have finally done during my administration what we did not get done during those 56 years."

The Alfred E. Smith housing will provide homes for 7000 persons, he said.

For Construction Cooperation

Asserting that there is "a gigantic housing deficit" in the country, Dewey urged that the building industry, labor leaders and the Government get together "to cut through the impenetrable underbrush of theory and disagreement and dispute and draw up a workmanlike program."

The GOP nominee, who drove here from his Pawling farm, was scheduled to return to Albany tonight. There he planned to clean up State business tomorrow before embarking Sunday night on a second political speechmaking swing.

Ex-Union Official Is Charged With Shooting Reuther

Detroit, Oct. 8 (U.P.).—Carl Bolton, tight-lipped former convict and formerly a local official of the CIO United Auto Workers, was charged today with the shotgun shooting of UAW President Walter P. Reuther April 20.

Recorder's Judge Christopher Stein issued a warrant charging Bolton and two unnamed persons with assault with attempt to kill.

One mystery remaining at the end of the six months of investigation was the identity of the two "John Does" who were Bolton's alleged accomplices. They still are at large.

Bolton, described as "cocky and loud" by UAW officials who knew him during his brief affiliation with the union, will be arraigned Tuesday.

He was in Oakland County Jail in Pontiac, where he faces trial on a charge of burglarizing a UAW cooperative store.

Speak Out, Mr. Truman

(Reprint of an Editorial in the New York Star, October 3, 1948)

"WE are for Harry S. Truman for President.

"Mr. Truman has been in politics for a quarter of a century. He has been an honorable public servant. Of course, he is responsible for the actions of a large body of subordinates. One of them is George Marshall, Secretary of State, who also is honorable. Mr. Marshall in turn is responsible for the acts of a large body of subordinates.

"These subordinates induced Mr. Marshall to do something in Paris that cast dishonor on Harry S. Truman. They may not have realized that their policy did that. Beyond any doubt, Mr. Marshall did not realize that fact. But it is a fact.

"Mr. Truman has to undo that dishonor by flatly and unequivocally rejecting what now stands as an act of his administration. It was an action taken while Mr. Truman was in the middle of his western campaign trip, far from Washington. But now he is back. He cannot longer delay repudiating an act which not only dishonored his name, but has dishonored a pledge to which his country, he himself, and his party is bound—the pledge of the Democratic platform that the boundaries of Israel, as fixed by the United Nations General Assembly on Nov. 29, 1947, shall not be changed except by the consent of Israel itself. Mr. Truman wrote that pledge, sent it to Philadelphia, and got it unchanged into the Democratic platform.

"Perhaps those State Department underlings who sold the Bernadotte Plan to Mr. Marshall at Paris can argue that they intended no pressure on Israel to accept the report. But the whole world and its press have rightly interpreted the action as just the opposite; that the adoption by the United Nations of the Bernadotte Plan would, in fact, exert the severest pressure on Israel to accept a change in her boundaries.

"Mr. Truman's personal and official integrity requires that he speak out against our Paris stand. The State Department this time cannot, as it so often has done in the past on Palestine affairs, ask the President to use diplomacy's soft language or to compromise his views downward to save the Department's face. No, the thing which has to be saved is the pledged word of this country, Mr. Truman, and his party, and only plain talk by the President now can do it. The Department's face may then be ruddy, but it will be a healthy ruddiness of having been bailed out of a lot of hot water it got itself into."

Hiss Names Chambers in Second Suit

Baltimore, Oct. 8 (AP).—Alger Hiss today filed suit for an additional $25,000 damages from Whittaker Chambers, who has accused Hiss of being a Communist.

The former State Department official, now president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, said he was further slandered by comments Chambers made when Hiss filed a suit against him last month in Federal Court here.

Hiss asked $50,000 damages then. He charged the senior editor of Time Magazine had made false and defamatory statements when he testified before a congressional committee and said on a radio program that Hiss is a Communist.

The supplemental action recited that Chambers gave a statement on the suit to the Associated Press and that it was published in The Washington Post and other newspapers. Hiss said its implications were that the suit was not filed in good faith and that it was designed to aid Communists. Hiss said this also is false and defamatory.

Chambers has until October 24 to answer the original complaint.

The CIO United Electrical Workers Union must completely disprove charges of Communist influences among its officers or all its members will be quickly ousted from Atomic Energy plants, it was told yesterday.

Recently national officers of UE and more than 100 minor officials were accused of having Communistic connections in testimony before the House Labor Committee.

UE leaders had refused to sign anti-Communist oaths, as required by the Taft-Hartley Act. Ten days ago Chairman David Lilienthal of the Atomic Energy Commission, blacklisted UE members from employment in AEC plants until the union had complied with the law.

Advised by Letter

In a letter to UE President Albert Fitzgerald, Lilienthal yesterday declared that labor union leaders representing workers in AEC plants must not only submit non-Communist oaths, but must also obtain the same clearance as to their loyalty that is required of the workers themselves.

Until the loyalty of UE officers is "cleared up satisfactorily," Lilienthal wrote, the AEC intends to take "such further steps as may be necessary."

From other commission officials it was learned that the "further steps" means ousting UE from the Schenectady, N. Y., atomic energy plants operated under contract by the General Electric Co. Previous bans against UE only applied to workers at the Knolls Atomic Power Laboratory at Schenectedy, now under construction.

"If the officers of UE desire," Lilienthal wrote, "the Commission will give them every opportunity to participate in a fuller exploration of this issue.

Must Give Candid Statements

"It should be understood, however, that the AEC would expect the UE officers to be prepared to give full and candid statements concerning present or past affiliations with the Communist Party or Communist-dominated organizations."

Several top UE officials refused to answer such questions before the House Labor Committee.

AEC also released a letter from Lilienthal to CIO President Philip Murray who protested against blacklisting the union because of its officials refusing to sign non-Communist affidavits.

Murray had told Lilienthal that the non-Communist proviso of the Taft-Hartley Act is being challenged in the courts. Lilienthal replied that whatever the outcome of the court case, the loyalty of UE officers still would be open to "serious question" because of information available to AEC.

3. More job holders actually were at work in September than in August. The vacation season was in full tide in August, cutting the number actually on the job. At work in September were 57,676,000, or 1,074,000 more than in August.

All these figures related strictly to civilians. In addition, there were 1,366,000 drawing pay from the armed forces.

Farm employment, reversing the course of the previous two months, went up in September. Non-farming employment went down after reaching successive record highs in each of the previous three months.

Radically New Ideas Not Least Of Merchant Marine's Needs

(Last of a Series)

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Stronger leadership, additional Government financial support and some radically new ideas in shipbuilding are the chief needs of the American merchant marine today.

The industry is badly divided in segments and unable to agree on a cure for its ills. Government leadership is lacking due to a disagreement over fundamental policy and improper organization.

Rapidly mounting operation and construction costs coupled with growing foreign merchant fleets make competition difficult. Larger Government subsidies and more favorable financing terms seem a vital necessity.

One course of action which appears promising, provided the leadership and funds are forthcoming, is some real modernization of ships and terminal facilities.

Clipper Ships World's Best

More than a century ago, we were a leading maritime nation because our clipper ships were the best in the world. New-type sailing vessels turned out by Yankee designers had more speed and could be handled by smaller crews than their foreign competitors.

What is needed today, in the opinion of many shipping experts are some drastic innovations in design, particularly with regard to cargo handling. Loading and unloading methods differ little from those in use 100 years ago. Dry cargo is lifted in and out of the holds of ships, as then, by booms and winches. It has been officially estimated that cargo-handling charges account for 50 per cent of the total operating costs of seagoing vessels in the domestic trade.

A year ago, the President's Advisory Committee on the Merchant Marine recommended that the Government sponsor a "concerted cooperative effort" by shipping companiees, shippers, ship designers, maritime labor, port authorities and Government agencies to bring about reforms.

The fact that nothing has been done to date in the matter is rather convincing evidence that stronger leadership is necessary if the industry's problems are to be solved.

Shipping men sharply criticize the Maritime Commission for failure to take vigorous action to meet maritime ills. They say that the present modest shipbuilding program was started only after an interdepartmental and industry liaison committee was formed this spring under pressure from the Pentagon.

Part of the commission's trouble dates back to the 1936 Merchant Marine Act. It was passed after the Black Investigation of the mail subsidy scandals, and more attention was paid to prevention of future abuses than creating an agency which could act. For one thing, the law bars anyone who has been associated with the maritime industry within the previous three years to be named a member of the commission. This makes it almost impossible to find competent, experienced men for the posts.

Virtually One-Man Show

Then, too, throughout the war years the commission was virtually a one-man show. Admiral Emery S. Land, a close friend of President Roosevelt, was commission chairman and War Shipping Administrator. The latter post was a temporary wartime one. After Land resigned, the chairmanship was vacant for many months.

President Truman's Advisory Committee strongly urged a sweeping reorganization of the Maritime Commission, including its separation into a Maritime Administration under the Commerce Department and an independent commission. Congress did not act on the proposal, though some minor changes were made this year.

Congress should take action next year to provide for better Government administration of maritime matters and finally resolve at the same time the differences within the Government as to the future of the merchant marine. Despite a spanking by Congress last year, many State Department officials still do not want a first-rate American merchant marine fleet if it means competition with western Europe.

Additional Government financial support also seems necessary if we are to maintain the size merchant marine required to meet a war emergency. Only 227 vessels of the 1700-odd ships in the active fleet now are under operational subsidies—to make up the differences between foreign and American wages and other costs. The others either are not eligible for subsidies or have not wanted to meet the restrictive conditions under which the benefits are paid.

Construction subsidies probably must be broadened to include vessels not now eligible, and perhaps increased. Some legislation to encourage private capital to invest in new vessels also is needed. Some hurriedly drawn bills to lower interest rates on Government ship loans, limit mortgage liability, give better trade-in terms on old ships, and permit accelerated depreciation of vessels for tax purposes failed at the last session.

Shipping experts believe the subsidy payments can be held to about 100 million dollars a year and provide the incentive to give the Nation a first-rate merchant marine. This is only a fraction of the total annual Federal subsidy payments.

Other problems also must be faced by the merchant marine. The Communist purge of maritime unions must be completed and labor peace brought to the waterfront. Every effort must be made to stimulate new passenger-ship construction. Coastal shipping should be revived. More equitable freight rates would help greatly. Mounting unemployment and shrinkage of the operations must be leveled off. But improved leadership, additional subsidies and some bold ship designing by themselves will go a long way to solving the industry's ills.

Turtle at Buenos Aires

Buenos Aires, Oct. 8 (U.P.).—The U. S. Navy's famous patrol bomber, Truculent Turtle, arrived today from Santiago, Chile, at 3:13 p. m. local time. Aboard was Rear Admiral Osborne B. Hardison, chief of U. S. Naval Missions in South America, who is touring the missions.

Sullivan Sees 'Pearl Harbor' Storm Signals

Durham, N. H., Oct. 8 (U.P.).—Secretary of Navy John L. Sullivan said tonight the United States faces many of the same danger signals that preceded Pearl Harbor.

In a speech prepared for delivery at the University of New Hampshire, he stressed his oft-repeated warning that this Nation must maintain a strong military arm to "command respect" and keep the peace.

Another speaker was Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service director.

"We in 1948 face many of the same problems we chose not to recognize as danger signals during the decade before Pearl Harbor," Sullivan said. "It is perhaps in our favor that these signs have broken through the surface so soon.

"I think that this time we are going to be wise enough not to ignore their present meaning and future implications."

Sullivan said the United States must continue to support the United Nations but that "international ship of state" is threatened by the "immutable rocks of the veto." He added that the world situation today is again a "state of dissolution" and "not altogether different" from the 1930's when Hitler withdrew from the League of Nations and signed "so-called non-aggression pacts with weaker neighbors as a prelude to actual occupation of many of them."

U.S. to Conduct Meneuvers In North Atlantic, Nov. 1

A fighting force of 65 warships, 420 planes and 31,000 men will mass in the North Atlantic next month for the biggest air-sea maneuvers in those waters since the war.

The fleet will assemble at Norfolk, Va., Nov. 1, and carry out the battle exercise under wartime conditions, winding up November 23.

The games will range over a 720,000 square-mile ocean area, extending 100 to 500 miles east of the United States and Canada and northward to the entrance of Davis Strait, between Greenland and Labrador.

The biggest operation will be an amphibious assault landing on the fleet base at Argentia, Newfoundland, Nov. 5-8.

Vice Admiral D. B. Duncan will command the maneuvers from the battleship Missouri.

results. He and Gerow wonder how the Army—already short of dentists—can cope with an expected influx of 800,000 men this year.

One answer would be to raise Selective Service dental requirements. Officers say that at present the plan is to take men "as long as they have two jaws." The recommendation sent to the Department of the Army from Second Army headquarters is that men have at least three opposing molars and three opposing incisors—a total of 12 teeth—to be acceptable.

"The Government shouldn't have to pay out $1200 or so to fix the teeth of a 21-month man and have him spend three months out of the year in a dental chair," said Gerow.

Under the plan submitted to the Baltimore dental group, dentists who agree to help would be given a day's pay at Government levels for putting in an hour a day at an Army dispensary. If a Reserve officer, they would be given the pay of their rank, and if not, the pay of a P-4 Civil Service rating.

One difficulty is the shortage of dentists in civilian life, which enables such practitioners to draw $60 to $70 a day in fees, Gerow said.

During consideration of the Selective Service bill last spring, defense chiefs proposed a special draft of doctors and dentists up to the age of 45 to meet the needs of the expanded military services. It was approved by both the Senate and House Armed Services Committees, passed by the Senate, but knocked out in the House.

Congressional leaders agreed to drop the plan for the time being on receiving assurances from civilian medical association chiefs that they will see that the need of the services are met by voluntary means.

very. It has been called a false alarm and no good.

"It has had its teething troubles, of course, but in some ways it has had fewer teething troubles than most new airplanes.

Described as "Big Crock"

"It has been derided as a big crock that will get itself shot down as soon as it gets in sight of the target. That doesn't take account of bombing from very high altitudes at night and through overcast with radar bomb sights.

"That," he added, "is my personal angle."

It was agreed among the aviation writers here attending the public inauguration of the B-36 as the Air Force's new heavy bomber, however, that Kenney was expressing current tactical doctrine. Asked about the need under those conditions for a parasite fighter carried in the bomb bay, Kenney said:

"There are some parts of the world where the night is only four hours long. That would mean a long time over enemy territory in daylight approaching the target."

On the question of range, Maj. Gen. Roger M. Ramey, commanding the Eighth Air Force, pointed out that the B-29 could be flown 8000 miles by refueling-in flight. The B-36, he said, "can operate anywhere in the world with its own supply and maintenance."

With its great range, he continued, the B-36 can avoid the lines of approach over which an enemy would expect a bombing attack and thus force him to set up a costly warning net along the entire perimeter of the land mass he must defend.

J. W. Larson, Consolidated-Vultee engineer, said the B-36 could be equipped with small cargo trucks which can be hoisted into the bomb bay, flown to a destination, dropped and towed off on their own wheels. He added that 200 troops, closely packed, could be carried in the bomb bay.

Powerful as Five Locomotives

Something of what it takes to build and operate a B-36 was revealed by staff officers of the Seventh Wing. Among details disclosed were these:

1. The big bomber contains 27.5 miles of electrical wiring, enough to wire 280 five-room houses.

2. Its hydraulic system for handling the landing gear, doors and brakes, carries a pressure of 3000 pounds.

3. Its six 3000-horsepower engines weigh 19.5 tons and deliver the power of five diesel passenger locomotives.

4. Its propellers, 19 feet in diameter, are the largest ever used on an airplane.

5. Its ceiling is "at least" 40,000 feet and its speed "more than" 300 miles an hour.

6. Despite its tremendous weight of more than 300,000 pounds its four-wheel landing gear permits it to land on any field which will accommodate a B-29.

7. It uses two tons of air a minute to cool its engines at sea level.

8. It carries two railway tank cars of gasoline, enough to take an automobile 16 times around the world "with enough left over to tour Texas."

9. Its engines give off sufficient heat (used for cabin heating and anti-icing) to keep a 600-room hotel warm.

The normal B-36 crew consists of three pilots, two flight engineers, two radio operators, four radar navigator-bombardiers, and four gunners. The extreme size and range of the airplane makes duplications of crewmen necessary, according to Lieut. Col. Howard F. Hughes, Seventh Wing operations officer.

Before pilots can qualify for the B-36, Hughes said, they must have had at least 1000 hours on four-engine aircraft, of which 600 hours must have been on B-29s. Then they are given a 50-hour checkout course on the B-36 before being assigned as its pilot.

The outlandish size of the B-36 and its peculiar characteristics in flight, Hughes said, baffle pilots at first. For instance, when the bomber is landed its pilot is four stories above the runway.

The Seventh Wing, Hughes said, already has flown 61 B-36 missions, totaling 531 hours. Kenney indicated that one of the principal present objectives of Seventh Wing training is to discover and perfect means of increasing the range of the B-36 as that of the B-29 was almost doubled by efficient handling in flight.

It was revealed that a new version of the huge bomber, the B-36-B, is now on the production lines. Greatly increased performance from this airplane is expected by technical improvements, one of which is use of water injection in the engines.

Hey KIDS! Write a RADIO SLOGAN
Win up to $100 and be on the RADIO!

It's The Washington Post
SAINT MYSTERY COMIC SLOGAN CONTEST

Open to all grade school, junior high, and high school kids in the Washington area.

Try your hand at writing a catchy radio slogan for the new "Saint" mystery comic strip in The Washington Post. If you submit one of the ten best slogans you'll get $10. And you'll get a chance to step up to a microphone and sing, chant, yell, whisper or recite your slogan over the air. The one who does it best gets his (or her) $10 bill turned into $100. A record will be made of his slogan and he'll be hearing it on Washington radio stations as part of The Post's promotion on the "Saint" comic strip.

Here's What You Do:

First, begin by turning to the comic pages of The Post and get acquainted with "The Saint."

Next, decide what you want to say about this new mystery comic. Then say it—in a slogan, a jingle, what have you. With or without sound effects indicated—it doesn't matter.

Finally, write your slogan on a piece of paper, put on your name, address, age and school and send it to the "Saint Mystery Comic" Contest Editor, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C. You may enter as many slogan ideas as you wish. Be sure your name and address are on each one.

The contest lasts until October 31. Entries received after October 31 will not even be opened. So get going—now. Read the Saint Comic in The Washington Post. Put on your thinking cap. Try your idea out on your family. Then send it in. In case two or more persons send in the same slogan, the one reaching the judges first will be considered to be the original, so it pays to get your ideas in right away.

IT'S EASY TO WRITE A WINNING SLOGAN OR JINGLE—HERE'S HOW!

Remember that radio slogan about another comic strip character? "It's a bird! It's a plane! It's S-u-p-e-r-man!" What's hard about that one? You can think up another equally simple, equally effective for "The Saint." Or maybe a jingle would be more along your line. Here's an example:

(Man's voice): The Saint is a pain to the cops.
(Girl's voice): They grab him, but then off he pops.
(Man): He goes after crime.
(Girl): And wins every time.
(Together): So Post readers think he is tops.
(Close harmony): You'll see him in the c-o-m-i-c-s

Easy? Sure! Didn't take two minutes. Corny? You bet! You can do lots better. And win $10—maybe $100. Let's go!

Policeman Hurts Buddy In Pistol Test

Heller Huddleston

Park Police Pvt. Norman H. Heller, 30, was accidentally shot in the right leg yesterday by another policeman who was testing the trigger pull of his service revolver.

Both Heller, of Sunnybrook, Md., and Pvt. Teddy G. Huddleston, 37, of 943 N. Liberty st., Arlington, were suspended by Capt. Mark H. Raspberry, park police chief, pending investigation to see if there was "any careless or wanton use of the service revolver."

Heller was admitted to Providence Hospital in good condition after the 4 a.m. incident in a scout car parked near Fort Dupont Park.

Huddleston was testing his revolver's trigger during an explanation to his mate as to how to whip a revolver from its holster speedily, Captain Raspberry said.

Hopkins Names Roberts

Baltimore, Oct. 8 (AP).—W. Frank Roberts, president of the Standard Gas & Equipment Corp., was elected president of the board of trustees of the Johns Hopkins Hospital today. He succeeds W. Wallace Lanahan who died August 30.

Plans submitted by the successful bidder on Arlington's proposed incinerator plant failed to meet all minimum specifications set up by the county board, it was charged in Arlington Circuit Court yesterday.

The allegation was contained in an amendment to the original complaint, filed by Attorney Oren Lewis, representing the losing bidder in a suit to nullify award of the $646,575 contract to Nichols Engineering and Research Corp., New York.

Lewis, who contends that the county board erred in awarding the contract to the Nichols concern because a lower bid was submitted by his client, Morse-Boulger Destructor Co., New York, filed the amendment at the end of the fourth day of hearings in the suit. The added allegation was accepted without objection by counsel for the county board and the Nichols firm.

Lewis said plans originally submitted by the Nichols firm were later computed, and it was found they failed to meet required specifications in several instances involving the minimum sizes of installations in the plant. As a result, he contended, the firm was ineligible to receive the bid.

Earlier, Board Chairman Dan Dugan testified he had voted against awarding the contract to the Nichols concern because of the "ethics" of the action. The only member of the board to dissent during the contract award, he charges that specifications were so planned that only the Nichols firm could meet all requirements.

The board agreed by a 4-1 vote to award the contract to the Nichols Company on the grounds that its proposed plant, even though more expensive than that proposed by Morse-Boulger, would be less costly to operate and result in a saving over a period of years.

Following yesterday's hearing, Judge Walter T. McCarthy recessed the case until Tuesday at 10 a.m.

'Satira' Likes The 'Free Air'

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

PATRICIA SCHMIDT steps from an airplane at New Orleans onto American soil for the first time in almost two years. The dark-complexioned dancer was 20 pounds lighter than when she went to Cuba early in 1947. She was released Wednesday from her Havana jail cell after President Ramon Grau San Martin pardoned her for the slaying of her lover, John Lester Mee, a Chicago naval veteran, aboard his yacht, the Satira, in Havana harbor, April, 1947. Said Miss Schmidt yesterday: "It's wonderful to be back in free air again"

Defense Calls Witnesses in Koester Trial

The Municipal Court trial of Archibald I. Koester, 30, yesterday entered its third day as the defense called witnesses to give testimony in connection with his story that he was beaten by police.

Koester, a Navy Chief Petty Officer residing in Falls Church, is accused of drunk and disorderly conduct here on August 28.

Miss Irene Kiraly, who has been residing with Mr. and Mrs. Koester for a year, said they had been attending a birthday party at 1081 Wisconsin ave. nw. and as they left she saw police in a scout car.

Miss Kiraly testified that Koester put his arm around his wife but was told by her to stop since police were present.

The witness quoted Koester as saying, "They are good boys and wouldn't hurt me."

At the street, one of the policemen left the scout car and told Koester to get in, she said. Koester asked, "What for?" according to Miss Kiraly, and after a conversation, one of the officers grabbed Koester while the other struck him on the head with a nightstick.

At that point, Koester began cursing and shouting and not until then, Miss Kiraly said.

The officers who made the arrest were Pvts. Charles B. Kadel and F. L. Gibson.

3 Escapees Arraigned in Maryland

Three men who broke from the Marlboro jail after overpowering a jailer last June 23, were arraigned yesterday in Prince Georges County Circuit Court after indictments charging escape were returned by the grand jury.

The men, Alfred A. Coleman, 19, of 1238 Delaware ave. sw.; Maurice F. Irving, 28, of 1214 Eastern ave ne., and Charles L. McManus, 25, Winston-Salem, N. C., were captured within an hour by two Brentwood (Md.) policeman after the jailer's automobile in which they were escaping had been run off the road by a county police scout car.

Two other prisoners, who escaped at the same time, are still at large. They are John T. Ford, 25, of 1415 57th ave., Chapel Oaks, Md., and Preston Wallace, jr., 19, 4600 Gallatin st., Hyattsville.

Thirty-six indictments were returned by the grand jury, which completed its first week of deliberation yesterday.

The five jail breakers were also indicted for motor vehicle larceny, receiving stolen goods and unlawful taking of a motor vehicle. Irving, in addition, was indicted for store-housebreaking, larceny and receiving stolen goods and McManus for assault and battery, forgery, uttering and false pretenses.

Alexandria Health Setup Hit

factory inspection by the health department.

In most instances, the surveyors supported complaints made by the League of Women Voters in a pamphlet which was published last April, and led to a city council request for the State survey.

In reporting the department administration, the committee charged Dr. Schafer with inadequate supervision of department personnel and said there was no evidence the health officer adhered to "reasonable office hours." It suggested the entire program could be made more effective by adequate supervision, and recommended that the city "assure itself of a health officer who will provide a planned, aggressive leadership in public health."

Over-All Activities

The department's over-all activities, the committee found, are "consistent with good public health policy," despite the fact that the city's annual per capita health expenditure of $1.22 is "definitely lower than the per capita expenditure recognized to be necessary for adequate public health services."

Despite an "adequate ordinance" for control of sanitation in eating and drinking places, the committee found, the enforcement program is "so loosely knit there is an almost utter lack of coordination and effort." An employe responsible for making inspections of such places, the committee said, is able to devote only about 25 per cent of his time to the job because he has other duties.

Records of inspections of eating places are "almost nonexistent," the report declared, and there are "no regular reports, no conferences nor can any member of the department give an intelligent appraisal of the quality or amount of work performed."

It recommended a full-time inspector who would compile daily statistics, and also suggested an amendment to the existing ordinance to place service stations under local inspection.

The report did not specify shortcomings of the milk inspection law, but pointed out it was adopted in 1930, and "lacked many requirements now considered essential."

The report said there were about 300 outdoor "can-type" privies in poorer sections of the city, pointing out that many were located on "serviceable" sewer lines. It proposed elimination of all privies, accompanied by "more adequate" enforcement of plumbing regulations.

Other findings were reported as follows:

Public health nursing: Present members of the nursing staff spend about 80 per cent of their time on school-age children, and are not able to devote sufficient time to other functions. The committee suggested a "more balanced overall nursing program," individual automobiles for all field nurses and closer cooperation with the Public Health Nursing Bureau of the State Health Department.

Sanitary engineering: The city's water supply is good, trash and garbage collection are highly satisfactory, and existing sewerage defects will be corrected with development of a projected sewerage disposal plant for the city. However, programs for rat, fly and mosquito control are lacking and should be instituted.

Disease Control

Communicable disease control: Present policies are in accord with good practice, but the department should institute a more adequate system for receiving reports on communicable diseases and attempt to balance its infant and child immunization program. It proposed that the health officer personally investigate isolation cases, and that he, alone, be allowed to authorize release of patients previously isolated.

Health education: The committee proposed that more impetus be given health education and, pending appointment of a full-time education expert, suggested the department obtain a part-time specialist in cooperation with other local agencies.

City Manager Colasanto termed the report "complete, impersonal and constructive," and predicted it would be of value to the city in its efforts to establish "the type of program we need."

Mayor William T. Wilkins said he had no comment, but added, "I think the report speaks for itself."

The survey committee was headed by Dr. J. C. Neale, jr., director of local services for the State department, and included 14 other experts, each of whom was assigned to study a separate function of the local department.

Czech Envoy Resigns

Copenhagen, Denmark, Oct. 8 (U.P.).—Czenek Nemecek, Czech Minister to Copenhagen, resigned from the Czech diplomatic service today because of dissatisfaction with his country's government. He said he would retire to Britain.

Soaring Spiders Give California 'Invasion' Scare

San Francisco, Oct. 8 (U.P.).—A strange phenomenon of Nature was revealed today to have touched off the mild "invasion" scare in northern California last night.

Californians called police, newspapers and military bases reporting "men" or "stars" parachuting down through clear, moonlit skies.

Two sober-minded Southwest Airlines pilots, Bill Hughes and Neal Kilgore, lent substance to the reports by radioing they flew for 30 minutes through a strange, gauze-like stuff between Ukiah and Santa Rosa. United Air Lines pilots reported the same "stuff" at 2000 feet over Sacramento.

Today, entomologists announced it was merely spiders in their annual—and mysterious— autumnal pilgrimage to somewhere. Flying through the air on warm updrafts and gentle breezes after being lifted, web and all, off where they had spun their magic carpets."

The webbed scarfs, it was said, sometimes get as long as 4 feet, with thousands of migrating spiders banding together on enmeshed webs.

Ilse Koch Case Record Veiled

commuted the sentence to four years. Reason given was that the evidence connecting Ilse Koch with the "crimes against humanity" perpetrated at Buchenwald was open to doubt.

Since the public clamor over the reduction of the sentence arose, the Army has refused to permit reporters to interview Frau Koch's defense counsel, Maj. Carl Whitney, or the reviewing officer, Lieut. Col. Clio E. Straight. Both are now on duty at the Pentagon.

Former Army Maj. William D. Denson, prosecutor of the Buchenwald case, has denounced the reduction of Frau Koch's sentence. He is now an attorney here with the Atomic Energy Commission.

The Army also has refused reporters access to the transcript of the case, declaring that the same rule applies to war crimes cases as court-martial records—they were available only to the prosecution and the defendant. When a reporter remarked that he had seen it a year ago, when it was open to all, the Army admitted the rule was a recent one.

Then it was stated that the matter was before a congressional committee and that the latter should decide on the merits of the protests against the reduction in sentence. Yesterday committee staff members said it had been definitely decided that the group would go fully into the case and that public hearings will be held. The date has not yet been set.

Judge Hits Dachau Trial Methods as 'Un-American'

Philadelphia, Oct. 8 (AP).—Judge E. Leroy Van Orden today termed "Un-American" some of the methods used in American civilian investigations in obtaining confessions from Germans sentenced to death at the Dachau war crimes trials.

Van Orden, president judge of the Delaware County Orphans' Court, was a member of a two-man commission sent by Army Secretary Royall to review some of the Dachau sentences.

He and Justice Gordon Simpson of the Texas Supreme Court reviewed 139 death sentences and recommended that 29 of them be commuted.

Van Orden said he and Judge Simpson found methods had been used that involved third-degree tactics.

He confirmed a report of Col. Willis N. Everett, jr., of Atlanta, Ga., Army-appointed defense counsel for the Germans, concerning use of mock trials and solitary confinement to gain signed confessions of guilt from the prisoners.

The jurist said he learned from Colonel Everett's report that:

"A lot of times the investigators would march the prisoners to a small room in which the investigators would dress up as Army officers. They would hold a mock court and convict these people.

"Then, they would sentence them to death and obtain written confessions. They would say to these people, 'You sign this confession and maybe we can get you off with life or a lesser sentence.'"

Loans To Europe

It has taken slightly over six months to get one phase of the European Recovery Program almost under way. In the Economic Cooperation Act of 1948 Congress provided that up to $1,000,000,000 could be used to advance repayable loans through the Export-Import Bank to the recipient countries. The remainder of the $5,300,000,000 total made available for the first year of the Marshall Plan was to be in grants, and so far over $2,000,000,000 has been allocated in that way.

But until now only one small loan, of $2,300,000 to Iceland for strengthening its fishing industry, had been completed. The announcement from ECA that loans totaling $815,000,000 to 11 other recipient countries have been all but completed comes, thus, as welcome news. Only a few details remain to be completed, according to ECA, which had been anxious to get this side of its operations in full swing by October 1 at the latest.

While Congress did not specify what proportion of total aid should be in the form of loans and what in the form of grants, the ECA has kept close to the understanding that about 20 per cent of the total would be in loans. In each case the particular country's ability to repay has been taken into account, so that all aid to Greece and Austria is in grants, and only a very small proportion of that to Italy, for example, is repayable.

The present loans, it should be understood, come from first-year funds only. Further loans will presumably be authorized by ECA under subsequent Marshall Plan appropriations. It seems likely, and we think proper, that the proportion of loans to grants will increase as the recovery of the recipient countries advances. Similarly, the lenient terms given in the current agreements probably will and ought to be made stiffer on the same account. Grants, intended primarily to cover shipments of food, fuel, and other commodities for immediate consumption, are vital in the pump-priming process. But long-term projects for industrial construction, reconstruction and the like, for which the loans are intended, are of prime importance for the post-Marshall Plan period when Europe must stand on its own feet economically.

Military Science

Along with his well-warranted criticism of the indiscriminate impugning of scientists, President Truman recently reiterated the contention that the country ought to spend two billion dollars a year on scientific research and development. This is in line with the recommendation made last summer by the President's Scientific Research Board, which called for a program of this magnitude by 1957 to place military, industrial and basic research in a proper balance. Today, however, military considerations still dominate science, and the bulk of scientific work is sponsored by the armed forces. It is three years after the war, and Congress has yet to pass a satisfactory National Science Foundation bill to help restore the equilibrium. Certainly the pure research which such a foundation would promote can be neglected only at the peril of stultification and ultimate damage to the national security.

Emphasis on military applications of science today is a necessity, but even here there is need for better liaison. Scientists working both on theory and practical application complain that they have no way of knowing whether they should concentrate their efforts on a program that will take five years to complete, or whether the military outlook is such that they should have usable results in, say, two years. Their puzzlement is understandable. It is also dangerous. For the direction of research undertaken now has a great bearing on future American military capacity. If scientists are put on the wrong track and are spending their time on a long-range program when the need is for more immediate developments, then our readiness and any scientific advantage we might hope to obtain will suffer accordingly.

The need, obviously, is for some better method of insuring that the estimates and decisions of the top planners are transmitted down to the working levels. Necessarily some elements of secrecy must enter military plans. But that secrecy is self-defeating if it shuts off vital information from the men who must translate it into the implements of defense. Certainly such bodies as the National Security Council and the Joint Chiefs of Staff ought to be concerned with seeing that their conclusions are relayed through the Research and Development Board to the agencies actually carrying out the research and development programs. The scientists will have to be trusted, and they demonstrated during the war their complete fitness to do tasks of the highest "security." As the working partners of the military, scientists cannot be expected to produce much if they are kept in the dark—just as the people will not back a policy unless they are informed upon it.

Mr. Truman's Strategy

The pattern of President Truman's campaign strategy appears to be fixed, and there is not much prospect that it will be altered in the remaining weeks of the campaign. He is making the strongest appeal within his power to the labor vote with little apparent regard for the effect his hammer-and-tongs technique may have on other groups of voters. So far as the solidification of his strength among organized workers is concerned, this may be effective campaigning. It is apparent, too, that the President has won the admiration of many voters in both parties by the fighting spirit with which he has waged his campaign in the face of seemingly hopeless odds. Even the President himself must see, however, that he is paying an enormous price for any additional votes that he may win by appealing to fears and class prejudices.

The trouble with this sort of campaign is that it leads from one extreme to another. Day after day the President is hard-pressed to coin new adjectives of abuse and to conjure up more frightful bogeys until he gets so far away from fact and reality that people give little weight to what he says. Yesterday, for example, the President asked a rain-drenched crowd in Albany: "Why in the world would you want to upset the apple-cart now and throw out an Administration that brought about this prosperity?" Hundreds of listeners must have asked themselves if the President did not know that the present high state of economic activity has resulted chiefly from the war. The conclusion must be, in our opinion, that the President does know it. And, of course, that forces another conclusion: that the President of the United States was talking recklessly without really thinking what he was saying.

When the President talked about Governor Dewey's plea for unity the other day, he was similarly extravagant. "We don't believe," he said, "in the unity of slaves or the unity of sheep being led to the slaughter." Does the President really believe that his Republican opponents would usher in a regime of slavery—to say nothing of sheep being led to slaughter? At Jersey City the President was quoted as saying that it would be a "tragedy" for the whole world if a reactionary government should be elected in November, and apparently he was not thinking of Henry Wallace. This sort of extravagance inevitably recoils upon those who indulge in it. And it is likely to recoil upon President Truman with more than ordinary effect because of the reputation he had previously acquired for impulsive and thoughtless action.

One other aspect of the President's campaign ought to be giving him and the Department of State a good deal of concern. His repetition of the charge that a Republican Administration would mean a catastrophic depression for the United States is precisely what Moscow likes to hear. Ever since the war the propagandists for the Kremlin have been trying to frighten democratic peoples into veering toward Russia with predictions of a frightful depression that will carry the United States and associated capitalistic countries to ruin. Now the President is picturing a similar frightful fate for the country if he is not returned to power. We suspect that 90 per cent of the people who hear him realize that he is talking politics, but we can scarcely expect the same realization to extend to European peoples who hear the repercussions from our domestic contest. For, after all, it is the President of the United States who is speaking, and the occupant of that high office will be expected to weigh his words even in a fight for his political life.

It is difficult for us to believe that the votes the President will gain by his heedless talk will offset what he will lose by lowering the dignity and responsibility of the presidential office. Aside from that, there is a question as to whether victory won by this method would not come at too high a price. "I would rather have peace in the world than to be President of the United States," Mr. Truman said at Newark. We do not see how it could be reasonably assumed that a reckless prediction of "tragedy" at home and abroad if his opponent should win could be regarded as contributing to peace or security. On the contrary, the President seems to be campaigning on the theory that his election is the only thing that matters, and that is a dangerous position for any official in a democracy to take.

Civil Service

President Truman has continued his recent commendable record of nonpolitical appointments in the selection of James M. Mitchell to fill the vacancy on the Civil Service Commission. The law required that the new appointee be a Republican. Mr. Mitchell fulfills this requirement, but more than this, he brings to the commission a broad background in governmental and civil service work. He has had particular experience in personnel administration, and his selection represents one of the few instances in which a man with actual knowledge of problems on the operating level has been elevated to a principal policy-making position. As the successor to the capable Arthur S. Flemming, Mr. Mitchell will be called upon to augment the restraint and balance which the Civil Service Commission needs at a time when the whole Federal personnel system is undergoing scrutiny.

In the same category is the President's appointment of a seven-member Fair Employment Board to function under the Civil Service Commission in instances of racial or religious discrimination in Federal jobs. Headed by Guy Moffett, longtime Federal employe and personnel adviser brought out of retirement, the board has a distinguished membership from many fields of endeavor. It includes, significantly, two Negroes and two women. The selection of this board is especially important because it indicates that the President is beginning to respond to the criticism directed at him for failure to take the steps within his power to implement the civil rights program.

Mr. Marshall's Return

Secretary Marshall comes back to Washington this morning after three tense and trying weeks in Paris. We do not pretend to know why President Truman asked him to come. We do know, however, that the Secretary has met his responsibilities at Paris with firmness and good sense, and with the moderation that is one of the marks of statesmanship. In his speech to the Assembly he spoke for all the American people and for all the free peoples of the earth. The Capital City welcomes him home again, if only for a hurried weekend visit, and applauds him for a job well begun.

Tragic Comics

Evidently the publishers of comic books have got the wind up at last, as the result of the big outcry which has been raised against them by police authorities, psychologists, schoolmarms, social welfare clubs and here and there a few apprehensive parents. "A code of ethics" devised by these publishers proscribes representations of torture, crime and the hitherto staple female characters who are given to wandering in improbable places without clothing or with very little. Publications which comply with the code will be certified hereafter with a star of approval. Meanwhile, it is said, a group of educators and others, supposed to know something about the matter, will be asked to advise the publishers about which sort of drawings and narratives may be purveyed to the young without moral or psychological danger.

Whether these somewhat belated efforts at internal reform will succeed in appeasing the adversaries of the comic books is a matter of some doubt. It seems not to remove one of the objections brought against them, which is that they discourage the habit of reading books which consist mainly of text, which for some reason most teachers and some parents deem it a duty to encourage. This may have the effect of bringing other publishers into the comics field. Of course, there is also a minority which has been insisting all along that even the more macabre and horrible varieties of comic books are not merely innocuous but salutary, in that they afford a sort of katharsis or release for those aggressive instincts and passions which the young are said to share with the rest of us. This is disputed very bitterly by Dr. Fredric Wertham, a well-known child psychiatrist of New York, who has hinted very broadly that all such opinions are subsidized by the comic book publishers. Writing some months ago in the Saturday Review of Literature, Dr. Wertham said:

> My own clinical studies and those of my associates . . . the first carried out independently of the comic book industry . . . have convinced me that comic books represent a systematic poisoning of the wells of childhood spontaneity. Many children themselves feel guilty about reading them. The worst sector of comic books is increasing, and the best, if there is a best, is getting smaller . . . The publishers of good children's books, instead of fighting the experts of the comic book industry and decoding their "codes," lie on psychoanalytic couches themselves and delve into their own dreams instead of providing decent fare for the dreams of childhood.

Anyway, it will be interesting to see just how the publishers go about the business of purifying their products. Some years ago there was an experiment of using famous literary classics as scenarios for comic books; but Dr. Wertham strives to show by examples from The Mysteries of Paris and Great Expectations that these "educational comics," as they are called, are just as baneful as the rest. Perhaps in the end the publishers will be driven to a still more radical experiment, that is of trying to make the comic books comic.

WEEDING THE STRAWBERRIES

Make an old song that will run
Homely as the stain on hands;
Pull weeds . . . you have not begun
To make a swathe on these thick lands.

Ragweed, buttercup and dock,
The bitter sorrell, thistle, clover,
The false buckwheat that twists the rock,
And fleabane must run over.

Give the muscles freer play;
Let a whistle mould your lips.
Work will be too long today
As the weeds crack fingertips.

Cinquefoil, self-heal, salsify,
Morning glory, and devil's brush,
Pigweeds, daisy, these we see
Together in a weedy crush.

Count them over in your mind,
Fifty at least where one has been.
And every one a separate kind . . .
List them: time goes swifter then.

Lamb's quarters, hawkweed, a reddened shore
With their tough youngsters lined together.
St. John's wort, campions . . . are there more?
Will you agree it's fine weed weather?

Atomic Attack

Marquis Childs, in his column of October 6, writes of "certain influential Air Force generals who talk brashly of a lightning war to last 30 days—conducted by small fleets of high speed planes dropping atomic bombs on strategic enemy centers."

It appears that, in the absence of a coherent and well defined national policy properly outlined by the Department of State and Congress, certain military leaders have assumed prerogatives not ordinarily within their province.

Mr. Childs indicates the futility of leveling enemy centers while the industrial potential of continental Europe is being taken over in short order, with little or no opposition. Do we subsequently pulverize Berlin, Rome, Paris, and maybe London? I would like to know, and I am sure some people in Europe would be interested, too.

Women In Government

It was reported in your issue of October 7 that I stated, speaking as a substitute speaker for Mrs. Charles W. Tillett, vice chairman of the National Democratic Committee, that I was doubtful that the Democrats would be victorious in the November elections.

I did not make that statement.

Speaking extemporaneously to a small group of about 30 women, members of the Zonta Club, of which three were Democrats and most of the rest Republicans, I stated as a small part of a 20-minute talk on "The Progress of Women in Public Affairs," as follows:

"We three Democrats present here have no doubt about the outcome of the election; but if any here do have any doubts, then women should exert their efforts to see that a Republican Administration equals or surpasses the standard which has been set by the Democratic Administration in appointing women to positions in the Cabinet, as representatives to the United Nations and to the governments of foreign countries."

International Law

Recently we have had from Paris a renewal of our suggestion of sharing with the world our discovery of atomic secrets, through the channel of international control. This is pertinent, for as long as those secrets are in the keeping of one nation that nation will be under the jealousy and suspicion of other nations. But how shall the international control be exercised without jealousies and combinations?

The answer seems to be, through the old channels of international law, freshened and invigorated by conventions, like The Hague. We know that warfare against noncombatants was outlawed. We know that poisoning streams from which the enemy has to drink, is outlawed. We know that spreading the germs of contagious diseases among the ranks of the enemy has been outlawed, and in the recent hostilities we saw the use of poison gas outlawed.

The edicts of international law operate impersonally upon nations as well as individuals. The nation which does not abide by international law becomes an outcast. It is civilization's most confident reliance.

Parochial Schools

Since reading the October 5 letter of Holton R. Small, I have been wondering how it could be considered "a very serious diversion of public funds to private use" for a State which compels the attendance of all children at school to provide bus service for all the children. The parochial schools are built and maintained by Catholic parents, who also pay taxes for the public schools, because they believe it is their right and duty to have their children taught their religion in school.

Who can deny that they take a load off the public schools? If there were no parochial schools there would have to be many more public schools built and maintained out of public funds.

Trees And Traffic

In agreement with the Police Department I believe the trees in the center of New York ave. between 9th and 13th sts. should have been removed some years ago. No doubt they were set out during that unpleasant planting period when the trees were so amassed along the streets that you couldn't see the city for the trees and Washington was penetrated with that somber atmosphere.

On New York ave. the trees in the center of the street are an obstacle to present day traffic and they are in a position to contribute to the accidents, the danger to be increased when buses use the street.

To remove the faults, eliminate the trees in the center as a traffic hazard, produce the right perspective on New York ave., open to clear view the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church and the other landmarks, and then concentrate upon enhancing the value of the trees along the sidewalk and the two small parks.

Word Miscegenation

I am indebted to your estimable sports editor, Shirley Povich, for the information that the presumptive derivation of the sobriquet, Hoya Saxa, as applied to Georgetown athletic teams, is from the combination of the Greek word, hoios, meaning "such a" and the Latin word, saxum, meaning "a rock."

This forced marriage of the Latin with the Hellenic roots is a form of etymological miscegenation which impinges as painfully upon the ears of a Northern classicist such as myself even as the ethnic variety might upon the mind of the average Southerner.

I think a new sobriquet is in order—one conceived in a linguistic purity to match the ideals of a sound mind in a sound body, which ideals are so well exemplified by the Georgetown athletes.

High School Cadets

I want to express my appreciation to Post Reporter Elsie Carper for her timely and excellent article on the Washington High School Cadet Corps which appeared October 3. I read the story with a great deal of interest.

Your reporter evidenced a thorough knowledge of the enrollment problem and I believe the article will create an increased interest in the corps.

Ilse Koch

The case of Ilse Koch, the so-called "bitch" of the Buchenwald concentration camp, has taken on the proportions of a cause celebre with international overtones. It has become a source of concern to United States Senators, the Department of the Army, current editions of national news weeklies, and, within a few hours, a national radio commentator. The Communists were the first to raise the cry of "fascism"—their customary manifesto.

Ilse Koch was sentenced to life imprisonment by a general court-martial at Dachau, Germany, and that sentence was reduced to four years' imprisonment by the reviewing authorities of the Army in Germany.

Anyone who claims that Ilse Koch was an innocent child is probably very badly informed. But the question is not what might have been, nor rumor, nor moral responsibility, nor eternal justice. The question is simply this—was she legally proven guilty of crimes that warranted life imprisonment?

She was not tried for having a lover, nor for having illegitimate children (although many witnesses were present, apparently at the conception of each child), but for certain specified war crimes. If the proof was not there, then she could not be convicted of the crimes. The person of Ilse Koch and the length of her confinement behind bars is simply a prop on which hang ultimate issues, and the concern so far has not been with the ultimate issues, but with Ilse Koch's personality.

Personally, I was associated with the war crimes program in Europe for two years, as prosecutor, defense counsel, reviewing authority and member of a clemency board. I know intimately the course of the Buchenwald concentration camp case from trial to final recommendation. I know the men who reviewed the case, their character, attitudes, beliefs and courage, and any person who intimates that there was any lack of intelligence, courage or sense of moral responsibility in those individuals is simply not aware of their personalities.

They were anything but pro-Nazi; they were what could only be called tough but conscientious attorneys who would not frivolously reduce a life sentence to four years. None of us liked, pitied or favored Ilse Koch, but we all had an ingrained sense of American justice—that same sense that had impelled each of us to quit home and go overseas because somebody somewhere was not being given a fair deal.

The first and most forceful reaction to the Ilse Koch case should be that the American concept of justice and fair play has resulted in the reduction of the woman's sentence. It would have been quite a simple matter for our forces to have swept across Europe with the idea of battling the Nazi theory with Nazi practice. It was not decided that way—and that is now beyond discussion.

The American authorities decided to do things the American way; and in the American way it was found that the case against Ilse Koch did not warrant life imprisonment. We took our American legal concepts in with us when we struck Europe, and it's another question altogether as to whether that was wise or not.

At any rate, Ilse was tried under the American concept of the ground rules of civilized warfare, and she slipped through. If anyone would rather have had her tried otherwise, then that person needs advice on what we fought for. I have seen the newsreels of the trial of those Germans involved in the "bomb plot" against Hitler in 1944, and it should be our proud boast that we didn't have to use those procedures even though a few criminals might have slipped away. If it must become a question—and it has been made such by some—of Ilse Koch or a judicial system, then I suggest that we skip over Ilse and take the judicial system.

Facts Against Wallace

WHILE the evidence increases from day to day to show that Henry Wallace's third party is losing strength, there remains a core of Wallace followers who will vote the third ticket. The great majority of these faithful followers are neither Communists nor fellow travelers.

Many of them are church people and convinced pacifists, who believe that the last and only hope for a peaceful settlement with the Soviet Union is through Wallace. Still others, with faith almost as blind, see Wallace as the true inheritor of the Roosevelt New Deal.

A number of letters from these true believers have come to me in recent weeks. Some of them are angry letters, some of them express hurt surprise that anyone of liberal beliefs should say that the Wallace party is Communist-dominated.

This is an effort to answer those letters. It is an attempt to set out as clearly as possible the reasons why it is difficult or impossible, without willfully shutting one's eyes to the facts, to escape the conclusion that the third party is dominated and manipulated by Communists and slavish fellow travelers.

First, what is a Communist? There are various long and complicated definitions having to do with ideologies. For the purpose of the present controversy it seems to me that an immediate and practical definition is the following:

A Communist is one who has consistently held that Russia is right in everything Russia does and the United States is wrong in everything the United States does.

THE BEST test under this definition is the attitude of the individual between August of 1940 and June 22, 1941. Beginning with the Soviet-Nazi pact, the official Soviet line was that the war was merely a struggle between rival imperialisms. After the German attack on June 21, 1941, it became a battle for freedom and democracy. Any American who echoed that line is in my book a Communist or a fellow traveler who happens to be cheating the party out of its dues by not carrying a card.

This definition, incidentally, is more or less clearly spelled out in the latest Communist doctrine from top authority in Moscow. In essence, Tito's crime is that he put his own country, Yugoslavia, just a little ahead of the Soviet Union. With this as a definition, here are the reasons why it seems to me an inescapable conclusion that the third party is Communist dominated.

1. Most of the men and women in key positions around Wallace have consistently echoed the Soviet line, sometimes both publicly and privately, for the past decade or longer. They switched when Russia's interests switched.

2. In his own speeches Wallace has consistently attacked the United States and defended Russia. His justification is that he feels the need to correct the balance since so many loud and angry attacks are being aimed at the Russians. He has, however, gone far beyond that and especially in his West Coast tour.

3. THE Communist Party in this country and all its branches and stooge organizations have gone all out for the third party. This would not be possible without direction from Moscow.

4. The platforms of the Communist Party and the third party bear striking similarities. They both oppose the Marshall Plan and other foreign aid measures intended for the reconstruction of western Europe.

5. The active opposition to Wallace by most of his former New Deal associates and by labor leaders such as Philip Murray. These men have come to recognize the real objective of Russian Communist intrigue and they regard Wallace as a tragic prisoner.

This list could be considerably extended. But it seems to me that anyone who looks at these facts, and they are indisputable facts, cannot help seeing Wallace in the grim light of reality. This realization is certainly one of the reasons for his declining popularity.

Trying to argue that Russia is invariably right is a difficult business in view of each day's new headlines from Paris. But it does not follow that the United States is always right, either. One of the great and precious privileges enjoyed by American citizens is the right to criticize and argue. It is a privilege that existed only sporadically under Russia's czars and has been ruthlessly abolished under Russia's commissars. The tragedy of Henry Wallace is that he tied himself to the Russian Communist line and that line leads to surrender of integrity, to disaster and oblivion.

Age Discrimination

R. F. Nachtrieb (letter published September 27), in expressing surprise at General Kenney's transfer to a teaching position, ostensibly because of age, sounds like one who has but recently emerged from the Dark Ages. If your correspondent will open his eyes he will see this scheme being put into effect by almost all other employers. Very few people will hire women who are over 35 or men who are past 45. Yet, it is a fact that most of them are far more efficient and dependable—and they lose less time from work because of illness—than younger persons.

Thurmond's Stand

A Communication

Because the leading daily newspapers published in South Carolina have failed to fairly state the facts as to the political situation in this State concerning the 1948 election, and because there is no hope that such newspapers will change their attitude as to this matter prior to November 2, I deem it proper that the record should be kept straight.

The simple truth is that so far as Governor Thurmond is concerned, he never exhibited the slightest interest in State's rights until the majority in the Democratic Convention in Philadelphia adopted an attitude toward the representatives from the Southern States, of which he was one, similar to that which these representatives have been displaying toward minority groups in these same States for many years.

The first action along this line was when the Legislature of South Carolina repealed all statutes which dealt with primary elections, and this notwithstanding the fact that the constitution of this State has a provision specifically commanding the General Assembly to pass laws for the regulation of primary elections. This repealing of these statutes was done only after the United States Supreme Court had ruled that Negroes having the general qualifications for suffrage as prescribed by the laws of South Carolina could not be denied the right to participate in such primary elections.

THE SECOND action was when—with deliberate purpose to evade and circumvent the laws of South Carolina as set forth in the constitution and statutes of said State—the May, 1948, Democratic convention set up in the "Voting Rules and Party Principles," the requirements that to be eligible to read and write the constitution, but also be able to interpret that instrument.

Also, that such persons were required to state under oath an understanding of, belief in and commitment to support "the principles of the Democratic Party of South Carolina," as well as the belief in and support of "the social, religious and educational separation of the races."

Although the distinguished gentleman who now heads the States' Rights ticket held the office of superintendent of education for Edgefield County, senator from the same county and circuit judge in addition to that of Governor of the State, he is not on record as ever having at any time, even by way of suggestion, tried to obtain for any member of the Negro race of this State the enjoyment of the right to act as a juror

The distinguished candidate certainly cannot plead ignorance of the fact that there are many Negroes in this State who are fully qualified in all respects to be jurors, and this under the laws of South Carolina.

If he is so sincerely committed to the idea that the rights of the State should be enforced, does it not seem reasonable that in the hundreds of instances in which he charged grand juries throughout the State when he was on the bench he would have pointed out this great wrong which was being done to a minority group of citizens?

AGAIN, it does not seem out of place to point out that when the members of the General Assembly of South Carolina made an illegal raid on the public treasury and undertook to pay themselves a much larger sum than the plain letter of the contract provided they should receive, this same alleged preserver of the State's rights approved the Act, thereby becoming party to the rape of the State's Constitution.

And again, according to widely published statements in the South Carolina press, certain members of the courts of South Carolina on the Supreme and Circuit Benches have been paid and have retained large sums of money to which they are not legally entitled according to the plain letter of the constitutional contract under which they have been employed. But this same alleged defender of the State's rights has not lifted a finger or said one word by way of preserving the integrity of this most essential State's right!

CERTAINLY it is true that the growth of centralized government in these United States is a grave and menacing danger to the people. Certainly it is true that our people should be instructed to the effect that "the citizen should lean on his State for nothing that his own arm can do; on his Nation for nothing that his State can do, that his home is his castle and that his sovereignty rests beneath his own hat." But the cry, "State's rights! State's rights!" should carry no conviction to the hearts of men who are sincerely committed to that system of government when such cries are made through the lips of men who have kept those lips closed until because of their illegal and unconstitutional acts the Federal courts have been compelled to declare that they have taken themselves outside of all law, both State and national. There is an old saying, but a true one, "What you do speaks so loud I cannot hear what you say."

IT IS the sincere hope of the writer that no intelligent citizen in any of the States will suffer himself or herself to be mislead into believing that any good can come to any part of this Nation through the activities of this States Rights Party.

Goucher College Head Cautions On Teaching 'Americanism'

Baltimore, Oct. 8 (AP).—War and more war is inevitable until men become capable of understanding each other better than they do now, the President of Goucher College told about 6000 teachers today.

The speaker, Dr. Otto F. Kraushaar, addressing a session of the eighty-first convention of the Maryland State Teachers Association, cautioned them against teaching straight "Americanism."

Americanism, in its narrow sense, is associated with exclusiveness, interference with civil liberties, racial antagonism and bigotry and intolerance of every sort, he said.

"Our schools, and particularly those which are supported by taxation, are under considerable pressure to teach patriotism and to indoctrinate our children in American ideals," he said.

"I think we should be very careful today and make sure we are teaching them the principles upon which this Nation was founded and not indoctrinating them with 'Americanism.'"

"I am not going to propose as a remedy that the schools offer a new course in international understanding.

"International understanding is a state of mind, a quality which is the fruit of education rather than a part of its subject matter.

". . . This is only another way of saying that the chief function of education and of culture is to bring man into communication with man, not as Americans speaking to Frenchmen, but as men communicating with other men."

The third and final general session will begin at 10 a. m. tomorrow. John W. Vandercook, news commentator, will speak on "Is the Marshall Plan Working?"

Rockville Traffic Bottleneck Relief Is Promised by Beall

Federal aid to eliminate "the worst traffic bottleneck" in Maryland was promised Rockville business and civic leaders yesterday by Congressman J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.).

Thirty leaders attended the meeting in Hungerford Tavern to map strategy for realization of a long sought alternate route through the town to relieve congestion.

Businessmen have proposed a one-way rerouting of west-bound traffic on Route 240 beginning at Baltimore rd., through the Bridge and High st. intersection and the Viers property, reentering 240 about one quarter mile north of the town.

Beall told the gathering that the State Roads Commission had admitted to him the present Route 240 through Rockville is "the worst bottleneck" in the State. He said the proposed alternate route could be financed 50 per cent by Federal funds.

On Beall's suggestion, Mayor G. La Mar Kelly, jr., proposed a committee be formed to call on Governor W. Preston Lane, jr., with a request for construction of the project.

Beall said he had discussed the proposed plan three times with the Governor, who, he said, was "favorably inclined" toward the idea.

Alban Towers Rents Debated

Owners of the Alban Towers Apartments, Wisconsin and Massachusetts aves. nw., testified yesterday before District Rent Examiner James G. Tyson that yearly operating costs had increased more than $80,000 since 1941. They asked for a 10 per cent increase in rents on 226 furnished and unfurnished units.

Attorneys for the tenants' association of the apartments claimed the 1941 figures, based on records of a previous owner, were far too low.

Present owners, Meyer and Ada Revitz, purchased the building last March from Simon Gerber, who had in turn purchased the apartments from its builders, Baer & Schoik, in 1942.

Will Montgomery County Get Its Charter?

Have you followed the political fireworks over Montgomery County's proposed charter form of government? Residents of the county will vote November 2 on a new "streamlined" setup which has traveled a rocky road to the polls.

What is in the charter, the fight over its provisions, and the changes it would make in the government will be reviewed for Post readers Sunday in a special Section II story. Scenes of the county's outstanding activities and pictures of the people involved in the charter fight will illustrate the article.

It's another feature you'll find good reading in Sunday's Washington Post.

Wallace's Finish

By Mark Sullivan

Meaning Of Candidate Withdrawals

MR. HENRY WALLACE and his Progressive Party can now be written about safely in the past tense. This is probably true both as respects making a formidable showing in the coming presidential election, and as respects what weighs with them more, the hope of being formidable in 1952.

Sullivan

An evidence of their weakness, and likely to be a cause of more, is their withdrawal of their candidates for Congress in some 20 districts. The decision to do this was apparently not in accord with Mr. Wallace's personal judgment; when the step was announced he is said to have groaned. A groan of regret could have reflected good political judgment, if Mr. Wallace has that quality, and in any event knowledge of American political history.

The withdrawal of candidates for Congress, regardless of the reason or purpose, means with other conditions, that the Progressive Party will elect very few Congressmen next November, possibly close to none. And failure to elect Congressmen means doom to the hope any new party can have of becoming formidable and permanent. No matter how many votes the presidential candidate of a new third party may get, failure to elect Congressmen means that the party has not taken hold on the people at the grass roots.

The lesson was learned by Theodore Roosevelt when he founded the Progressive Party of an older day and of a very different kind. He, as presidential candidate of the Progressive Party in 1912, got a larger popular vote than the Republicans, and carried six States to the Republican's two. This seemed, to the more fervid of Roosevelt's followers, to establish the Progressives as not merely a third party but as the second one.

But Roosevelt himself knew better. When he saw that the Progressives had elected less than 20 members of Congress out of a total of 531, he knew that the new party had not taken root. This, however, he could not say publicly, for such a statement would have been a shock to millions of emotionally zealous and confidently hopeful members of the party.

Two years later, in the 1914 elections for Congressmen, Governor and other offices, the Progressives had candidates and Roosevelt stumped for some of them. Though he was obliged to act as if the Progressive Party had a future, he went on his speech-making tours with a heavy heart, saying to friends, "I am dragging a dead horse." He knew there was ahead of him the extremely disagreeable job of finding some way to wind the party up and bury it. This was done in 1916, and the two old parties and the two-party system came back firmly.

The disintegration of Mr. Wallace's Progressive Party has already begun. When announcement of it was first made nearly a year ago, estimates of its expected strength ran as high as seven million votes. Today the common estimate is some two and a half million. This fading out of Mr. Wallace's third party is one of several current signs of increased vigor in the two-party political system.

What is taking place beneath the furore of this campaign is the two-party system in a transition from one to the other. In the process the role of the Democrats, after a long tenure of power, is to sit out while awaiting a new turn. While waiting, their function is to remain a going concern, sluffing off extreme dissidents and moving toward a new unity for a new opportunity.

In this situation, the candidate for Vice President, Senator Alben W. Barkley, is a truer symbol of the party than is Mr. Truman. Whatever the forces and whoever the leaders who brought about the nomination of Mr. Barkley, their action was prophetic and perhaps was so intended. Mr. Barkley is a meeting point for moderates of both the left wing and the right. It is symbolic that he comes from a border State, Kenutcky. Acquaintance with him as a faithful party workhorse through 34 years in the House and Senate, and knowledge that his temperament is not susceptible to extremes, makes him acceptable to the orthodox party leaders.

At the same time his leadership of the party in the Senate through eight years of Roosevelt's presidency, during which he was the protagonist for Roosevelt's legislative proposals, causes New Dealers and other moderates of the left wing to feel kindly toward him. No group feels animosity toward him.

As Mr. Barkley trudges patiently up and down the country making party speeches of the traditional kind, free from the noisy provocativeness of Mr. Truman, perhaps he understands what his role is. It is to keep the party a going concern in preparation for a probable period of Republican power, which would be regarded without rancor as a normal working of the two-party system.

Settlement Reached In 11-Day Kroger Strike

Carbondale, Ill., Oct. 8 (AP).—Settlement of an 11-day strike, which resulted in closure of a number of southern Illinois Kroger stores, was announced today by a union representative.

One hundred and twenty warehouse and transportation workers, affiliated with the United Mine Workers' District 50, went on strike September 28. The strike idled Kroger's Carbondale branch warehouse which serves more than 120 Kroger stores in this region.

The union representative, Smithie Weathers, declined to divulge the terms.

Ruling Blocks Extra McLean Tax Collection

By The Associated Press

A Treasury attempt to collect an extra $4974 in taxes from wealthy socialite Edward B. McLean, jr., was blocked by a United States Tax Court ruling yesterday.

The case grew out of an agreement by McLean, son of the late Evalyn Walsh McLean and Edward B. McLean, sr., onetime publisher of The Washington Post, on support payments to his former wife, Ann Meem. McLean's address was given in the opinion as Colorado Springs, Colo.

The couple was divorced in Nevada on June 1, 1943, and McLean agreed to pay her $4458 a month for 12 yars and 1229 a month after that. In case she remarried the payments were to be reduced to $2355 monthly for the 12 years and $1125 thereafter.

The complicated agreement also provided for a scale-down in the payments when their daughter, Emily or son Edward 3d became 21 or married or died, since the payments also were to be applied toward their support.

The tax issue arose when McLean's wife remarried in 1947. The Revenue Bureau contended that her remarriage freed McLean of support obligations toward her, and that $24,287 he was due to pay her subsequently was taxable under the levy applicable on gifts.

The court ruled that the agreement's terms did not make that a "gift" but a proper promise by McLean to pay support funds in return for his "release from marital claims."

Fireman Likes FCC Proposal

By The Associated Press

The harrassed Federal Communications Commission finally found a happy man yesterday.

For days the commission has listened to unhappy people who don't like the way it proposes to shift frequencies for so-called mobile broadcasting. The stories have been pretty much the same—"We need more and better wavelengths."

But yesterday Chief James E. Granger of the Cleveland Fire Department got the floor. Everything's fine, he said.

The commission proposes to allocate eight wave-lengths for the exclusive use of fire departments with others available upon showing of need.

In the past, Granger said, fire departments have had to depend pretty much upon police radio systems. It generally worked out, he said, that when the fire department needed radio, so did the police.

The FCC also proposes to authorize fire departments in smaller cities to use radio and to make volunteer departments eligible for frequencies.

That's just dandy, said Granger, who also is president of the International Association of Fire Chiefs.

But the police were just as unhappy as Granger was happy.

Zellon Audritsch of the Indiana State police said that in the juggling police would lose useful frequencies. He spoke for the Associated Police Communication officers and the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

"And," he stressed, "radio is the most effective tool in the hands of the police today."

U. S. Acts to Speed Up Refugee Immigration

The State Department took steps yesterday to speed up the immigration of 205,000 European refugees into the United States.

It announced it is rushing 72 visa experts to Europe to help provide clearance for the thousands of homeless men, women and children seeking to start life anew in America.

Legal Skirmish Causes Delay In Hearing on American Bosch

By The Associated Press

Skirmish in the court battle to determine whether Swedes or Germans were the wartime owners of the American Bosch Co. ended in a delay yesterday.

At issue yesterday was whether United States Government attorneys will be allowed to question two Swedish financiers, Marcus and Jacob Wallenberg.

Judge David A. Pine of United States District Court, who heard the arguments, called for new arguments November 9. He indicated he will rule then on whether the Government lawyers may go to Stockholm to take depositions from the Wallenbergs.

Depositions Requested

John J. Burling, attorney representing the United States Alien Property Custodian, wanted permission to take the depositions sooner. Judge Pine ruled against him. The court said that since the Government already has submitted written questions for the Wallenbergs, he would await their filing before ruling on the depositions.

Judge Pine asked that the answers to the written questions be filed by November 1.

During yesterday's arguments, Burling told Judge Pine:

"We charge them (the Wallenbergs) with entering into negotiations with the Germans to hide the real ownership of American Bosch."

He also asserted that the Wallenbergs "destroyed documents" in their files when they learned the United States Government was investigating the ownership of 535,000 shares (a 77 per cent interest) in American Bosch.

The Alien Property Custodian seized the 535,000 shares in 1942. The stock was sold publicly in 1946 to Amara Corp. of New York for $6,129,748.

Eight Million Involved

Stockholm Enskilda Bank, Aktiebolaget Vargas and Svenska Aktiebolaget subsequently sued for this amount, plus dividends on the stock. The total involved is about eight million dollars. The three firms contend the stock was actually owned by Swedish interests, and not by Germans, as the United States Government alleges. The Wallenberg brothers own interests in all three firms.

Howard Milman and Victor Futter of the New York law firm of Sullivan & Cromwell, and Hugh O'Bear, a Washington attorney, appeared for the Swedish plaintiffs. They said Inzer Wyatt of the firm of Sullivan & Cromwell already is in Sweden getting the answers. He is due back late this month, they said.

Glaziers Win Pay Increase; Strike Ended

Settlement of the week-old strike by 150 members of the AFL Glaziers Union, Local 963, was announced yesterday by Federal Conciliator Jay Oliver.

Workers are to return to their jobs Monday under an agreement providing for wage increases ranging from 10 to 16 cents an hour, Oliver said.

After a seven-hour parley lasting until 2 a. m. yesterday, representatives of management and labor met again in the afternoon to reach final terms, which were later approved by union membership.

Under the terms, glaziers are to receive $2.25 an hour, a 16-cent-an-hour increase, which was what they had asked. Inside workers are to receive a 10-to-15-cent an hour increase, with a new hourly scale of $1.15, $1.40 and $1.75. The expired contract provided for an hourly scale of $1, $1.30, and $1.65. The union had asked 5 cents an hour more for inside workers than the terms agreed to.

Inside workers are to receive an extra week's vacation after five years' service, in addition to the present one week allowed after one year's service. There are no vacation provisions for glaziers under the old contract or new terms.

Other provisions in the new terms:

Change the ratio of apprentices from one to every five regularly employed journeymen to one to every three.

Change overtime pay figured on a 40-hour week, from double time to time and one half, during any day except Sundays or holidays, when double time would apply.

The contract is to be for one year with an option to renegotiate overtime terms within six months, Oliver said.

GE Officials Convicted of Price Fixing

New York, Oct. 8 (AP).—A Federal judge today convicted the General Electric Co. and five other defendants of violating the antitrust laws by conspiring to monopolize trade in hard metal compositions.

Judge John C. Knox, who gave the verdict after more than a year's consideration, said he believed "this is the first criminal patent pool antitrust case."

"The defendants engaged in direct price fixing," he ruled.

Convicted with the giant electrical firm were two of its subsidiaries, the International General Electric Co. of New York and the Carboloy Co. of Detroit, and three individuals—Walter G. Robbins of Detroit, president of Carboloy; Zay Jeffries of Cleveland, chairman of the board of Carboloy, and Walter M. Stearns of Schenectady, N. Y., former General Electric manager of trade relations and special accounts.

The three companies are subject to possible fines totaling $25,000 each, the individuals to similar fines and possible imprisonment of five years each.

A former German munitions trust, Friedrich Krupp Aktiengesellshaft, was named in the indictment, but was not tried because it was outside the court's jurisdiction.

The Government charged the defendants conspired to monopolize production and control prices of carbide hard metal compositions through an international cartel.

General Electric said in a statement:

"The law applicable to situations of this kind is in a state of utter chaos. A decision by the United States Supreme Court as late as March of this year—upon which the trial court relied in part in this case—showed that the justices of the Supreme Court are themselves in fundamental disagreement as to the applicable principles.

"In fact, the controlling opinion in that case (the United States vs Line Material Co.) was subscribed to by only one justice of the Supreme Court.

"Where the law is in a state of flux and judges cannot agree as to its interpretation, the Department of Justice might better, in all fairness, test the legal question by bringing a civil action to terminate the practice complained of, then subject the parties to criminal prosecution.

"If businessmen must act in such cases under the constant threat of a criminal conviction when the judges themselves cannot agree upon the boundaries of right and wrong, then there are dark days ahead for the development of new business enterprises."

Dirksen Urges National Road Safety Drive

A national safety campaign to prevent traffic deaths was urged yesterday by Representative Everett Dirksen (R., Ill.), chairman of the House District Committee, to delegates of the American Trucking Associations, Inc., at the Mayflower Hotel.

The congressional leader outlined his plan, "Operation Safety," before more than a thousand persons at an opening luncheon of a six-day convention of representatives of the trucking industry. The great number of traffic fatalities, he declared, make it imperative that every driver give sustained attention to the task of saving lives on the highways.

Representative Dirksen emphasized the need of a "vigorous task force" composed of motor-vehicle drivers whose aim would be the reduction of danger, damage and death from traffic accidents.

Last night more than 2500 members of the associations from every State, England and Canada had registered for the convention. Sessions are being held in both the Mayflower and Statler Hotels.

Highlight of the convention will be the eighth national truck rodeo, a contest to select a national truck driver champion. Semifinals in the contest will be held today beginning at 8 a. m. on 15th st., between Constitution ave., aand E st. nw. Finals will be held at 8 p. m. Sunday in the District National Guard Armory.

During the convention the organization will elect new officers, act on problems of taxation and road-building, insurance, labor relations and other problems of the industry. They will discuss accident prevention measures and steps to facilitate interchange of freight trailers.

Today, Russell J. Hopley, civil defense planning director, will discuss the importance of the trucking industry in the country's defense, at a luncheon at 12:15 p. m. at the Statler. Other scheduled speakers during the convention include Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service, and Eric Sevareid, Washington correspondent and commentator for the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Churches to Make Chest Drive Appeal

Red Feather Sunday will be observed at Protestant and Catholic churches on Sunday. Jewish congregations have named today as Red Feather Sabbath.

Ministers, priests and rabbis have been requested to hold special services centered around the welfare needs of the community, according to Chauncey G. Parker, general chairman of the $4,566,790 Community Chest drive.

Bishop Angus Dun, president of the Washington Federation of Churches, wrote to more than 600 Protestant ministers urging that they use Red Feather Sunday "for arousing the Christian conscience to full realization of the importance of the Red Feather to so many people who, but for our social agencies, might be 'passed by on the other side'."

In a message to all Catholics in the Washington archdiocese, Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle appealed to all Catholic people to "give generously and wholeheartedly to the current campaign of the Community Chest Federation."

A similar letter was sent to Jewish congregations by the Rabbinical Council of Washington.

The Rev. C. Leslie Glenn, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, Lafayette Square, and chairman of the Committee on Religious Life in the Nation's Capital, last night said the day "is the great opportunity for church members to demonstrate their devotion to their Lord's command to feed the hungry, clothe the naked and heal the sick."

The Rev. Peter Marshall, pastor of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church and chaplain of the Senate, also emphasized the responsibility of all for the less fortunate in his comment on Red Feather Sunday.

Mass Meeting Set

D. C. Mission To Mark 64th Anniversary

Gov. Luther D. Youngdahl, of Minnesota, will speak at a mass meeting marking the sixty-fourth anniversary of the Central Union Mission at 3 p. m. Sunday at Constitution Hall.

The meeting is one of several events scheduled for the anniversary of the mission, which is supported by a group of Washington churches. Tonight at 8 o'clock the annual election of officers will take place at the mission, 613 C st. nw., and on Sunday at 8 p. m. there will be a special religious service at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 900 Massachusetts ave. nw.

Governor Youngdahl will speak on "The Great Frontiers of Human Engineering" at the Constitution Hall service. Music will be furnished by a trio of Homer Rodeheaver, Ruth Rodeheaver Thomas and B. D. Ackley and the children's choirs of Calvary Baptist Church.

Earlier in the day, the Minnesota Governor will speak at two all-lay services at 9:30 and 11 a. m. at Augustana Lutheran Church, New Hampshire ave. and V st. nw. Youngdahl's sister is the wife of the Rev. Clarence T. Nelson, pastor of Augustana Church.

Mrs. Sheerin Writes a Book On Life of Parson's Wife

"If you want an exciting life, marry a parson," advises Mrs. Maria Williams Sheerin, widow of Dr. Charles W. Sheerin, former rector of the Church of the Epiphany, 1317 G st. nw.

Mrs. Sheerin

Now living with her parents and two daughters in Richmond, Va., Mrs. Sheerin made the remark in discussing her first book, "The Parson Takes a Wife," to be released October 19 by the Macmillan Co.

Mrs. Sheerin writes from 23 years of experience as the wife of an Episcopal clergyman. Although she originally had no intention of marrying into the ministry, she was to discover that life could be both normal and extremely pleasant with a man who did not find it amiss to referee a football game or enjoy square dancing on occasion.

When a New York magazine rejected one of her articles on the ground that it did not accurately portray a parson's life, Dr. Sheerin encouraged her to continue. Before his death last April, he had the pleasure of knowing that "The Parson Takes a Wife" has been accepted.

Mrs. Sheerin's first position was with a blind minister in Richmond. While entertaining visiting clergymen for him she met the engaging young Irishman, Charles Sheerin. "Thus one parson led to another," she wrote.

Dr. Sheerin's spirit lives on in a son, Charles, jr., who plans to enter the Episcopal ministry, and in his wife, whose next project is a detective novel.

Mrs. Sheerin will be in Washington October 23 to autograph copies of her book at St. John's Book Stall, 821 16th st. nw.

$800,000 Goal

New York Ave. Church Plans Fund Drive

A two-month drive for funds to erect a new New York Avenue Presbyterian Church will get under way with a loyalty dinner at 7 p. m. Monday at the National Guard Armory.

Details of the $800,000 drive, which will be concluded on Thanksgiving, will be announced at the meeting.

The new building will be erected on the site of the present church at 13th and New York aves. nw.

New York Avenue Church was founded 145 years ago, and the present building has been in use for nearly 90 years. At least six Presidents, including Abraham Lincoln and John Quincy Adams, have worshiped with the church congregation.

For several years the present building has been inadequate. Hundreds of worshipers are turned away each week, or must attend services in ground floor rooms and hear the sermon over a public address system.

The loyalty dinner, to which some 2000 persons have been invited, will be the first time all members of the church have gathered in the same place. They will be guests of the church officers and board members.

The campaign will provide funds for enlargement of the building, which is to be restored in its present architecture. About $200,000 has already been raised.

Dr. Peter Marshall, who is also chaplain of the Senate, has been minister of the church since 1937. He will speak at the dinner.

Other speakers will be Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, Dr. John W. Rustin, pastor of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, and Dr. J. Hillman Hollister, moderator of the Presbytery of Washington City.

Sunday CHURCH EVENTS

"What Really Happened at Amsterdam" will be the subject of a talk by Dr. Frederick E. Reissig at 8 p. m. at the National Presbyterian Church, Connecticut ave. and N st. nw.

Dr. Reissig, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, returned recently from Amsterdam, where he was public relations officer for the World Council of Churches. In addition, he spent the summer of 1947 touring nine European countries.

A service of consecration for deaconesses will follow the 11 a. m. worship at John Wesley A. M. E. Zion Church, 14th and Corcoran sts. nw. Dr. Stephen Gill Spottswood, the minister, will officiate. Preacher at the service will be the Rev. Adhoh H. Pagan, minister of St. Francis A. M. E. Zion Church, Port Chester, N. Y.

Dr. Sidney Malcolm Berry, secretary of the International Congregational Council, will preach at Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, 1410 Columbia rd. nw. at 11 a. m. Dr. Berry is in the United States to promote the growth of the council, which was formed to bring members of the Congregational fellowship closer to each other through exchange of ministers.

The Rev. C. William Sprenkel, pastor for Lutheran students in the Baltimore-Washington area, will preach at Atonement Lutheran Church, Rhode Island ave. and North Capitol st. at 9 and 11 a. m. The Rev. Paul L. Reaser, pastor of the church, is in Philadelphia attending a convention of the Lutheran Church of America.

First Sermon By Epiphany's New Rector

The Rev. Leland W. F. Stark, new pastor of the Church of the Epiphany, 1317 G st. nw., will deliver his first sermon at 11 a. m. Sunday.

Stark

His theme will be "A Church That Is Really Adequate." At 8 p. m. he will speak on "Discovering God's Will in Daily Life."

Mr. Stark succeeds the late Dr. Charles W. Sheerin, who died last spring. The work of the 106 year-old church has been carried on since then by the Rev. Richard Williams, associate rector, who will remain with the church in that capacity.

The new rector has been dean of Calvary Cathedral, Sioux Falls, S. Dak., for many years. He was a member of the executive council of the Province of the Northwest and a member of the executive council of the Missionary District of South Dakota.

Dr. Stark was born in Evanston, Ill., the son of a Lutheran minister. He attended the University of Minnesota and was graduated from Gustavus Adolphus College, St. Peter, Minn. He did postgraduate work at Chicago Theological Seminary and Seabury-Western Theological Seminary.

After his ordination in 1935, Mr. Stark was pastor in charge of several small churches near Windom, Minn., for three years. He then became rector of Ascension Church, Stillwater, Minn. He is married and has two children.

The Starks will be honored at a reception given by the wardens and vestrymen of the church at the parish hall Thursday from 4 to 8 p. m.

Church to Honor Members in War

A bronze plaque dedicated to members of the congregation who served in the armed forces during World War II will be unveiled at 11 a. m. Sunday at the Church of the Pilgrims, 22d and P sts. nw.

The dedicatory address will be made by Admiral William N. Thomas, chief of chaplains of the Navy, and representatives of the Army and Air Force chiefs of chaplains will be present.

The names of eight church members killed in the war will be inscribed on the plaque, Dr. Andrew R. Bird, the pastor, has announced.

'Recovery of Urgency' Will Be Sermon Topic

"The Recovery of Urgency" is the subject of a sermon to be delivered by the Rev. Harry L. Bell at 10:50 a. m. Sunday at Columbia Heights Christian Church, 1435 Park rd. nw. It will be based on the Third Commandment, and is one of a series of talks on "Foundations for Rebuilding a Broken World."

Rev. Gatti to Start Lecture Series Monday

The Rev. Lawrence P. Gatti, assistant pastor of St. Stephen's Church, will begin fall classes in Catholic teaching Monday at 8 p. m. at the parish rectory, 2436 Pennsylvania ave. nw.

The Monday evening lecture series will continue until Christmas.

Luther Place Memorial To Start Fall Schedule

Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas Circle, will begin its fall schedule on Sunday. Matins will be at 9:45 a. m. and the main service at 11 a. m. Vespers will be conducted at 5:30 p. m.

James M. Singer, assistant pastor, will preach on "Wisdom for Today" at the two morning services and "So Be It" in the evening.

Sermon Series Begins At Brightwood Park

The Rev. Thomas B. Ehlers, pastor of Brightwood Park Methodist Church, 8th and Jefferson sts. nw., will begin a sermon series on "This Is Our Faith" at 11 a. m. Sunday.

Mrs. Vivian Proud Cameron, a former missionary in China, has been named assistant to Mr. Ehlers. She is a graduate of Western Reserve University and Oberlin Theological Seminary.

Lutherans Report 56 New Churches

Success Hailed

Religious Revival Seen In Assembly

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 8 (AP).—The World Mission assembly closed today and was hailed by a leader as the beginning of a world-wide revival of religious life.

Ralph E. Diffendorfer, who conceived the idea for the gathering of 3000 delegates from every Protestant denomination, described the three-day meeting as a success "beyond our wildest dreams."

Dr. Diffendorfer, presiding officer of the assembly and executive secretary of the Methodist Church's foreign missions division, said:

"This convention marks the start of a revival of religious life both in the United States and the rest of the world. The reflex action in religious life will be tremendous."

It was the largest Protestant meeting in 23 years.

Philadelphia, Oct. 8 (AP).—More new congregations were organized in 1946 and 1947 than in any other two years of history of the United Lutheran Church, delegates to the church's 16th biennial convention were told today.

The Rev. William C. Schaeffer of Allentown, Pa., reporting as president of the Board of American Missions of the United Lutheran Church in America, described the past biennium of the church "as the busiest in our history."

Congregations were organized at the rate of a new one every two weeks for a total of 56, the Rev. Mr. Schaeffer said, which added a total of 4201 confirmed charter members.

To Have Beer or Not— Issue Is Bypassed

Philadelphia, Oct. 8 (AP).—To have a beer—or not to have a beer—that was the question put briefly before the United Lutheran Church of America members today.

P. George Grover of Arlington, Va., didn't commit himself on his taste or lack of taste for beverages alcoholic, but he moved that the convention table a recommendation that asked the church to urge its members "to give consideration to the effect of their own use of alcoholic beverages, even in moderation, in their own lives and on those less disciplined than themselves."

But before the pros or cons could test their strength the lunch gong clanged. It was bypassed later.

Lutheran Committees Preparing Reports

Fremont, Ohio, Oct. 8 (AP).—Delegates to the American Lutheran convention spent today in committee sessions.

Among the subjects considered by the committees were proposals for Lutheran unity, revision of the common liturgy of the church, a statement of policy on social problems and a statement on Lutheran participation in the World Council of Churches.

Evangelistic Rites Set at 35 Churches

Evangelistic services will begin Sunday at 35 churches in the D. C. Baptist Convention.

Preachers from 13 States will join in the campaign, which continues through October 24, according to the Rev. Frank Brasington, director of the missions department of the convention.

Preaching evangelism and home visitation will be features of the two-week drive, he said. There also will be minister breakfasts October 11 through 15 at 8 a. m. at Luther Rice Memorial Baptist Church and October 18 through 22 at 8 a. m. at Petworth Baptist Church.

Dr. Dale Moody, professor of theology at Southern Baptist Seminary, Louisville, Ky., will speak at 8 p. m. Sunday at First Baptist Church, 16th and O sts. nw. and at 7:15 p. m. at First Baptist Church October 11 through 15. At Luther Rice Memorial Baptist Church, 5315 North Capitol st., the speaker will be the Rev. Clyde Taylor of the National Association of Evangels. On October 10, 17 and 24 he will preach at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. and October 11 through 15 and 18 through 22 at 8 p. m.

Dr. E. Gibson Davis, pastor of Temple Baptist Church, Memphis, Tenn., will speak at 8 p. m. Sunday through Friday at Takoma Park Baptist Church.

At Temple Baptist Church, 10th and N sts. nw., the services at 8 p. m. Monday through Friday will be under the direction of Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Dawson. Dr. Dawson is executive secretary of the Joint Conference Committee on Public Relations for the Baptists of the United States.

Dr. George Arthur Clarke, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, Towson, Md., will be guest minister at the initial evangelistic service at 8 p. m. Sunday at Chevy Chase Baptist Church, 5671 Western ave. nw.

Dr. Abram Simon Monument To Be Dedicated

Dedication of a memorial monument to Dr. Abram Simon, rabbi of the Washington Hebrew Congregation from 1904 until his death in 1938, will take place at 11 a. m. Sunday at the cemetery of the congregation at 1380 Alabama ave. se.

Dr. Simon

The ceremony will be held in connection with the annual memorial service at the cemetery. It takes place each year on the Sunday between Rosh Hashonah and Yom Kippur. At the same time a section of the cemetery, to be known as the Abram Simon Memorial, also will be dedicated.

Novel Recording Device Used At Congressional Hearings

The Washington Post

SILENT HELPER—Horace L. Webb, inventor of the dictavox, shows June Proffit of 453 Mellon st. se. how it's used. The user's voice is recorded through a device which covers the nose and mouth, making the voice unheard in the room

A novel substitute for stenography, which its Vienna, Va., inventor claims is the most revolutionary change in 2000 years, has been introduced at congressional hearings and in a local school room.

It is called the dictavox, and was thought of back in 1939 by Horace L. Webb, now 35, when he was a court reporter in Chicago.

Webb, who was taking Gregg shorthand notes in a court case, decided that it was easier to repeat the spoken word than to write it in shorthand.

So he set to work to perfect a machine that would do just that. The resulting dictavox is a tubular device covering the nose and mouth of the user. Inside the dictavox, a microphone records sound. It is connected with a recording machine, on which are vinylite records, about five-thousandths of an inch thick. Once the recording is made, the record can be played back immediately. It is a permanent, nonbreakable record.

The trick to the dictavox is in correct breathing. Be.t way for the stenographer to breathe is to tilt the vox mask when inhaling, so that breathing sounds will not be recorded.

A gadget in the mask deadens any words spoken into the microphone, so that a person can repeat testimony as it is given in a crowded court or hearing room without having his words audible even to the nearest person.

Webb said the dictavox now is being used by a blind veteran at George Washington University to take lecture notes. It has been used in congressional hearings before both Senate and House committees. It also is being used overseas by an American Government representative in the United States occupied zone of Germany.

A dictavox sells for about $200, and a recording machine for about $300, making the total cost about $500.

The inventor, who lives in Vienna, Va., and has offices at 261 Constitution ave. nw., last spring formed a corporation in Delaware with three other men, all local residents. Members are Frank Kenney, , of 513 Adams dr., Falls Church; Harold Steinman, 32, of 513 Adams dr., Falls Church, and Wallace Collins, 30, of 9th and Independence ave. sw.

Larkin Will Names Polio Aide

The principal beneficiary of the $130,000 estate of Dr. Edward Larkin, orthopedic surgeon and physician to the Washington American League baseball club, is Mrs. Hazel B. Wyatt, assistant to the executive secretary of the district Chapter, National Infantile Paralysis Foundation.

The will was filed for probate yesterday in District Court. Dr. Larkin, 2500 Q st. nw., was 66 when he died August 18 in Georgetown University Hospital. He once was athletic coach at Georgetown and at Carlisle Institute. He left about $130,000 in property, debts of about $28,000, no widow or children. His will, executed the day he died, described Mrs. Wyatt as "a faithful friend of long standing."

Mrs. Wyatt, a widow of 45, lives at 2745 29th st. nw., and had known Dr. Larkin since her childhood. She receives his farm near Rockville, Md., free and clear. Certain stocks were left to others, and the residue put in a trust fund, the income of which goes to Dr. Larkin's sisters, Sarah L. Hess and Delia L. Reynan, Ithaca, N. Y., as long as they and their husbands live. Then the trust fund reverts to Mrs. Wyatt.

Lutheran Drive Center Designated

The Lutheran Church Center, 736 Jackson pl. nw., has been designated downtown collection center for the Lutheran World Relief Drive now in progress among the 35 Lutheran churches in Washington. The center will be open from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. daily except Sunday.

Three-F Comedy Gets 4-F Rating

By Richard L. Coe

"FEUDIN', FUSSIN' AND A-FIGHTIN'," at the Capitol, is one of those low-level jobs about which it is pointless to complain . . . The picture trade would dub it "okay for the second part of a double bill" and it's got its moments of amusement, though it does seem out of place in the lush F st. heaven . . . Marjorie Main is on tap to play the mayor of a minute Western town, Percy Kilbride is there to give her a few coy moments and the mainstay is that Mickey Rooney of the B's, Donald O'Connor . . . Donald is reluctant to represent Rimrock in the big annual footrace with Big Bend, so Marjorie shanghais him and you know the rest . . . Donald varies his mickeyrooneyisms to make like Gene Kelly dancing around a barn and to join Penny Edwards in an Astaire-Rogers dance . . . There's nothing particularly original in all this, but it is unpretentious and you'll find some laughs, the sort you may be more accustomed to having laughed at in two-reel comedies . . . The title might as well be "Hamlet," in fact you probably could make a good case for calling it "Hamlet." . . . Since they're calling it what they do, they make their own case by inserting Dorothy Shay's hit as background music for the final sequence . . . After all, Milton Berle gets along fine by lifting other people's material; what's wrong with inserting something here and there that you've seen before? . . . "F-F-n-F" presumes to be more than low-level fun, so let's let it go at that.

"Feudin', Fussin' and A'Fightin'," a Universal-International picture produced by Leonard Goldstein, directed by George Sherman, screen play by D. D. Beauchamp from his own story, songs by Burton Lane and Al Dubin, Andy Razaf and Paul Denniker, Al Jolson, Dave Dreyer and Billy Rose. At the Capitol.

THE CAST

Wilbur McMurtry ..... Donald O'Connor
Maribel Matthews ..... Marjorie Main
Billy Caswell ..... Percy Kilbride
Libby Matthews ..... Penny Edwards
Sharkey Dolan ..... Joe Besser
Chauncey ..... Harry Shannon
Emory Tuttle ..... Fred Kohler, jr.
Doc Overholt ..... Howland Chamberlin
Stage Driver ..... Edmund Cobb
Stage Passenger ..... Joel Friedkin

THE CAPITOL'S stage bill is given its only touch of polish by the dance team of Mario and Floria . . . This smooth dancing duo is always an asset to any bill, and in this one they've not got top-notch competiton . . . They contrast their turns neatly, following a charmingly silent "Make Believe" with a brightly amusing "Turkey Trot." . . . In brief, the attractive couple's suave grace is at the top of a large dancing heap . . . The Mathis Duo juggles atop those unicycles to open the bill and the Slate Brothers and Sandra purvey warmed-over gags . . . The local baritone, Fague Springman, loosens up his big voice on "Shortenin' Bread," "Waterboy" and Mandalay," all in full voice all the time, the result being that china cracked all over the house at yesterday's first show . . . It's a great voice, lazily, badly used.

KAY DEWITT, after a big summer both at Schroon Lake and in New York dazzling the agents, is back in the orchestra pit with Sam Jack Kaufman's boys . . . Now there's a neat voice, finely used . . . Kay sings that song about names carved on a tree and a Latin rhythm job, both done with the same easy style that's made listening to her a pleasure in the past . . . About this lass, there'll come a time when you'll say you knew her when.

THE WARNER'S "March of Time" this week, sharing the screen with "Sorry, Wrong Number," concerns the Berlin impasse, and a splendid short subject it is . . . Time makes much of the fact that representative Germans are unregenerate about their responsibility for Hitler and the war, and its presentation of this vital point rings tragically true . . . It's a fine, informative short . . . The Capitol's top short, by the way, concerns Nevada, and you never heard such bosh as that sound track offers: "No taxes, no debts" and all that, showing the gambling joints, which certainly should raise eyebrows in the Bible Belt . . . This one's certainly no credit to Nevada.

"HAMLET" seats go on sale Monday morning at the Playhouse with that box office handling tickets for both the Little and Playhouse runs, which open Wednesday night the twentieth . . . Quick change of bill today at the Little, where "Anna Karenina" replaces "Escape." . . . This is the Tolstoy novel pictured with Vivien Leigh in the title role; its first appearance here was at the Playhouse . . . Today's new picture is "Frieda," the British film about a German girl who married an English soldier and went to live in the country of her former enemies . . . At the Hippodrome.

REMEMBER Gene Ausin, the chap who sang "My Blue Heaven" and "Yearning?" . . . He's popping up tonight for Connie B. Gay's "Gay Time" in Constitution Hall. Nope, he's not gone hillbilly, just adding a tetch of novelty to the mountainairs.

Indians Almost Yawn as They Go Ahead Wrapping Up Title; Terps Favored Over V. P. I.; Navy, G. W. Underdogs Today

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

CLEVELAND, OCT. 8.—The New York Central almost made history as the first railroad ever to turn in a scoreless World Series performance. The run from Boston was so many hours late the Indians' special train landed them in Cleveland barely 90 minutes before game time.

POVICH

The Cleveland players were sweating it out in the Boston station for more than three hours last night, their special cars far behind the Cleveland-bound Braves. It was Satchel Paige who hit the high philosophical note during the long wait. "They can't start the game till we get there," he said.

Style Note: Paige, like President Bill Veeck of the Indians, is revealing himself a devotee of the sportshirt sans necktie. However, risking no confusion of identities, Satchmo wears his shirt buttoned at the neck unlike Veeck's flaring collar, and as a further precaution, has his name in letters on a gold tie clasp affixed to a tieless bosom.

There were batches of empty seats in the big stadium today, but the players' share of the receipts will be based on capacity. All 80,000 seats were sold, with both the Braves and the scalpers being scalped today. The speculators were peddling tickets outside the park for a buck apicce, doing little business and getting little sympathy.

VEECK SHOT OFF some booming fireworks before the game, but they didn't provide the biggest pre-game noise. The loudest explosion greeted the announcement of the umpires, with a mighty "boo" reserved for the name of Bill Stewart, of the National League. Something about a decision in Boston the folks here didn't like.

Manager Billy Southworth's strategy in the series may be open to question, but he revealed himself a very fore-handed man, at least, today. Rookie Vern Bickford had made only two pitches to the Indians in the opening inning when Southworth signaled for Bill Voiselle to start warming up in the bull pen.

There was some astonishment in the press box when Pitcher Bearden of the Indians bashed that terrific two-bagger to the right field fence that led to a Cleveland run in the third inning. "Is he that kind of a hitter?" inquired a visiting fireman from California. "He was that kind of a hitter on that last swing," was the retort.

What Dale Mitchell did to Shortstop Alvin Dark in the fourth inning is known politely as breaking up a double play. But there was nothing polite about the way he went into Dark at second base. The Braves' shortstop almost did a head-stand trying to give the 195-pound Mitchell the right of way, and his throw to first was wild but not a total loss. It gave the Indians a run, but Dark saved his own neck.

AFTER DARK'S two bagger to the left field wall put a Braves' run in scoring position in the sixth, there was some apprehension in the stands. Mike McCormick raised a pop fly into short left, and Boudreau and Gordon went after it, after a fashion. They acted like the Cleveland infield debating society, both taking the negative view of the question of catching the ball, until Gordon decided maybe somebody had better catch it, and did.

Every time some pitcher tries to set a pitching record in this World Series, he bumps into something Nick Altrock achieved back in 1908. When Johnny Sain made three putouts at first base in the opening game, it was assumed to be a record until a similar feat by Altrock was exhumed. Today when Gene Bearden made six assists, it wasn't a record, either. Altrock made eight.

But the Braves are going to set a record at this pace—least runs scored in 4 World Series. In three games they've batted exactly one run across the plate, plus another unearned run, for a total of two . . . And with Feller, Lemon and Bearden looking them in the face, the Braves are not exactly run-happy.

Confidentially, the Indians are beginning to wonder how the punchless Braves got into a World Series . . . The way they romped to the National League pennant raises the suspicion that the National League isn't quite a big league. No team, trailing two to one in games, ever looked so hopeless.

Clash Here Is 26th of Series for Bitter Foes

A track meet disguised as a football game should be staged by the University of Maryland today at Griffith Stadium as it opens the 1948 home season in a 2 p. m. meeting with the gridmen of Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

But don't bank on the track part of it.

Maryland has always had a horrible time convincing the Techs of its superiority, and this year may be no different. Just last season there was supposed to be a 20-point margin in the Terps' favor and they barely salvaged a 21-19 victory.

In 25 previous meetings, dating all the way back to an 18-4 triumph for the turtle-necked Terps in 1897, Maryland holds a scant 13-12 lead in games. V. P. I.'s last triumph was in 1945, by 21-13, and the widest margin between the teams was a 24-0 Maryland victory in 1929.

Terps Defense Tough

Maryland should win today's game by anything from four to eight touchdowns. While the Terps were wobbling somewhat, but still managing for safe edges over Richmond and Delaware, V. P. I. was getting itself kicked around by George Washington and Virginia.

The main point, however, was that Maryland defense was holding its victims to exactly no points. At the same time V.P.I. offense was registering the same number of points—none.

The Terps go into today's tilt which is expected to attract some 10,000 local fans, without the services of its two regular right tackles—Jim Goodman and Chester Gierula. In this crisis Guard Al Phillips will be switched over from the left side of the line for most of the heavy work.

Turyn Top Threat

On the Tech casualty list is Tommy Burns, regular center, who will be replaced by Jim Church.

In the backfield, Quarterback Vic Turyn, whose passing saved last year's game, will be the Terp's big gun along with 19-year-old Johnny Idzik, Vern Seibert and Hubie Werner.

Tech's passing hinges for the most part on Bruce Fisher, a sophomore who is being groomed for stardom by Coach Bob McNeish.

Shotton Stays At Brooklyn

New York, Oct. 8 (U.P.).—The Brooklyn Dodgers today announced that Burt Shotton will be retained as manager for the 1949 season.

The statement from club president Branch Rickey also said that no managerial changes were planned anywhere in the Brooklyn farm system "except in some cases for purposes of deserved promotions."

The graying Shotton, 63 years old, returned to the helm of the Dodgers in mid-season this year in the monumental managerial shakeup that saw Leo Durocher leave the Dodgers to become pilot of the Giants in place of Mel Ott. That was on July 16, when Brooklyn was in fourth place. After leading the league very briefly, the Dodgers slipped back to third place at the end of the season.

'Cloudy' Predicted For Series Game

Cleveland, Oct. 8 (AP).—"Partly cloudy, continued cool Saturday afternoon," was the forecast tonight for the fourth game of the World Series.

Occasional rain was expected during the night, with a probable low temperature of 43. Tomorrow's high was estimated at 58.

Braves Call On Sain to Beat Gromek In 4th Game

By Fritz Howell

Cleveland, Oct. 8 (AP). — The Cleveland Indians were about as excited after winning today's World Series game as a veteran poker player after winning a small pot on a pair of Jacks.

The 2-0 conquest over the Boston Braves gave the Tribe a 2-1 edge in the classic, but no one seemed too elated about it.

Gene Bearden, the wounded war hero who left-handed the Braves into submission, allowing only five hits, was patted on the back in the quiet clubhouse by Catcher Jim Hegan, who declared:

"There was one game I could have caught from a rocking chair. This guy was terrific today."

It was pretty apparent that the Indians, although they need two more victories, don't expect to have to go back to Boston for either of them.

"Tomorrow Is the Big One"

"Tomorrow is the big game," Boss Lou Boudreau of the Tribe said. "That Johnny Sain can be tough. We found that out when he beat us in the first one. We'll start Steve Gromek."

The Braves were down tonight—but they weren't out.

Fired by battling Billy Southworth, their muffin-faced little manager, they flung a challenge at the Indians.

"We're still as good as they are."

They were dejected at first after losing this big game but Southworth's cocky assurance brought them back up on their toes as they rehashed today's game in their dressing room and planned tomorrow's when Johnny Sain will try to get them even.

These weren't beaten ball players. They had seen a masterful performance by Arkansas Gene Bearden and, like art lovers appreciating a Rembrandt, they gave him his due. Bearden had shown them everything out there on the mound—a blazing fast ball and a dancing knuckler; the best hitting Cleveland had and flawless fielding.

They had been beaten—but by the best.

"We'll Show Them"

Pitching has predominated the series so far, Southworth continued, and it was a line which brought a laugh from listening players. He wasn't telling them a thing.

"We'll show them tomorrow with Sain," Billy the Kid added.

There was complete agreement in the eyes and manner of the fellows who will have to back him. They knew with Sain that they could be mighty rough. They proved it by beating Bob Feller behind Johnny in the opener despite fireball Bobby's great two-hitter, and they walked out with their heads high and their shoulders squared.

G. W. Seeking .500 Mark in Virginia Tiff

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

George Washington's football team makes an effort today at Charlottesville to regain its .500 mark for the season. It will have to be a strenuous one—Virginia's Cavaliers are favored by some 28 points.

Elsewhere on the Southern grid front, Navy meets Duke at Durham; North Carolina renews one of the oldest rivalries in Dixie at Wake Forest and William and Mary's Indians will try to bounce back against Virginia Military Institute at Norfolk.

Chances are Bo Rowland's Colonials won't get too much pleasure out of their journey to Charlottesville. The Washingtonians have only one strong team to combat a Cavalier squad loaded with good reserves. Pregame picture is that Virginia will wear down GW after the first quarter in a repetition of the 33-13 triumph it gained last year.

George Washington, after losing to Wake Forest and winning over VPI, took a 26-6 lacing from VMI last Saturday. It's basing any slim hope of victory it entertains on Freshman Andy Davis, lone big passing and running threat.

Navy Has Big Chance

Navy finds itself in the highly familiar role of underdog at Duke Stadium today. A capacity crowd of 50,000 is expected to watch the Middies trot out against a Blue Devil team that's quoted 6 points better.

However, there's hope for George Sauer's boys in blue. This Wallace Wade team is extremely weak on offense, having scored only one touchdown in the ties it has fought with N. C. State and Tennessee. And the latest word from Durham is that Tailback Freddie Folger and his understudy, Roland Hodges, both are injured and are expected to see limited duty only. If that happens, Sophomores Bill Cox and Earle McKeown will have to take over.

Tar Heels Favored

That Wake Forest-North Carolina revival—the series started in 1888 when the first game of football was played in the Tar Heel State—promises to be one of the most interesting games in the Southland.

Peahead Walker's boys smacked down the highly-favored Carolinians last year, 19-7, and Charley Justice & Co. established a record for getting real vengeance when it smeared Texas, 34-7, in the opener. Texas walloped North Carolina last year, you know, 34-0.

Rube McCray's W. & M. Indians may find the going rocky again today at Norfolk. VMI's Keydets boast a handy man in

Indians Take Lead With 2-0 Triumph

of walking Dale Mitchell and then the Indians' big break came with the earnest young Bickford the innocent victim.

He lured Larry Doby into hitting a double-play grounder at Second Baseman Eddie Stanky, but it was no double play. Stanky made the throw to Dark at second base, forcing Mitchell, but Dark was compelled to leap for his life to avoid the crash tactics of Mitchell.

Off balance and in mid-air, Dark got away a throw to first base that was 10 feet wide of the bag and bounced off the right field boxes, with Bearden easily racing home from second for a cheap Cleveland run. Doby was waved to second under the ground rules, and Bickford was in deeper trouble when he walked Boudreau to fill the bases, but he pulled out on Joe Gordon's fly to Mike McCormick in left field.

The Indians were back at Bickford for more in the next inning got one more, but muffed their chance for a big inning with the bases full and only one out.

Ken Keltner coaxed a walk from Bickford to launch the session, but Wally Judnich became the only Cleveland strikeout victim all day. Eddie Robinson lashed a single to left that moved Keltner to second and Jim Hegan singled to center to score him. Bearden banged out his second hit, a single to left, but Mike McCormick's throwing arm caused Robinson to hold up at third base on his dash from second.

Southworth called time, and motioned for a new pitcher. His choice was Bill Voiselle, the veteran from the Giants, and it was a happy one. With the bases full, Voiselle got the Braves out of further trouble, disposing of Mitchell on a foul tip to Catcher Phil Masi, and getting rid of Doby on a tap to Frank McCormick.

After the fourth inning, the Indians made only one hit—Doby's single off Voiselle in the seventh—but that was unimportant. With each rise and dip of his left arm, Bearden was spinning the noose tighter around the necks of the hapless Braves and pitched two-hit ball himself after the fourth inning.

There was nothing particularly assuring about Bearden's performance in the early innings. Mike McCormick rapped him for a single to center with one out in the second and reached second base before Bearden could get the Braves out. And in the third they threatened him again.

Eddie Stanky opened that third with a single to right and Bickford moved him to second with a sacrifice. On Holmes' tap to Bearden, Stanky reached third, and that proved to be the Braves' high-water mark of the afternoon. Right Fielder Walter Judnich got Bearden out of trouble with a racing catch of Dark's liner to right.

In the fourth inning and again in the sixth, the Cleveland infield flung its double-play technique into the teeth of the disconsolate Bostonians, whose own attempt at a double play had given the Indians their first run.

Mike McCormick greeted Bearden with a single to center in the fourth, and with one out, the Indians wiped out two McCormicks to get out of the inning. Bearden took Frank's smash into the box and it was a rapid-fire Bearden-to-Gordon-to-Robinson maneuver that ended the inning.

When Bob Elliott saluted Bearden with a single to left at the start of the seventh, the Braves again encountered the same kind of double-play grief. Bearden fanned Mike McCormick and then watched Ken Keltner grab up Conaster's smash and route it to Gordon, who finished off a pair of Braves with a throw to Robinson.

The Braves never did get another ball out of the infield, and in the ninth their number went up finally, on a popup by Mike McCormick. Joe Gordon gathered it in and then streaked jubilantly to the pitching mound to present Bearden with a souvenir of that young man's high occasion.

Bearden Won Series Game on Borrowed Time

By Bob Considine

Cleveland, Oct. 8 (INS).—Once upon a time there was a big lanky gob named Gene Bearden working in the bowels of a cruiser named the Helena. A Japanese U-boat commander took a bead on Gene's scow and broke it and Gene in a number of small pieces.

The fellow must have prayed hard. For today, with a plate in his head and one in his leg, and a knuckle-ball which recoiled miraculously away from Boston bats, this same Gene Bearden pitched the Cleveland Indians to a 2-to-0 victory.

One Man Team

Big Gene had it today. He was a pro in there with dilettantes, and to prove it beyond all question he himself smacked the blazing double which started the game-winning rally and scored the run which would have been enough to win.

Gene did it so easily that the 70,306 fans, one of the biggest gatherings ever to see a World Series game, were sent packing off to their bars and firesides in 1 hour and 36 minutes—the briefest series game in 40 years.

He gave the Braves five of the least ominous-looking hits imaginable, permitted only four of the unsuccessful knockers to lift the ball out of the infield and took part in the first of the two double plays that squeezed the light out of the opposition.

That was all there was to the game, really, except the niche which Bearden carved for himself in the curious annals of our national pastime. Today he kicked up an historic nugget of fame, though deep in his borrowed time.

Gene Concealed Injuries

He still doesn't quite know how he got out of the bowels of the ruptured, flaming, exploding Helena. All he remembers of it now is that he was flung about in an iron-walled hell until he lost consciousness from the piece that had been chewed out of his head.

The next thing he remembers is that he was in the black, warm water in the midst of a naval battle and the depth-charges were threatening to disembowel him.

He was in the hospital for six months while Navy doctors put a heavy shingle on his skull and one along his leg. He wandered home to Helena, Ark. He had had some baseball experience and when the scouts picked up his trail after the war he concealed from them that he had been badly hurt.

About Those Indians

Society Columnist Sees Series, Finds Town Gone Mad

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer
Post Reporter

Editor's note: Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer, society columnist of The Washington Post, thought it would be a good idea to sit in on the World Series game in Cleveland yesterday. Here are her reactions:

CLEVELAND, Oct. 8.—Philadelphia, amidst the high delight of the Republican convention, was pastel compared to baseball-mad Cleveland. For two days hitch-hikers and carriage trade from neighboring States have been pouring in cramming hotels,, with thousands of the less well-heeled holing in on Lake Erie barges and small craft.

The big hotels simply ignore telephone calls.

The traffic jam was such that whole sections of the city have been blocked off. Parking costs up to $3, with a two-buck average, and the Scotch-minded, aware that parking violation fines are only a dollar, simply left their cars in tabu areas, let police tow them off for inexpensive safekeeping. While the Tribe, as the Indians are called locally, were batting balls in Boston in the opening games of the series, Cleveland went into a funk. Motorists double-parked on many thoroughfares to listen to their radios, department stores equipped each section with radios, customers stopped shopping long enough to hear the game.

Downtown during games in Boston, shouting was audible at all times and when the Indians won a game, all factory whistles shrieked, church bells clanged.

The struggle for seats here for today's game was such that one fan advertised he'd sell his home, and, if wanted, would throw in his wife just to get a

Rugged Northwestern Faces Gophers in Top Clash Today

By Austin Bealmear

New York, Oct. 8 (AP).—Any way you look at it, the most important game on tomorrow's crowded college football program is the struggle between Minnesota and Northwestern at Evanston, Ill.

This thirty-second meeting of the two Midwestern powers assumes its importance, as football games go, from these facts:

1. Each team has bowled over supposedly dangerous opponents in its first two games by margins of at least three touchdowns.

2. The winner will become a red hot favorite to capture the Big Nine Conference championship and earn a trip to the Rose Bowl.

3. It is the only game of the day in which both combatants come from among the Nation's top 10 teams as determined by sports writers from coast to coast in the weekly poll of the Associated Press.

Northwestern, its goal line uncrossed in victories over UCLA and Purdue, placed third in this week's poll, behind Notre Dame and North Carolina. Minnesota was ranked eighth in the consensus of the writers, who thought somewhat less of its 20-0 victory over Washington and 39-13 triumph over Nebraska than of Northwestern's achievements.

One thing is certain. It will be the toughest assignment either team has faced to date, with both shooting the works. And, given decent weather, there won't be many empty seats in big Dyche Stadium.

But there also are many other high class engagements on tomorrow's card, several of them in the same general area and two in the same league.

Aside from Minnesota and Northwestern, the team among the first 10 facing the most danger is Michigan. The Wolverines, ranked seventh in the country off their winnings over Michigan State and Oregon, open the defense of their Big Nine title at Purdue, whose Boilermakers are overdue.

Army, the No. 5 team in the current standings, invades the Midwest west for an intersectional date with Illinois. California, ranked No. 9, is at home against Wisconsin.

Notre Dame, North Carolina, Southern Methodist, currently holding the No. 4 position, and Georgia Tech, rated sixth, are top-heavy favorites to win their tussles tomorrow.

Sunday Post Sports Section Expands, Adds Features

The Washington Post's sports section Sunday will be one of the biggest and best in years.

It will bring to you readers complete coverage of all of the major football games and the World Series.

Diagram pictures of the VPI-Maryland game at Griffith Stadium will be one of the features.

Staff writers will cover these games:

George Washington at Virginia—Herb Heft.

VPI-Maryland at Griffith Stadium—Bill Burnett.

Navy at Duke—Jack Walsh.

VMI-William & Mary at Norfolk—Frank Dennis.

North Carolina at Wake Forest—Morris Siegel.

The Boston-Cleveland World Series games will be covered by Shirley Povich with side pieces by the Associated Press and United Press, and pictures by Wirephoto.

And today, remember, The Washington Post's special telephone service for football results. Pick up the phone and dial Sterling 5770 after 4:30 p. m., when final results start coming in.

Trueman Horse Wins 2d Section

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Laurel, Md., Oct. 8.—District and Maryland colors had their inning in the Cabinet Purse featuring the Friday program at the Maryland Jockey Club's track.

The 6-furlong sprint was divided. In the first division, Sassy's King, owned by W. W. Waters of Baltimore County, was the winner, while the second division went to Sendoff, owned by Mrs. Elmer Trueman of Washington, D. C.

Photo Decides

The two sprinters used different methods to triumph. Sassy's King, ridden by Apprentice B. Civitello, went to the front early and just couldn't be dislodged. Sendoff wore down the pacemaker and was up in the final jump for a photo decision.

Sassy's King, a son of Alaking, a sire who stands at the C. E. Nelson farm close to Washington, paid $10 with Golden Bull the favorite in his section.

Sendoff paid $8 with King Dorsett the odds-on choice in the second half while under the handling of Apprentice W. Gilbert.

Sassy's King's chief opposition came from E. A. Nicodemus' Laran, who moved up boldly on the outside in the early stretch, but hung in the final drive. Golden Bull was third.

Lookout Son Presses

Sendoff had a hard time getting rid of J. H. Brink's Lookout Son. This 4-year-old held the lead most of the way and drifted out in the stretch run. However, Sendoff had the punch and used it. King Dorsett was a beaten-off third.

It was fish day and the track had all the appearances of a trout stream as the result of a heavy downpour this morning. Sassy's King was clocked in 1:14 2-5 for the 6 furlongs, while Sendoff registered time of 1:15 1-5.

Jockey Barred Five Days

Jockey Ray Scott of Baltimore was suspended from riding for five days after the running of the sixth race. The stewards claimed he carried Sendoff wide in the stretch run while riding Lookout Son.

Despite the poor condition of the track, favorites won three of the first four events and when choices stepped home in both halves of the daily double payoff dropped to $32.80 for $2.

The program opened with a 6-furlong dash for 3-year-old maidens and Rarco Stable's Fille a'Lait graduated from the ranks of the nonwinners with a length and a half victory over C. G. Fox's Miss Covery while William Zimmerman's Weather Vane, an extreme outsider, was third.

Under Charye Pennock, Fille a'Lait stepped to the front early in the dash, opened up a substanial lead and then coasted to the finish line while completing the 6 furlongs in 1:17 2-5. The winner paid $8.20 straight.

Kirk Rides Eighth Winner

Carson Kirk was aboard his eighth winner of the meeting when he donned the Christiana Stable silks to ride Tomke in the second race and drove the Wilmington-owned juvenile to a come-from-behind victory at $6.20.

Many spectators were of the opinion that Apprentice William Gilbert could have given P. A. Rothfuss' Flicka Foot, the place horse, a more ambitious ride. However, Tomke closed with a rush and was the best member of the field. H. D. Buck, jr.'s Swinging Star finished third. Time of the second race was 1:17 2-5.

Bruce Livie's Bobanet Stable, leading outfit of the meeting from a standpoint of winning races, sent out the winner of the Careful Purse, fourth race in the much-improved Wee Hal, who got home three lengths in front of a $7500 field. Mrs. Jack Carson's Orange Sun was second and H. S. Horkheimer's Second Son was third.

Loyal Legion Top-Weighted

Walter M. Jeffords' Loyal Legion headed 14 horses entered today for tomorrow's $10,000 Laurel stake, the only 1-mile race on the Maryland fall racing program.

Loyal Legion was assigned top-weight of 126 pounds after recently winning the Manhattan Handicap by a neck over Donor.

The field includes Pentagon's The Doge, twice winner of the stake in the past. Also bearing watching will be Sandy Strand Stable's Manna H, surprise winner of the Capital aHndicap here on opening day.

Ft. Myer, Meade Elevens Tangle

Fort Meade, Md., Oct. 8 (AP).—The 2000 men of the Third Mechanized Cavalry will turn out in force tomorrow when its football team mets Fort Myer, Va., at Donahue Field here.

The Third Cavalry eleven is representing Fort Meade on the gridiron this year. The game starts at 2 p. m.

TOMKE, $6.20, $3.40, $3.00; FLICKA FOOT, $3.60, $3.00; SWINGING STAR, $9.20.

TOMKE, badly outrun early, was brought to outside entering stretch and closed full of run. FLICKA FOOT set the pace, forged to a good lead when straightened in stretch and tired in closing stages. SWINGING START, well up from break, had no excuse. CAVALIER TRIM went evenly. LITTLE HATCHET had speed to the top of stretch and then tired.

DAILY OUBLE—FILLE D'LAIT AND TOMKE—PAID $32.60.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $2500. For 2-year-olds; claiming. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:30. Off at 2:31. Winner, M. A. Gill's dk. br. g. (2) by Count Morse—Off And On by Bud Lerner. Trained by W. S. McCabe. Value to winner, $1625. Time, 1:17.

COUNT OFF, $10.40, $5.20, $3.40; HAMLET, $15.20, $7.60; SUPERBA, $3.40.

COUNT OFF, away with first flight, was raied while setting the early pace, dropped back and then came again in final hard drive. HAMLET went to contention entering stretch and just failed to last. SUPERBA, far out of it early, came with a belated rush. AWARD set the early pace and tired in stretch run. COMELY BELLE had no mishap.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. The Careful. Purse, $3000. For 3-year-olds; claiming. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:01. Off at 3:01. Winner, Bobanet Stable's b. g. (3) by Halberd—Wee Woody by Woodcraft. Trained by A. Dunne. Value to winner, $1950. Time, 1:16⅘.

WEE HAL, $6.00, $3.00, $2.40; ORANGE SUN, $5.60, $4.20; SECOND SON, $4.40.

WEE HAL, racing close to the front early, assumed lead rounding the turn and won easily. ORANGE SUN, hurried into contention coming to top of stretch, closed with good speed to nip SECOND SON at the wire. SECOND SON forced the pace from the half-mile pole and then weakened in late stretch. NO BULL closed a gap. SISTER LEONA showed nothing. BLUE FEDORA sulked.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. The Cabinet (first division). Purse, $3500. For 3-year-olds and up. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:31. Off at 3:31. Winner, W. W. Waters' ch. c. (4) by Alaking—Sassy Lady by Flying Heels. Trained by W. W. Waters. Value to winner, $2275. Time, 1:14⅘.

SASSY'S KING, $10.00, $5.40, $3.20; LARAN, $7.60, $3.80; GOLDEN BULL, $2.40.

SASSY'S KING moved to the front early and held LARAN safe in a hard stretch drive. LARAN, lacking speed to keep up early, was brought to outside entering stretch but could not gain on the winner through the final 70 yards. GOLDEN BULL pressed the pace but hung in the late stages. BUTLER, well up early, dropped back entering stretch and came again. PRINCE FAVOR showed nothing.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. The Cabinet (second division). Purse, $3500. For 3-year-olds and up. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:00. Off at 4:01. Winner, Mrs. E. Trueman's dk. b. c. (4) by Quatre Bras II—Toddle On by Bud Lerner. Trained by E. Trueman. Value to winner, $2275. Time, 1:15⅕.

SENDOFF, $8.00, $3.40, $2.40; LOOKOUT SON, $6.80, $2.80; KING DORSETT, $2.20.

SENDOFF, close to the pace at all times, was carried out in the stretch by LOOKOUT SON and outgamed that one in the final hard drive. LOOKOUT SON set a good early pace, drifted wide through home lane and took the winner out with him. KING DORSETT, apparently handicapped by the going, saved ground entering stretch and had no excuse. HEARTH MOUSE displayed a even effort. VALHALLA had brief early speed. GRAY BEAR was outrun.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and one-sixteenth. Purse, $2500. For 3-year-olds. Start good for all but Mad Pass. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:31. Off at 4:31½. Winner, R. E. Vogelman, jr.'s b. f. (3) by Okapi—Red Glare by Diavolo. Trained by R. E. Vogelman, jr. Value to winner, $1625. Time, 1:52⅘.

BAD LIGHT, $20.80, $13.40, $8.20; WEE CLOOTIE, $16.40, $10.60; Easy Homer, $7.60.

BAD LIGHT was away well to be forcing pace and assumed lead rounding turn, had to be put to pressure in closing stages to last. WEE CLOOTIE, close up from start, closed fast in stretch run. EASY HOMER, outrun early part, finished fast. BOW PEN rallied mildly. MAD PASS, away very slowly, was rushed to contention, then tired.

EIGHTH RACE—One mile and a furlong. Purse, $2500. For fillies and mares, 3-year-olds and up; claiming. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:01. Off at 5:01½. Winner, G. S. Gladney's ch. m. (5) by Head Play—Zeuceta by Snob II. Trained by N. J. Fillman. Value to winner, $1625.

CARLOTTA, $13.00, $6.80, $3.80; HELEN DEAR, $5.00, $3.60; KENTMERE MISS, $2.80.

CARLOTTA opened a gap in early racing, saved ground and closed resolutely. HELEN DEAR, well back early, improved position gradually and came willingly in stretch. KENTMERE MISS turned in a fair effort. MY MALCHA forced pace and tired.

International Air Given Soccer Loop

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

This area's own United Nations assembles Sunday with the opening of the Washington and Suburban Soccer League season on five fronts.

About 200 men, 60 per cent of whom are recent immigrants from Europe, Canada and Latin America, take part. The league is presided over by a transplanted Englishman, Eric T. Langford of 2241 40th pl. nw.

The 10 teams in the loop are Sugar Radio, Martin's Bakery, Pan American and Order of the Sons of Italy, all from Washington; plus Rockville, Maryland Sports Club, Waldorf, Marlboro, Indian Head and Glasva in Maryland.

This is the league's thirty-fifth consecutive season of operation and Langford, an employe of the Australian Embassy, believes that is will see the game gain marked popularity.

Schools Try It

He points out that the Naval Academy and Maryland University now rank soccer as a major sport, and that the nearby Prince Georges County high schools, wary of football injuries, have also made the game a top sport.

Immigrants who imported the game and made it popular in such factory centers as Baltimore, Philadelphia, Chicago and Boston are moving to Washington in increasing numbers, Lungford says.

Affiliated with the United States Soccer Association, which has headquarters in New York City, the W. & S. league follows the British rules, except that it permits substitutions.

In England, where some 40 major league teams draw between 20,000 and 70,000 spectators every Saturday, the 11 players who start for each team, must finish, except in case of injury. The local league permits each team to carry 20 players, and to substitute freely.

Local Lads Shine

An indication of the game's growing popularity here is the fact that last year's championship was won by Sugar Radio, made up of youngsters who learned the game at Rosedale Playground. The Rockville, Glasva, and Marlboro teams are also made up primarily of area talent.

However, the Martin stars are Alfred Hunt and Ronald Bowes from England, and Dave Louden, a former RAF pilot from Scotland. The Pan American team is made up mostly of Brazilian Air Force men, stationed here, but it also features Leoner Guzman, an Argentine, and Eugene Kulaga, a Pole.

Ole Olson, a big, popular Swede, is Waldorf's key performer. The Order of the Sons of Italy is made up entirely of Italian youths who recently moved here.

The opening day schedule is: Sugar Radio vs. O.S.I.A. at Rosedale; Pan-American vs. Maryland Sport Club at 16th and Kennedy sts. nw.; Glasva at Marlboro; Indian Head at Waldorf; Martin's at Rockville; all starting at 2:30 p. m.

Bogart Tied For Amateur Lead at 141

Walter Romans, of Baltimore Country Club, slumped to a mere 68 ysterday at Indian Spring but captured the District Open championship by six strokes. His feat was worth $250 in first-prize money.

Records are sketchy, but old hands at Indian Spring yesterday believed that Romans' 36-hole total of 65-68—133 beats anything ever recorded in the District Open and probably was one of the best competitive scores recorded in any 36-hole tournament around these parts.

Roman's Cards
First round out	453	443	344—34
Par out	443	444	444—35
Second round out	553	544	334—36
First round in	433	424	434—31—65
Par in	534	534	434—35—70
Second round in	434	424	434—32—68

In second place but still 1-under par were Harold Oatman of Norfolk and Buck Worsham of Winged Foot, with 139, collecting $150 each.

Ralph Bogart joined a rain-washed 74 to his neat 67 on Thursday to bring in the low amateur score of 141. Bracketed with Bogart at 141 were Roger Peacock and Johnny O'Donnell, pros from Sligo Park and Norfolk, respectively, who split 175 between them.

For about four holes, Romans looked nothing like the gent who needed only 65 strokes the day before, missing the first, second and fourth greens for bogies. From then on, however, it was par or under all the way.

A long putt on the seventh, a long three-iron and a good putt on the eighth brought him birdies on the out nine A standard birdie (drive, spoon and two putts) on the par-five tenth, another on the thirteenth, and a two on the par-three fourteenth brought him his final two-under tally.

The thirteenth became almost an eagle as Romans pitched to within 8 inches of the cup.

Walter Misses Birdie

The hole on which Romans played some of his fanciest golf, got him only a par. He hooked his drive badly on the 388-yard sixteenth, the ball stopping behind some trees out of sight of the green. One stroke later, Romans was on the green putting for a birdie, having laid the blind shot up there with a perfect 4-iron. He missed the birdie by a hair.

Romans and the Indian Spring course have been getting along famously this year. Earlier in the season, he shot another 68 to win a lady-pro tournament with his partner, Mary Downey of Baltimore.

Last year, when Otto Greiner won the District Open, Romans tied for third. Yesterday's victory was the handsome Baltimorean's first District Open win.

Fairfax Ties B-CC in Last Second, 13-13

A last second touchdown plunge by Bob Saffer earned a 13-13 tie for Fairfax High against Bethesda-Chevy Chase yesterday at Bethesda.

Fred Cannon received the pass for conversion from Saffer, but was stopped a foot short of the goal line.

Bethesda had taken a 13-0 halftime lead on a 1-yard touchdown plunge by Johnny Buell in the first quarter, and a pass interception and 30-yard touchdown run by Dick Beckwith in the second. Fred Moravitz scored Fairfax's first touchdown on a 1-yard plunge in the third period.

Three Chamberlain Scores Voided in Loss

A 15-yard touchdown sprint by Bill Simpson in the second quarter gave the Bullis Prep "B" team a 6-0 victory over hardluck Chamberlain Vocational High yesterday at Bullis.

Penalties deprived Chamberlain of three touchdowns, all by Mickey Curtis. Mickel reeled off a 55-yard scoring run in the second quarter and bucked over from the 1 twice in the last period. Backfield in motion nullified the first and third touchdowns. Illegal formation nullified the second.

Touchdown—Simpson.

Severn Romps, 42-0

Severn, (Md.) High hit the win column for the first time this season, and did it in a big way, 42-0, over Longwood Prep of Olney, Md., at Olney.

Jack Cooper and Herman Giddings each scored twice, all on runs of 35 yards and longer. Severn lost its opener to Sidwell Friends last week. Longwood has lost all three of its starts and has yet to score.

LONGWOOD
Ends—McLeod, Sweaten.
Tackles—Ruhl, Kelly.

Richmond Wins In Final Seconds

Greenville, S. C., Oct. 8 (AP).—The University of Richmond Spiders, frustrated time after time, pulled a 41-yard scoring pass in the closing seconds of play here tonight to beat Furman University's Hurricane, 7-0.

A sparse crowd of 8000 had watched the Southern Conference stalwarts battle up and down the field for almost the full 60 minutes before Spider Halfback Tom Billingsley loosed a long pass from the Furman 41 as the clock showed 32 seconds to play.

End Aubrey Rosser of Richmond gathered in the ball on the 5 and stumbled through the arms of a would-be Furman tackler to score standing. Sub Back Frank Thompson booted the extra point.

Villanova Rallies, Beats Miami

Miami, Fla., Oct. 8 (AP).—The Villanova Wildcats put on a great second half offensive to come from behind and beat the University of Miami Hurricanes, 19 to 10, before 42,827 fans in the Orange Bowl here tonight.

In Pittsburgh Sunday

Redskins Made 7½-Point Favorites Over Steelers

A mounting respect for the Washington Redskins, who started their season as rank outsiders after losing three straight exhibitions by a total of 76 points, was reflected yesterday in the odds-makers' quotation on Sunday's game with the Steelers in Pittsburgh.

Washington's pros were 7½-point favorites over the Art Rooney forces, a 17½-point variance in the odds on the 'Skins' opener, when they were 10-point underdogs.

After upsetting the Steelers, 17-14, to start with, the Redskins thundered over the New York Giants by 41-10 and now boast undisputed leadership of the eastern division, National Football League. Reports from Pittsburgh, however, indicate the Steelers are unimpressed with Washington's high estate.

In the past two years the Steelers have tied and lost their two games in Washington, then marked up impressive victories at home. They're coming off a disillusioning game with the Boston Yaanks, won by 24-14 after a last-half struggle.

In that clash, as in every one for two years, it was Johnny (Zero) Clement who led the strong ground attack which rolled up 24 first downs to the Yanks' five, and amassed 391 yards to 106.

After a morning workout, the Redskins leave for their third season clash this afternoon with the certainty that it was a mistake which made the earlier Steeler game so close. Washington's line, according to Coach Turk Edwards, was being overly cautious of trap plays.

This time power, the kind that battered the Giants, will replace much of the excessive caution.

Catholic U., W. Maryland In Loop Game

Western Maryland and Catholic University help launch the Mason-Dixon Conference football season at 2:30 today at Brookland Bowl.

It's the first game of the season for the Green Terrors, and C. U. hopes it will be no repetition of last year's opener when Western Maryland thrashed the Cardinals, 21-7.

The two schools will start practically the same teams as they fielded last season. The Terrors will bank on the running of Joe Corrado and the running and passing of Gino Gianelli. Gianelli's favorite pass target is End Walt Piades.

The Cardinals ushered in their season last week with a 14-0 victory over Patuxent Naval Base, but it cost them their two first line tackles, Captain Harry Amadio and Dave Jenkins, who injured ankles. Filling in will be 195-pounder Bob Mulvey and 215-pound Al Fulner.

Bright and early, the Boston Braves hit town and were suffocated with ticker tape. The Indians, who'd been forced to wait two hours in Boston's gloomy South Station, downed oyster stews to break the monotony, then tumbled into bed, arrived two hours late but had a turnout estimated at over 50,000 beserk followers.

A good 16 hours before opening hour, fans stepped into line for dollar bleacher seats. It rained hard and a few foresighted souls brought along pup tents. When they were ankle deep in liquid mud, the street cleaning department cooperated magnificently by laying down temporary duck-board floors.

A cut financially above the bleacher boys were hundreds who paid $4 for ground standing room. For an additional 50 cents, they could squat on empty beer cartons. Before 1 o'clock most of the 80,000 seats were filled and the show began.

No less than seven bands, all in fancy uniforms, and a group dressed as clowns, tootled and blew at vintage points in the grandstand—most of them unfortunately stressing any kind of song having to do with the Indians with particularly mawkish emphasis laid on the "Indian Love Call."

Off the diamond, one of the Indians risked his spotless white uniform by standing on his head and actually pitching and catching balls. One or two unidentified, tribally speaking, but suspiciously white Indians appeared in chilly regalia—feather headdress, moccasins, underpants decorated with buckskin thongs.

The huge tarpaulin was hauled off by 17 struggling men, and Tris Speaker, hero of the Indians' one and only pennant winning back in 1920, in camelshair coat had his picture taken innumerable times.

With the flashlighting completed, the fanciest, large, band led off by a color guard and a row of drum majors, the big poohbah in feather headdress and buckskin suit prancing ahead. All eight bands massed for the national anthem and before the last echo faded a plane rocketed overhead, dropped a nest of bombs which exploded with gratifying thuds, losening parachutes attached to American flags.

The crowd went wild when the list of players was loud-speakered—yelling for favorites, booing two of the four umpires with ferocious abandon. The game unexciting compared to its predecessors, was played with comparative audience restraint with only one real fight visible to the naked eye and no injuries from foul balls.

Bill Veeck, the picturesque, pink-haired, part-owner of the Indians, showed up in his usual costume—loose brown sports coat, open-necked, tieless shirt. He was too nervous to sit on a chair but crouched on the steps in his box. He was surrounded by an assortment of relatives; his mother, sister, cousins, all bestrewn with outsize orchids.

The Hank Greenbergs, Mrs. G. having been Carol Gimbel of New York's department store family, were on deck as were Bob Hope, who owns a slice of Indian, George Raft, Abbott and Costello.

The baseball heroes with two or possibly more days of struggle ahead are being feted tonight by the Cleveland ball club at the Hollenden Hotel.

Mrs. Stokes Again Scores In Payne Golf

Mrs. Walter R. Stokes of Manor Country Club coasted home to her second Payne Trophy Cup victory yesterday at Columbia Country Club, posting an 87 for a three-day total of 254.

A Payne Cup winner in 1946, Mrs. Stokes couldn't solve the soggy greens and took three putts on each of six holes.

Not even an 80, however, the best round of the tournament played under the worst conditions of the tournament by Mrs. A. B. Bower, also of Manor, could catch Mrs. Stokes. Mrs. Bower's fine effort could only get her second place with 257.

Mrs. S. F. Little, jr., Army-Navy, who dogged Mrs. Stokes for the first two days of play, shot out of contention and into third place yesterday with a 91. Mrs. Rex Howard, Kenwood, progressing one stroke per day from her first round 90, took an 88 yesterday for a total of 267 and fourth place.

The low net winners: Mrs. Betty Meckley, Kenwood, 262-12-250; Mrs. John Ives, Columbia, 275-21-254; Mrs. E. P. Moore, Army-Navy, 271-15-256; Mrs. H. Davies, Manor, 301-39-262.

Mrs. Ralph Payne, in whose honor the Trophy Cup was donated, made the presentations.

Penn State Routs Syracuse

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 8 (AP).—Penn State's powerhouse football team rolled to a 24-14 victory over a hot-and-cold Syracuse University eleven tonight.

A crowd of 12,000 braved the damp night air to see the Lions go through their twelfth consecutive game without defeat.

The State attack, which functioned particularly well in the first and last periods, was sparked by the fancy running of Halfback Wallace Triplett of La Mott, Pa. Fran Rogel of North Braddock was the top scorer, plunging for one of State's touchdowns and sharing a pass for another.

Gonzales Gains Semifinals

San Francisco, Oct. 8 (AP).—National champion Richard "Pancho" Gonzales entered the semifinals of the National Hard Court Tennis Tourney today—but he did it the hard way.

A missed overhead on match point in the fifth set by his opponent, the University of San Francisco's Harry Likas, gave Gonzales the impetus he needed and the champion fought through to a 5-7, 6-0, 2-6, 6-2, 8-6 victory.

Santa Monica's Gertrude Moran, playing erraticaly, gained the women's single semifinals with a 7-5, 8-6 win over Arvilla McGuire of Berkeley. The top seeded Miss Moran meets Margaret Warren of Berkeley tomorrow.

Series Net Sets Record

Cleveland, Oct. 8 (AP).—A paid attendance of 70,306 at today's World Series game failed to set a new record, as expected, but the $345,614.47 net receipts was an all-time series high.

And the scalpers took a beating as hundreds of choice seats went empty and others were unloaded by the sharpers at a loss.

The number of spectators who watched the Cleveland Indians beat the Boston Braves, 2-0, in the third game of the series and the first in the huge Municipal Stadium was well under the 74,065 mark set in Yankee Stadium in the Brooklyn-New York series last year.

But the cash after taxes was well ahead of the single-game net receipts mark established at the same game—$327,659.70.

Rainy weather made play of today's game uncertain until a few minutes before game time. During that pregame hour, scalpers uptown and down near the big lake-front bowl were offering tickets at drastic reductions. One New York speculator who said he bought 600 tickets here Wednesday and Thursday claimed he had to unload them at a loss of about $6000.

Mrs. Dineen Has 93 To Lead Women's Golf

Mrs. H. Dineen shot 93 yesterday to set the pace in the 36-hole Sutton-Muncaster cup tournament at the Washington Golf and Country club.

Mrs. Lloyd Dennis was second for the opening 18 holes with 95.

The concluding round will be played today.

Montgomery J. C. Plays Little Hoyas

The Montgomery Junior College Knights will display their wares on their own home field when they play the Georgetown Freshmen Satusday, at 2 p. m. in the Bethesda-Chavy Chase Stadium.

This will bethe first college game to be played on the new Bethesda-Chevy Chase turf.

Roosevelt, McKinley Clash Today

Roosevelt and McKinley Tech clash in Central Stadium at 2 p. m. today in the only Interhigh Football League game to be played this week.

Two league games, Eastern at Western and Coolidge at Central, were among the six area schoolboy games washed out by yesterday morning's rain.

These two games will be played on Monday along with Gonzaga at Anacostia, Devitt at Georgetown Prep, St. Albans at Sidwell Friends, and Falls Church at Mount Vernon of Alexandria.

Three important games are on tap for area spectators today, while four other teams play on the road.

St. John's last year's Catholic High champion, makes its second start of the season when it plays at Montgomery Blair at 2 p. m. St. John's played a scoreless tie with Charlotte Hall last Saturday. Blair has split in two engagements.

Episcopal of Alexandria, beaten by Gonzaga last week, entertains St. Christopher's of Richmond at 2. Washington-Lee of Arlington is host to Woodberry Forest at 8 p.m. Other games find Landon at St. James of Hagerstown, Woodward at Stuyvesant of Warrenton, Bullis Prep at Staunton Military Academy and George Washington of Alexandria at Thomas Jefferson of Richmond.

Al Orth, Ex-Nat, Dies in Lynchburg

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 8 (AP).—Albert (Smiling Al) Orth, 76, hard hitting major league pitcher at the turn of the century, died at his home here early today.

Orth attracted major league attention while pitching for Lynchburg in 1895 when he chalked up 28 victories by August 8. The Philadelphia Phillies bought his contract and he hurled eight straight wins for the Phillies during the remainder of the season.

He went to Washington in 1902 and to the New York Yankees in 1904 where he set a record that still stands—a pitcher hitting above .300 for four consecutive years.

Royals Rout Saints, 15-1, Lead Series, 2-1

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 8 (AP).—Clarence "Spike" Podbielan gave up but five hits tonight as his Montreal Royals swamped St. Paul's Saints, 15-1, to take a 2-1 lead in the Little World Series, to be concluded in the Canadian city. The losers used five pitchers in a futile effort to stem the hickory barrage. Podbielan had a no-hitter until the fifth inning.

It's 9-20 Gromek Beats Sain in 4th Contest Today

St. Louis, Oct. 8 (U.P.).—Steve Gromek of the Cleveland Indians, who will pitch the fourth game of the World Series tomorrow, today was installed as a 9-to-20 favorite to beat the Boston Braves by oddsmaker James J. Carroll.

Boston supporters, backing Pitcher Johnny Sain, could get $9 by putting up $5.

Carroll refused to set any further odds on the series as a whole after the Indians captured their second victory today.

Horns Blare, Orators Declaim: Taft Picks Student President

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

In a campaign that resembled the reflection of the national convention on a television screen, Taft Junior High School students yesterday elected a student council president.

Amid the blare of trumpets, parades, sandwich signs and oratory, 14-year-old Beverley McCann, 2230 Shepherd st. ne., won over three other girl candidates on a platform of "no empty campaign promises."

Beverley pledged an honest administration and a recreation program of movies and dances.

Students gathered in the decorated auditorium the period before lunch to hear the candidates and see the fun.

Down the aisle came two girls dressed in hula costumes, followed by a satin-clad drum majorette twirling a baton and a parade of supporters carrying standards. They chanted "Sparks, Sparks, Sparks."

They were the supporters of Mary Jane Sparks, 14, of 2523 17th st. ne. An exploding firecracker was the theme of her campaign, good enough to bring her second place in the balloting and the post of vice president.

In quick order followed three other parades, more drum majorettes and dozens of balloons.

Beverley's followers wore uniforms, dark trousers, white shirts and flowing bow ties, for the boys, and Gibson girls skirts, blouses and large hair ribbons, for the girls.

Christine Ford, 3040 Monroe st. ne., sister of one of Beverley's supporters and not quite two years old, toddled down the aisle to lead off Beverley's parade.

Supporters of Ann Sterling, 14, of 2206 Kearney st. ne., carried her name in two-foot letters, and Shirley Engel, 14, 4409 14th st. ne., brought along cheer leaders.

Each of the candidates has a campaign manager whose introduction set off demonstrations before the candidate could speak.

Police Need Spurs Cafe Ouster Plan

Barrett Wants Municipal Center Lunchroom, Built For Pistol Range

An eviction notice, talked about for the past 26 months, is once again facing the operator of the lunchroom in the basement of the Municipal Center.

The establishment, which was opened during the war, has existed since then rent-free, without a license and in the face of Health Department reports that would have closed similar eating places.

The cause for the current revival of the eviction proceeding is a request by Police Maj. Robert J. Barrett for the immediate return of the lunchroom space, which was originally designated as a police pistol range.

Due to Possible Razing

The police superintendent asked the District Commissioners to retrieve the space because of the current consideration of the razing of antiquated, rat-infested District structures on C st. and Indiana ave., near the Center.

Barrett is concerned about the razing plans because they would include a police pistol range on the second floor of a two-story building at 469 C st. nw. The structure also houses the office of Lieut. Sheldon R. McKee, range officer and ballistics expert.

At present, the range, which is poorly lighted and limited to six marksmen at one time, is used by rookie policemen attending the Police Training Academy. The Municipal Center range area was particularly designed for such use and is about three times as large as the present facility.

Only a Day's Job

Police officials said last night that the center spot could be set up as a range in a day's time, requiring only the removal of the lunchroom tables and equipment.

Because of the inadequacy of the present range, most of the police force has been using two outdoor ranges when weather permits. They are the No. 11 Precinct range at Morris rd. and Hunter pl. se, and the White House range at the National Arboretum.

The lunchroom has been under fire by various Federal and District officials for the past 26 months, but has managed to remain in business.

This problem is expected to come to a head at the District Commissioners' meeting Tuesday. District Auditor A. R. Pilkerton, to whom the Barrett letter was referred, has twice recommended immediate action against the lunchroom operator. He is expected to repeat his suggestion in the light of Major Barrett's new demand.

Jury Declares Youth Father

Student Ordered to Support Illegitimate Child to Age 21

Guy H. Fuller, 19-year-old interior decorator student, was ordered yesterday to make weekly payments toward the support of a 3-month-old baby declared to be his illegitimate daughter.

This sentence was imposed by Judge Fay L. Bentley of Juvenile Court after a jury declared Fuller was the infant's father. Last May an Arlington Circuit Court jury convicted Fuller of seducing the mother, Miss Shirley Jackson, 17, of 2829 N. 15th st., Arlington, and sentenced him to serve two years in prison. He is currently on bond pending appeals.

Judge Bentley ordered Fuller to pay $6 a week for the child until she becomes 8 years of age and $7 a week until she reaches her majority.

Fuller denied guilt in both the seduction and the bastardy trials.

According to Assistant Corporation Counsel Richard Barton, paternity was established by the testimony of witnesses. The child herself was never brought into the court. A blood test was taken, but was not used since it was inconclusive, Barton said.

The Virginia seduction proceeding has now reached the Supreme Court of the State. The defense has attempted to establish that a juryman was confused as to the instruction given by the judge.

The case arose after Miss Jackson's mother, Mrs. Hobson Jackson, discovered Shirley's relationship with Fuller four months after it began. Details of the affair were contained in Shirley's diary, the mother said.

Fuller denied the girl's statement that he offered to marry her, but admitted being intimate with her for a time. It was his contention that the girl arranged the date the first time they had sexual relations. It was on her sixteenth birthday, December 18, 1946.

During the trial, it was brought out that Shirley considered an abortion after she learned she had become pregnant during the autumn of 1947. She admitted making a trip to Martinsburg, W. Va., in January of 1948 to consult a physician, but she said she decided against the operation.

Fuller resides at 66 New York ave. nw.

Nurse, 75, Instantly Killed in Maryland

Woman Driver, Suffering Shock, Taken to Suburban Hospital, Bethesda

Mrs. Gertrude Quinlan Julien, 75, a private nurse at the Waverly Sanitarium, on the Rockville pike 3½ miles south of Rockville in Montgomery County, Md., was killed instantly by an automobile at 6:40 o'clock last night in front of the sanitarium.

Mrs. Julien, whose home was at 3816 Bradley blvd., Chevy Chase, was pronounced dead at the scene and the body was taken to the Pumphrey funeral home in Bethesda.

Police said the driver of the car was Mary B. Burton, 46, of 4705 S. Chelsea la., Bethesda. She was so unnerved by the accident, police said, that she was taken to Suburban Hospital in Bethesda.

Mrs. Julien is survived by a son by a previous marriage, William A. Quinlan, a Washington attorney, of 7809 Old Chester rd., Bethesda, and three grandchildren. Her husband, Joseph Julien, died in 1939. A native of New York, she had lived in this area six years. Burial will be in Decatur, Ill.

Working on Gun

Md. Father Kills Self Accidentally

A young father of three small children died early yesterday after he had accidentally fired a bullet into his head.

The accident cost the life of James Carter Hicks, 26, of 4-D Laurel Hill rd., Greenbelt, Md.

The shooting occurred at about 11:30 p. m. Thursday. Hicks and his wife, Marie, were sitting in the living room of their home listening to records.

Their three children were asleep in another room. Mrs. Hicks was examining some photographs. Hicks, who was fond of guns, was handling a Smith & Wesson .38-caliber revolver.

Mrs. Hicks told police she heard the sharp crack of revolver fire and looked up to see her husband slumped over. The bullet had ripped into his right temple.

Hicks was rushed to Leland Memorial Hospital, Riverdale, by the Branchville Rescue Squad. He died at 4:12 a. m.

The shooting was investigated by Greenbelt Police Chief George A. Panagoulis and Dr. John T. Maloney, one of Prince George County's medical examiners. Dr. Maloney issued a certificate of accidental death.

Hicks was a Navy veteran. Before entering the service and after his discharge from the Navy he was employed by the Daly-Hopper Co., Inc., 1802 11th st. nw., installing and servicing bottled gas equipment. The family has lived in Greenbelt since 1945.

His children are James R., 3; Williams S, 21 months, and Susan Louise, 9 months.

He is also survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gibson C. Hicks; a brother, Gibson R. Hicks, and two sisters, Mrs. Flossie Robey and Mrs. Richard Hinnerschitz, all of Hillside.

Hicks' body was taken to the Chambers funeral home in Riverdale.

Two Numbers Writers Get Jail Terms

Seven Others Fined Or Put on Probation On Similar Charges

Two numbers writers were given jail sentences yesterday in District Court. Seven others were fined or given probation terms.

Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut imposed a six to 18 months jail term and a $250 fine on Lide Owens, sr., 39, of 1710 1st st. nw.

Judge Matthew F. McGuire gave an eight-month to two-year jail sentence to Ollie E. Green, 40, of 144 Adams st. nw. Both men were arrested after selling numbers lottery bets to police undercovermen.

Judge McGuire gave a one year probation term to a mother and son who admittedly engaged in the numbers business here. They are Mrs. Edna Hughes, 42, and Edward Hughes, 25, of 104 N st. nw.

When he learned that the Hughes son was a music student here, Judge McGuire declared:

"You sell numbers again and I'll have you playing in the prison band."

Mary Spencer, 42, of 1204 D st. nw., was given one year probation.

A $150 fine was imposed on Thad Brown, 67, 1033 7th st. nw.

Anthony J. Flaccomio, 43, of 2140 N st. nw., must pay a $150 fine and serve three years probation.

Edward F. Harrigan, 31, of 504 7th st. nw., was fined $150 and given a one year probation term.

Police Warn Of Perils in Fall Driving

"Operation Safety" was advanced last night when students attending the District traffic school were told to beware of October—that it is one of the worst months of the year for traffic accidents.

About 100 persons, some seeking restoration of driving permits, some involved in accidents and volunteers, were told why greater caution should be taken now by drivers and pedestrians.

As part of the Traffic Advisory Board's program of selective safety enforcement, Sergts. Walter Roy Ostrum and Joseph Ostermand and Corpl. Elmer E. Skinner told of the dangers of night driving and walking.

Sergeant Ostrum said, "Twilight and early darkness, the hours between 6 and 8:30 p. m., make the most dangerous period, as far as safety is concerned, at this time of year."

He explained:

1. Daylight saving time is off, so darkness arrives an hour earlier than in the summer.

2. It gets darker sooner (and nearer the rush hour) as the weather gets colder.

3. The public begins wearing darker clothing, and drivers have trouble spotting pedestrians.

Attendant threats to safety come from defective headlights (keep the beam down), stop signs (which are obscured because they blend with falling foliage), and street surfaces (made slippery by falling leaves).

Arlington Man Found Shot; Gun in Auto

An Arlington man said to have been despondent over an illness was found wounded, with a .45-caliber gun beside him in his automobile in a parking lot in the 1300 block of Maine ave. sw. yesterday.

Identified as Leslie A. Dorland, 53, 2500 S Ives st., Arlington, he was in critical condition last night at Emergency Hospital, with two bullet wounds, one in the head, the other in the abdomen.

Dorland, head of the veal and lamb department at Armour & Co., 501 12th st. sw., borrowed the gun from a fellow employe to shoot rats near his home, according to Detective Sergt. Richard Felber of the police homicide squad.

Felber quoted Dorland as telling his wife Sunday that he would shoot himself if the could summon the courage. Dorland was said to have been worried about his health.

Blood streaking from Dorland's car led to his discovery at 8 a. m., by Comdr. Brewster Marshall, former assistant United States attorney of Franconia, Va., who was getting into his own car parked nearby.

Pediatric Club To Discuss New Baby Care Ideas

The Pediatric Travel Club will meet here today in annual shoptalk tour to discuss new developments in baby care and the treatment of children's diseases.

The group, comprising 38 pediatricians from Eastern States, will attend special clinic sessions this morning at Children's Hospital and this afternoon at George Washington University Hospital.

A chief feature of this year's get-together, first Washington meeting in the club's nine years of existence, will be a tour of the bedside bassinet and other modern maternity facilities of George Washington University Hospital, according to Dr. Joseph S. Wall, local member.

Other local members are Drs. Lewis K. Sweet, of Gallinger Hospital, and William S. Anderson, of 1901 Wyoming ave. nw. Organizer and leading figure of the Pediatric Travel Club is Dr. Philip Stimson, of New York's Knickerbocker and Willard Parker Hospitals.

At St. Elizabeths

Photographer Acquitted in Gaming Case

Accused of running a numbers lottery among mental patients at St. Elizabeths Hospital, where he is official photographer, Leo Lo Jacono, 38, was found not guilty yesterday by a jury in District Court.

The jurors took 20 minutes to return the verdict. Lo Jacono, who lives at 3852 Halley ter. se., was arrested July 7. He was charged with operating a lottery and possession of lottery slips, after a patient known only as "Pappy" led police to him as the man to whom he turned over bets and marked money, which detectives testified they had placed with "Pappy." Police said they found the marked money on the photographer.

Attorney Charles E. Ford contended in Lo Jacono's defense that he had accepted the money in the belief the patient wanted him to keep it safely for him. He insisted he was merely humoring the patient, and knew nothing of any lottery.

Bandit Holds Up Ice Cream Store, Escapes With $44

The verb "to freeze" had a double meaning last night for Mrs. Grace Bean, a 53-year-old grandmother who works at High's Ice Cream Store, 1802 D st. ne.

She was accosted in the store by a man wearing an Army battle jacket with his hand in one pocket.

"This is a holdup," he declared, coldly.

After scooping $16 from the cash register, he dished $15 out of a cigar box. Then he forced Mrs. Bean who lives at 707 A st. ne., and another clerk, Miss Della Seth, 20, of 1026 3d st. ne., into a back room, and escaped.

The man, Mrs. Bean reported, was a Negro, about 35, 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighing 135 pounds.

American U. Student Group Will Dissect W. Va. Town

A group of American University graduate students will soon begin a year-long study of the town of Moorefield, W. Va., to perfect techniques of making sociological surveys.

The delegation, not yet selected, according to Prof. Donald Derby, assistant to the university president, will look into the town's transport and water facilities, telephone service, streets, churches, banks, newspapers, housing, sanitation, health, tax structures, economic resources and other aspects of community life.

Expenses for the project, expected to run to about $30,000, will be paid out of a university grant for the purpose.

Derby said the town of Moorefield was selected "as a matter of chance." He felt findings would probably be recorded in a book. Results of another study sponsored by American University in 1945—housing at Front Royal, Va.—were published, he pointed out.

So far, however, he emphasized, the project is "still in the planning stage."

Neighbors Questioned In Legation Shooting

Neighbors of the Hungarian Legation at 2118 Leroy pl. nw. were questioned yesterday by detectives seeking clews to the intruder who walked into the legation last Sunday night and fired a shot at Mrs. Odon Pozsgai, who lives there.

Police indicated they had made little headway in solving the mystery. The gunman's bullet, which passed through a first-floor window of the legation, has not yet been found, detectives said.

First 4 Men Are Named for Draft in D. C.

Names of the District's first four men selected for Army service under the peacetime draft were announced by Selective Service headquarters last night.

The local men, who are all 25 years of age and who will be inducted in November, barring any appeals they may make, are:

William McCune Mumaw, grocery store clerk, 2457 Tunlaw rd. nw.

George Hersel Barnes, laborer, 1863 Kalorama rd. nw.

Notices to the men, who are slated for 21 months' service, were mailed by Draft Board No. 1 last night. The four qualified for service in physical and mental examinations held last Monday.

Exact date of their induction in November has not been fixed as yet, Deputy Selective Service Director Frank D. Norton said, but under the regulations, he explained, they will pot be called for at least 21 days from today.

The November call is for 55 District men, while 76 are slated to be inducted in December.

District Upheld In Retaining Wall Action

Judge Alexander Holtzoff yesterday dismissed a property owner's suit against the District for $5113 reimbursement for a retaining wall built to keep his front lawn from washing away.

The District Court jurist held that while Mr. and Mrs. Morris A. Bealle, 230 Peabody st. nw., suffered damage, the city had the right to regrade its own property in front of Bealle's building line and was not guilty of negligency.

There was no sidewalk when Bealle bought his home in 1942. When the city improved the street and put in the walk, a 190-foot strip had to be lowered in grade between 1 and 2½ feet.

Bealle said that earth slides ruined a good part of his yard which stretches 15 feet back to his building line.

Assistant Corporation Counsels John J. Donnelly and Oliver Gasch convinced the judge that the District government was not legally under any compulsion to maintain a retaining wall. They contended that if Bealle had searched the records he would have discovered in 1942 that the grade established as proper for the street was below the natural grade of his lawn.

Deaf Society Holds Dance Tonight

The thirteenth annual dance of Washington Division No. 46 of the National Fraternal Society of the Deaf will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at the Washington Hotel.

The society has 10,000 members in 102 groups in the United States and Canada.

Policeman Fined for Leaving Beat, Making False Statement

Pvt. John W. Bonomo, motorcycle man in the police traffic division, was fined $35 yesterday for making a false statement to a senior officer and failing to patrol his beat constantly.

Pleading guilty to both charges before the Police Trial Board, Bonomo, a Purple Heart Marine Corps veteran, admitted he had left his beat, directing rush-hour traffic at Highway Bridge on September 10, to cash his pay check at a Georgetown bank.

He admitted calling headquarters by phone from a garage near the bank and later telling his commanding officer he had phoned from a location on his beat.

Bonomo said he checked into headquarters by phone from the garage because he was delayed by a bank line and then by a traffic jam. He said cashing checks during work hours was customary at the Seventh Precinct when he was formerly assigned there.

Members of the trial board that fined him $25 for making a false statement and $10 for failing to patrol his beat were Inspector Milton D. Smith, assistant police superintendent; Capt. John Fondahl, of the Eighth Precinct, and Robert Wise, assistant corporation counsel.

Two Barbers, 3d Man Held on Numbers Charge

Vice squad detectives arrested three men yesterday as numbers racket operators.

Philip Goodwine, 33, of 1103 9th st. nw., was arrested in a basement apartment at that address and later booked for operating a lottery and possession of lottery slips.

Lieut. Roy Blick, head of the vice squad, said a large quantity of numbers slips were found in the apartment.

Detectives also arrested two barbers in a shop at 1419 H st. ne. They were Calvin C. Donelson, 22, of 949 Eastern ave. ne., and John A. Brown, 32, of 1220 C st. se. Both were charged with operating and possession.

The three men were arraigned before United States Commissioner Cyril Lawrence who continued their cases until October 22. They were released in $1500 bond each.

Man-in-the-Closet Frightens Woman

Sensitive scales of Municipal Court justice were called upon yesterday to decide who frightened whom and why: 170-pound Mrs. Charles Andrew, 25, or 130-pound Frederick J. Comerford, 38.

Comerford was charged with being the unwanted skeleton in Mrs. Andrew's closet. Specifically, he is accused of unlawful entry into her apartment at 1667 Good Hope rd. se. Thursday afternoon.

Claimed Mrs. Andrew: She returned home, began disrobing when she spotted a man, identified later as Comerford, in her closet. She screamed and he ran; she chased him, and a neighbor caught him. Was she frightened? "And how!"

Explained Comerford: Apartment-hunting, he was directed to Mrs. Andrew's apartment house. There he happened to see a door open and strolled in. Hearing footsteps, he became frightened, popped into the closet. Spotted, he fled, till caught, still frightened.

The scales of justice wavered, then yielded a decision—trial on November 17, with Clothes-Closet Comerford free under $100 bond.

More Shuttle Bus Stops

The District Public Utilities Commission yesterd y approved the addition of six new bus stops on the shuttle bus line connecting fringe parking lots with the downtown shopping area.

The stops will be located on E st. nw., east of 8th st., on the north side; 8th st. nw., west side; 15th st. nw., west side, south of Treasury pl.; 23d st. nw., east side, south of Virginia ave.; 25th st. nw., east and west sides. A stop on the west side of 13th st., north of E st., will be abolished.

Business at the District's first two fringe lots continued to improve in the third week of operations.

Noisy Mufflers Curbed

Police in Bethesda, Md., got their first police court conviction yesterday in their drive against cars equipped with noisy mufflers.

Convicted on a charge of having an inadequate muffler was David T. Price, 19, of 5207 Roosevelt st., Bethesda. A Montgomery Junior College student, Price is the most recent of four youths to be arrested on the charge.

The other three were found to be under 18 and are currently awaiting action of juvenile authorities.

Deaner Asks Divorce

Raymond Austin Deaner, secretary-treasurer of the Occidental Restaurant, filed suit yesterday for a divorce from Mrs. Minette A. Deaner of 6510 8th st. nw. The Deaners were married in 1921 and have a 23-year-old son, according to the suit in District Court.

Probation in Sex Case

Dewey F. Dawson, 50, of Hyacinth, Va., was put on probation for three years after he pleaded guilty to enticing a 14-year-old boy with intent to perform an indecent act. Sentence was imposed by Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut in District Court.

6 Taximen Get Stay

The drivers got 15-day suspensions on charges of soliciting passengers at Union Station.

The suing taxi drivers are Paul T. Hodges, John Lavocaro, Thornton P. Meadows, Charles H. Werner, Elmer Wyatt and James A. Wyatt. Their attorney is Alfred M. Schwartz.

Witt Chest Chairman

Detlif J. Witt, Silver Hill florist, has been appointed area chairman for Seat Pleasant and Spaulding election districts for the Prince Georges County Community Chest campaign, Walter W. Hurley, residential unit chairman, announced yesterday.

Captains named by Witt are Mrs. Van Moreland, Seat Pleasant; Mrs. Bertha Brady, Capitol Heights; John Hamilton, District Heights; Ralph N. Small, jr., Bradbury Heights, Boulevard Heights, Coral Hills, Oakland, Hillside and Dupont Heights; Mrs. John Galloway, Morningside, and Mrs. A. K. Soderlund, Silver Hill and Temple Hills.

4 New Polio Cases Make 202 in Area

Four new polio cases were reported in greater Washington yesterday boosting the year's total to 202, compared with 46 for this date last year.

A Washington case was that of a 27-year-old woman from the 6200 block of 53d st. nw. at Gallinger Hospital. The other patients were from nearby Maryland.

They were a 31-year-old woman from the 5400 block of 55th pl., Riverdale, Gallinger; a 16-year-old boy from the 3700 block of 37th ave., Cottage City, Gallinger, and a 12-year-old girl from the 900 block of Bonifant ave., Silver Spring, Children's Hospital.

The new cases raised the District total to 106 and the total for nearby areas fo Maryland and Virginia to 96.

Fort Washington Cruise on Parks' Sunday Program

A Potomac River cruise to historic Fort Washington, horse-drawn barge trips on the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal and a nature ramble in Piney Branch Parkway, are among the events scheduled Sunday by the National Capital Parks.

The excursion to Fort Washington will be made on the sightseeing boat, Potomac Clipper. It will embark from the Tidal Basin Inlet Bridge at 10 a. m. Sunday and will return at 2 p. m. Park historian, Charles E. Shark, will relate the points of interset at the fort and along the river.

The Canal Clipper, a horse-drawn barge, will make a trip on the canal Sunday, leaving at Foxhall rd. and Canal rd. nw., at 2 p. m. and returning at 4:30 p. m. Park naturalist, W. Drew Chick, will lead a group in a two-hour nature ramble along Piney Branch Parkway. The walk will begin at 3 p. m. Sunday at 16th st. and Spring rd. nw.

Basis of Bus Fare Hike Plea Is Questioned

Officials of the Washington, Marlboro & Annapolis Motor Lines, which is seeking fare increases for its District operations, were cross-examined yesterday on the basis for their contention that District passengers are not paying their way.

In the second hearing before the District Public Utilities Commission, PUC Counsel Lloyd B. Harrison concentrated on the fact that the company based its showing of District operation expenses on the number of passengers carried within the District, without taking mileage factors into consideration.

The company contends in its case for fare increases that passengers traveling within the District, who are charged 10 cents cash or 25 cents for three tokens, are not paying their share in relation to the fares paid by interstate passengers traveling to Maryland points. The firm is asking for a straight 15-cent fare and abolition of tokens for District rides.

After cross-examination of Roy A. Chew, W. M. & A. traffic engineer, and J. W. Tnner, treasurer, the hearing was adjourned by PUC Chairman James H. Flanagan until 10 a. m. Monday.

Earlier spokesmen for two citizens' associations asked for transfer privileges from all incoming buses of the line as one condition for the proposed higher fares.

Mrs. Raymond Cole, chairman of the Randle Highlands Citizens Association's public utilities committee, also asked that any fare increase be limited to that allowed the Capital Transit Co. The CTC's new fares granted last week were 13 cents cash or three tokens for 35 cents, with a $1.75 weekly pass.

A resolution of the Fort Davis Citizens Association, read by Mrs. Mabel E. Morris, public utilities chairman, cited "dilapidated buses" and "irregular service" by the line in asking the transfer provisions, discontinuance of "local" runs and a rate of return for W. M. & A. similar to that held fair and reasonable for the Capital Transit Co.

$5000 Reward In 2 Slayings

Glen Burnie, Md., Oct. 8 (AP).—Posters offering $5000 reward for the solving of Glen Burnie's three-week-old double slaying were going up around Anne Arundel County today.

There were no signs, however, that harried investigators were any nearer a solution than when they first picked up the trail of John H. Mahlan, 25-year-old postal worker, and Mary C. Kline, 18-year-old typist, who were found shot to death.

Chief John H. Souers of the Anne Arundel County police said today he is still hopeful the case can be solved.

In Baltimore, the police released a 36-year-old Washington electrician picked up in a bar across from Camden station. Another customer became suspicious when the man seemed to know a great deal about the case. Detectives reported, however, that he had no connection with it.

Rep. West Better

Attendants at Walter Reed Army Hospital said Representative West (D., Tex.) showed slight improvement yesterday. The veteran Rio Grand Valley Congressman, who is suffering a throat ailment, was reported in grave condition late Thursday.

Man Going Places With Hobby Despite His Paralyzed Legs

The Washington Post

GEMOLOGIST—James D. Roberts, 34, whose legs are paralyzed as the result of an auto accident, cuts gems in bed to make a living. He lives alone in a room at 2300 18th st. nw.

By Charles E. Davis, Jr.
Post Reporter

It takes guts—yes, that's the only word to use—to lie in bed with two paralyzed legs and make plans for the future.

But James D. Roberts, 34, has been lying on his back in a lonely little room for seven weeks and doing just that.

He smiles and he wisecracks. But don't think he's a Pollyanna. He's as realistic as a tax collector.

"Hell, I've got plenty ahead of me," he scoffs.

This is his philosophy; he's still got his brain and his hands, and you don't have to ride a bicycle to be a success in life.

Roberts is a man of varied talents. He is a graduate of Temple University, where he specialized in accounting. He has worked for the Government, managed a small carnival, sold real estate and operated a general "fixit" shop in Philadelphia and an antique repair shop in Alexandria.

As a hobby, he took up gemology, which means he cuts precious and semiprecious stones for jewelry settings.

The hobby has now become the foundation of Roberts' future. "I can make a hundred a week this way," he said.

A photographer admired one of his rings, tried it on and it stuck. Roberts laughed. "That's the way I sell most of my rings." Actually, he makes most of his sales by advertising in magazines.

Roberts is trying to borrow $2500 to complete a down payment on a bungalow in Arlington. The bungalow, he believes, will afford him both living quarters and working space.

He has rigged up a device which can be attached to his bed and allows him to swing himself from the bed to a wheelchair.

He'll have his gem-cutting equipment to meet current expenses. Meanwhile, he hopes to build up a business as a tax accountant and tax consultant.

After his graduation from Temple in 1934, Roberts did general real estate work in Philadelphia. He had leg then. Later, he ran a fixit store in Philadelphia.

"We fixed anything—old beds, cracked lamps and broken promises," he said with a grin.

In 1940, he came to Washington and went to work with the Federal Security Agency. The summer of 1946 found him running a small carnival. Still later, he opened a shop in Alexandria, reconditioning antiques.

Arthritis crippled Roberts badly late in 1946 and he entered a local hospital for treatment. Roberts says the doctor made a mistake. Whatever it was, he left the hospital paralyzed from the hips down. He entered another hospital in Camden, N. J. There he was told there was no hope.

Roberts says his $14,000 savings and a $6500 settlement he obtained from the local doctor have been eaten up by medical expenses. He's living alone in a room at 2300 18th st. nw.

But he isn't discouraged. He's got plans.

Jews to Mark Yom Kippur at Sunset Tuesday

Yom Kippur, the most sacred day in the Jewish year, will begin at sundown Tuesday, October 12, and conclude at sundown on Wednesday, October 13.

This holy day of atonement is observed by Jews throughout the world on the tenth day of the month of Tishri. It concludes the 10-day period of penitence and prayer which began on Rosh Hashonah, the New Year, October 2.

On this holiest of days Jews abstain completely from food and drink. In synagogues and temples they pray for the forgiveness of their sins and the redemption of their souls.

L. P. Clephane Dies in Paris; Burial Here

Lewis P. Clephane, 79, artist, realty dealer and World War I naval officer who helped to found the American Legion, died in Paris, France, last Sunday his brother here disclosed yesterday.

Comdr. Clephane

A native of Washington who had lived in Coral Gables, Fla., since 1935, Mr. Clephane was the first senior vice command of the Legion's Augustus G Warner Post here in 1919. His only brother, Walter Clephane, 6000 Connecticut ave. nw., is a partner in the law firm of Clephane, Latimer & Hall.

Mr. Clephane's body is due in New York aboard the Queen Mary Thursday. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery. His widow, the former Rosebud Almand of Atlanta, Ga., lives in Coral Gables.

After his graduation from Cornell in 1890, Mr. Clephane entered the real estate business here, then studied art and landscaping in France, Italy and Holland. As a lieutenant commander in 1917-19, he directed naval activities in upper Chesapeake Bay, was supervisor of the Naval Overseas Transportation Service and was senior member of the Joint Army and Navy Board of Inspection of the Baltimore District.

He wrote two books, "Official History of the Naval Overseas Transportation Service" and "Official Naval History of the Submarine Chaser." An organizer of the United States Power Squadron, a group of small boat owners, he was a member of the Army-Navy Club, Chevy Chase Club, Capital Yacht Club, Society of Colonial Wars, Society of Descendants of Colonial Governors, Sons of the Revolution, Military Order of Foreign Wars, Military Order of World Wars, and Military Service Legion.

Firemen Recover Body of Missing Alexandria Man

The body of James C. Snoots, 46, Alexandria paper plant worker, was recovered from the Potomac River yesterday by the Alexandria Fire Department.

Snoots, who lived with his wife at 322 S. Washington st., had been the object of a search since he failed to return from a fishing trip last Sunday. His boat was found near the Alexandria wharves.

The body was discovered in Oxon Run, near the Maryland shore. Police waited for a coroner's examination to determine whether there were signs of violence. Snoot's brother, Corpl. Wesley Snoots, is a member of the Alexandria police force.

BPW to Participate

Business Women Stress Vote In Observing National Week

Across the country the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs will observe the twenty-first "Business Women's Week" from October 10 to 16. Here in Washington the D. C. group will stage a doubleheader observance emphasizing national's current theme "Use Your Vote in '48."

First on docket is a program meeting Monday, October 11, 8 p. m. at the YWCA featuring as speakers, Mrs. India Edwards, head of the Women's Division, Democratic National Committee, and Mrs. Leona Rush, member of the Maryland House of Delegates, who will represent the Women's Division of the Republican National Committee. Next will be a gala fashion show, Tuesday, October 12, at the Mayflower Hotel, 7:45 p. m.

Newest styles of Ceil Chapman and other well-known designers will be given under the auspices of Julius Garfinckel & Co. Entertainment, in addition to the fashion show, will include songs by Fague Dorsingman, well-known baritone, who recently won an audition given by Horace Heidt.

Miss Webster in Charge

Miss Marjorie F. Webster, chairman of the District group Public Affairs Committee, is also chairman of the fashion show. Assisting her are Miss Gertrude V. D. Prisley and Miss Helen Pohala.

Open to the public, the fashion show reservations may be obtained through Miss Quilter, 2306 Ashmead pl. or Mrs. Grandis L. King, 402 Four Mile rd., Alexandria, Va.

President Truman expressed approval of the National Federation's choice of slogans "Use Your Vote in '48" in a letter to Dr. K. Frances Scott national president of BPW. The Chief Executive stated in his letter, "the slogan chosen by the organization for its annual celebration of National Business Women's Week has my hearty indorsement. Our country will continue as a bulwark of democracy only through forthright majority rule and such rule is a reality only when every citizen votes. That you, as business and professional women, are devoting time and energy to urge a total vote in November reaffirms your patriotism and is in keeping with your history of public service. I congratulate you on your choice of slogan and hope that every citizen of the United States will join you in putting it into practice this year."

At the business meeting Monday preceding the talks by Mrs. Edwards and Mrs. Rush at 9 p. m., the local BPW will inaugurate three new workshops—health, parliamentary law and public speaking.

Benefit Tea At Walnut Hill Will Aid Camp

The Women's Auxiliary of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club will stage a benefit tea Sunday, 4 to 7 p. m., at the home of the organization's president, Mrs. Joseph L. Arnold, Walnut Hill at Falls Church. Proceeds will be used to purchase needed equipment for the Boys Club's camp at Scotland, Md.

Mrs. Evan School, chairman of the tea, will be assisted by Mrs. Samuel Young and Mrs. Leo DeOrsey. A program will be given under the direction of Mrs. A. J. Kaplowitz, entertainment chairman.

Presiding at the tea table will be Mrs. George Davis and Mrs. Henry Hornthal.

The group's activities on behalf of the summer camp already have provided many accessories, including an electric washing machine, deep freeze, potato peeler, meat grinder, meat slicer, 167 metal cots with blankets and mattresses, motion picture projector, public address system, four ranges and ovens, 500 sheets and pillowcases, 75 aluminum pitchers, books and games, pool tables and uniforms for drum and bugle corps.

Zeni

Western College Plans Drive For $3,000,000

Washington alumnae of Western College for Women, Oxford, Ohio, will hold a dinner Tuesday at 7 p. m. at the Ivy Terrace, 1634 Connecticut ave. nw., to launch a national three million dollar campaign for the college centennial fund.

MRS. RAMSEY

The dinner will be one of a group of coast-to-coast kick-off dinners held by Western alumnae, according to Miss Ruth V. Hunter, chairman of the event here. All of the dinners across the Nation are synchronized so that college alumnae will begin the drive at the same time, she said.

Speakers at the dinner at Ivy Terrace will include Mrs. Bruce Ramsey, executive secretary of the Alumnae Association, Mrs. Mabel Hughes McKee, former president of the association; Mrs. Stanley Cook, and Miss Jewel Drikamer.

Founded in 1853, Western College was the first independent college for women west of the Alleghanies. It has graduated a class every year since 1855. Funds from the three million dollar drive will be used for general endowment, increased faculty salaries, retirement of debt, and remodeling several buildings on the Oxford campus.

Visitor From Atlanta

Wedding Tomorrow in Tennessee

Rep. Harless to Marry Miss Meredith Howard

By Marie McNair

MEREDITH HOWARD, blonde and beautiful president of the United Nations Club, will be a bride tomorrow!

Down in Nashville, Tenn., she and Representative Richard Fielding Harless of Arizona will be married in a simple church ceremony, with Representative Estes Kefauver and Mrs. Kefauver as their only attendants. Meredith's father, Samuel James Howard, is flying from the West to give his daughter in marriage, and after the ceremony Representative Harless and his bride will spend their honeymoon in Cuba and the West Indies.

Representative Harless, who has served in Congress six years, has withdrawn his name for reelection for the Eighty-first Congress and will take up his law practice in Phoenix. Born in Texas, Mr. Harless was graduated from the University of Arizona and the university law college. He is a widower with two sons, Fred, aged 10, and Glenn, 11.

For the ceremony at 4 o'clock, Meredith will wear a cocoa brown lace gown made with V-neck, long pointed sleeves and ankle-length skirt. Her brown hat has brown flowers on it and a bit of the same lace. She'll wear a mink stole about her shoulders.

Miss Howard was at one time on the stage with her twin sister, Virginia, now Mrs. Theodore Hayes, of Mexico City, and another sister, Mary, who is Mrs. Alfred de Liagre, of New York. In Washington she had a radio program until she organized the United Nations Club in 1941.

Mr. Harless and his bride will return to Washington about the middle of November and will be at her Georgetown house at 1410 34th st. until they leave for Phoenix.

WHEN Loy Henderson, our new Ambassador to India, leaves on October 14 for New Delhi, he hopes to take with him a working knowledge of Hindustani.

Since an illness which kept him several weeks in the hospital, Mr. Henderson has been told to forgo all the usual farewell parties and concentrate on regaining his health. He's used this time to advantage, studying the language of the people with whom he will deal.

There's nothing simple about Hindustani, Mrs. Henderson has learned, as she watches her husband going around with his hand to his mouth, practising his "p's" and "b's" in such manner that he exhales not at all.

IN RURAL Maryland there's a little corner that to Mr. and Mrs. John Redgrave will be forever England. Brightelstone Farm, it's called, named for Brighton, England, where the Redgraves lived during the early years of their marriage and which Mrs. Redgrave's family still call home.

During their four years in the United States Mr. and Mrs. John Redgrave thought a good deal about home. When they returned a year ago in August they discovered that America was home to them now.

In July they bought the farm, moved in with their two sons in September and are watching the United States Soil Conservation Service at work, which means surveying the acreage to use the latest contour ploughing and strip cropping methods of soil conservation. Eventually there'll be a farm pond stocked with fish and a registered dairy herd of Brightelstone breed.

Mr. Redgrave, a former lieutenant in the Royal Navy Volunteer Reserve, first came to Washington as radio radar procurement officer in the British Admiralty Delegation. Mrs. Redgrave joined him a year later, went to work as director of training in the Royal Air Force Delegation and the two worked at their jobs until the war's end.

TOWN TOPICS: One of the late Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes' stories is one he told on himself.

Distinguished by full beard and whiskers, the Chief Justice could never be mistaken for anyone else—unless it was movie actor Monty Woolley.

Pressing the elevator button in a hotel lobby one day, Mr. Hughes was prepared to step in the lift when a lady bustled out. Her eyes popped as she gave him a sweeping glance from the tip of his well shined shoes to the gray beard and curling mustache.

"Oh," she remarked with some surprise, "I thought you were dead."

On Long Island "they're talking about" what's happened to Pete and Laura Bostwick, reputedly one of the happiest of married couples since their wedding day 15 years ago. Mrs. Bostwick is the former Laura Curtis, daughter of Mrs. John M. Gross, who turned her home in washington into the 1925 F Street Club.

Laura Bostwick grew up in Washington, met her husband at an Aiken drag when she was a student at Fermata. Pete—who's actually named George—became one of America's outstanding polo players and gentlemen jockeys. The Long Island polo set remembers well Laura Curtis and Pete Bostwick's wedding, which ended with the bridal couple leaving Trinity Church in Rosslyn in a coach and four driven by its owner, Mr. Bostwick's uncle, E. Ambrose Clark.

But the honeymoon's over now for the Meadowbrook polo star who, according to the story, is anxious for a divorce.

Ruth Leach To Be Speaker For Fraternity

Ruth M. Leach of New York, vice president of the International Business Machines Corp., and one of the country's outstanding business woman, will be the speaker at the Seventy-Eighth Founders' Day of Kappa Kappa Gamma. Miss Leach, a member of the fraternity, will be heard at the banquet in the National Press Club Auditorium, Wednesday evening, October 13.

More than 600 invitations to members in the Washington area have been issued. Members of the active chapters at George Washington University and the University of Maryland will provide entertainment.

Miss Frances Wolfe is president of the alumnae group; Miss Eunice Von Ende, recording secretary; Mrs. Truman Felt, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Walter Harban, treasurer. Mrs. Norman Gregg, vice president, is in charge of arrangements. Reservations may be made through Mrs. Byron Roudabush, 1516 Underwood st. nw., GE. 0374.

Miss Leach received her BA in 1937 from the University of California and honorary degree of doctor of laws from Hartwick College in 1947. Miss Leach is a member of the Business and Professional Women's Club of New York City, the Academy of Political Science, Junior Achievement, the Association of University Women, China House, the board of Camp Fire Girls, Inc., and the New York Women's Council, the last being an appointment made by Governor Dewey.

Edw. B. McLean, Mrs. Vanderbilt To Be Married

Announcement has been made of the engagement and approaching marriage of Mrs. Manuela Hudson Vanderbilt and Edward Beale McLean. The wedding will take place this month.

Mrs. Vanderbilt is the former wife of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, and she is the daughter of William George Hudson of Monterey, Calif., and the late Mrs. Hudson. Her divorce from Mr. Vanderbilt was in 1942.

Mr. McLean's family has long been prominent in Washington. He is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. McLean. His father was publisher of the Cincinnati Enquirer and The Washington Post. Mrs. McLean was the owner of the Hope diamond and she was Washington's No. 1 hostess.

Mr. McLean's first marriage to Miss Ann Carroll Meem terminated in divorce in 1943. His second marriage to Miss Gloria Hatrick of Larchmont, N. Y., ended in divorce in September, 1948. Mr. McLean has been living on the West Coast for the past several years.

D.C. Federation To Have Show And Luncheon

Plans are being made by the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs for a benefit fashion show and luncheon on Wednesday, November 3, at the Hamilton Hotel. Proceeds will be for the organization's social welfare fund.

Theme of the show will be the adoption of today's fashions from early American styles and those of foreign countries. Miss Pearl Atkinson will be commentator and director, assisted by Matt Ogens.

General chairman of the benefit is Mrs. Benjamin L. Schoenfeld. Assisting her are Mrs. Frederic N. Newburgh, patronesses; Mrs. William O. Gale, reservations; Mrs. Marie Deal and Mrs. T. David Gates, music, and Mrs. Ernest H. Daniel, decorations.

First fall meeting of the Federation of Women's Clubs will be held on Monday, October 25, at 11 a. m. in the Gold Room of the Hamilton Hotel. The program will be sponsored by the departments of press and publicity and club extension.

Miss Mary Knight Becomes Bride of Wm. G. Gardner

The marriage of Miss Mary Suzanne Knight, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willson Helm Knight of Leonardtown, Md., and William Greenwell Gardner, of Leonardtown, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Francis Gardner, took place yesterday at 1 p. m.

The ceremony was held in the rectory of St. Aloysius Church, Leonardtown, with the Rev. Charles H. Rohleder officiating and a reception followed at Rosebank, Bretton Bay, home of the bride's parents.

The bride wore a beige gown with brown accessories. She was attended by Mrs. Robert Lee Miles of Leonardtown, and Mr. Miles served as best man. After a wedding trip South Mr. and Mrs. Gardner will reside in Leonardtown.

The bride formerly lived in Washington. She is a graduate of the Maryland Institute of Art and St. Mary's Academy. Mr. Gardner is an alumnus of Charlotte Hall Military Academy.

Prior to the regular board session, State federation presidents and national chairmen will meet at dinner in separate groups on Thursday evening, October 14

Advice From an Expert

Your Way of Life Should Rule Way Your House Is Decorated

By Lucia Brown

"How do you live?" is the most important question in decorating a house, William Pahlmann, well-known New York interior decorator, told members of the Inner Wheel at a luncheon meeting yesterday

Gone are the days when interior decorators planned your house for you, then let you fit in the best way you could. Today's trend in decorating, Mr. Pahlmann said, is to study the individual—personality, likes, dislikes, hobbies, and way of life—then help him furnish his house in the way that suits him best.

Colored slides of rooms in the homes of Helena Rubinstein, Mainbocher, Billy Rose, and other New York notables accompanied Mr. Pahlmann's talk at the Shoreham Hotel. A number of the beautiful interiors, which ranged from those in a California ski lodge to a St. Louis mansion, were decorated by Mr. Pahlmann.

Some points brought out in the New York decorator's talk are:

Coral or orange-red is a color coming into prominence. You'll see this new decorative note more and more in the next few months.

The new trend in lighting is to do away with lamps as much as possible and use concealed lighting. Pinpoint illumination can be cast on any spot in the room. It's expensive to install and should not be put in unless you plan to live in the same place for some time.

Good-looking "hardware" on simple modern furniture is a new note. Mr. Pahlmann showed pictures of a modern chest with brass pulls in the form of a clenched first, and another with unusual shell-shaped pulls.

The merging of the old with the new is one of the most interesting aspects of decorating today. Century-old chairs were beautifully used in a very modern room in one interior shown.

French Provincial is coming back as a style note. More reproductions of this charming furniture are being used.

People living in apartments or other cramped living quarters aren't buying large paintings now. Instead, an assortment of small drawings and paintings are arranged together on the same wall surface.

Mrs. Wilfred B Putnam presided at the Inner Wheel meeting at which Mr. Pahlmann addressed members of the feminine counterpart of the Rotary Club.

Littells Entertain For Dr. Holtrop

MR. AND MRS. NORMAN LITTELL entertained at dinner recently at their home in nearby Virginia in honor of Dr. M. W. Holtrop, president of the National Bank of the Netherlands and alternate governor of the International Bank.

The Swiss Minister and Mme. Bruggmann and the Austrian Minister and Mme. Kleinwaechter were among the guests and others were Mr. and Mrs. Hawthorne Arey, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Bell.

Thos. Coman Weds Miss Helen G. Libby

Miss Helen Grace Libby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mellen Libby of Washington, was married on September 24 to Thomas F. Coman, 3d, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Coman, jr., of Silver Spring, Md. The ceremony took place at the Church of the Nativity.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a dove grey suit with a pink hat. She carried a pink orchid with her prayer book. Miss Mary Jane Sullivan was matron of honor and Edward Clarle was best man. The ushers included Ted Little and Frank Frene. On return from their honeymoon in Jacksonville, Fla., the newlyweds will be at home in this city.

About Removing Spots on Furniture

Could you tell me how to remove a white spot caused by a damp cloth being left on the furniture for some hours? I recall a threefold treatment, but have forgotten the order. I believe it was kerosene, alcohol and linseed oil. If these are the proper ingredients, what kind of alcohol is meant?
Reader

I am not familiar with the treatment you have in mind, but one of the following should remove the spots: (1) Wiping with turpentine or camphorated oil will often remove light spots. Apply with a soft cloth and rub in the direction of the grain. (2) More stubborn spots can be polished with finely powdered rottenstone or pumice and a light oil. Use light pressure and rub with the ball of the thumb or a soft piece of felt. When the white spot is removed, polish the entire piece.

Being a mere man I do not know just how to address your department, but I would appreciate your advising me where I could buy berets and fezes such as men wear on their bald heads indoors to keep their pates warm when their circulation slows up. P. J. C.

The men's hat department of several of the large Washington department stores sell wool berets which would be suitable for the use you have in mind. Also, some of these same departments sell cotton flannel sleeping hoods which would be suitable for night use. Since you write from an out-of-town address, I would suggest you write to the personal shopper at one of the Washington department stores asking her to do your shopping for you. When you write, be sure to send your head size.

I'm planning to refinish my mother's rocker for which I am now making a needlepoint cover. The frame is done in a bright mahogany finish. I am positive the wood is not mahogany. What is the best method of removing the present finish and accomplishing a durable dull mahogany? E. B. B.

Start by removing all of the present finish by using a good commercial varnish remover. Follow the directions for application which come with the remover you buy. When all the finish is off, go over the raw wood with a cloth dampened with benzine to take away every trace of the remover. Since you are sure the wood is not mahogany, the color which the rocker now is, will be removed with the finish.

Once the finish is removed there are several methods which you could use to finish the piece. You could apply a mahogany oil stain directly to the raw wood and when it has had time to dry, apply several well rubbed coats of wax over the stained wood to give it protection and luster. Or, for a finish which would be more resistent to wear you could apply two coats of shellac over the stain, rubbing down the last coat with pumice and oil to take away the shine. To do this, place linseed oil in a shallow dish and the powdered pumice in another similar dish. Now, touch a soft cloth to the oil, then to the pumice and rub. To clean the surface when you have achieved the finish you wish, wipe with a clean cloth which has been moistened with the oil.

Another method of refinishing it would be to apply two coats of mahogany varnish stain directly to the raw wood. When the last coat is thoroughly dry, rub it down with the powdered pumice and oil as suggested above. Or, instead of using the pumice and oil (and accompanying elbow grease) there is a finishing product on the market which dries with either a semi-gloss or no gloss at all, thus eliminating the shine from the varnish stain. This product is applied as you do the varnish stain and is available at well stocked paint stores.

I am married to a divorced man, whose first wife is living. They have lost their married son. Where should I be placed and whom should I walk with in the funeral? T. K. E.

Your husband would walk with you in the funeral processional, unless it is necessary for him to escort his son's wife in the absence of other close male relatives (her father or brother, for instance). Usually each woman leans on the arm of a man in a funeral processional, although two women and two men may walk together, according to the make-up of the family. The bereaved wife would be first in the group, of course, accompanied by a male relative. The children, if any, would follow. The mother of the deceased might then follow, accompanied by a close relative. The father and you, his second wife, could come next unless this would prove embarrassing. A good deal depends on friendly relationships existing between different members of the family group. If preferred, you and your husband could remain a bit further back in the processional. If your husband must accompany his daughter-in-law, you would enter with another relative as part of the family group.

I have an expensive black suede purse that was bought several years ago. I have never been able to carry the purse because the black suede rubs off so dreadfully. Can you tell me where I might have the leather treated so as to make it usable?

Even the most expensive black suede bags sometimes have a tendency to rub off. As far as I know, there is no treatment that is guaranteed to cure this disastrous fault. However, there is at least one local firm that treats such bags and says the method is successful in 8 out of 10 cases in stopping the rubbing off. It can be reached by telephoning EXecutive 0961.

One of your readers requested a recipe for sweet Concord grape wine of the Jewish sacramental type. I have found the following recipe very delicious and it has been handed down from the parents of one of my friends.

Stem and wash one large basket of Concord grapes. Put into a narrow-necked heavy crockery jug. Add 4 pounds sugar. Cork jar and leave for two or three days, then remove cork and cover neck with cheesecloth. Let stand for three to four weeks. Strain through cheesecloth and pour into bottles. I. M.

To J. A., who asked about sacramental wine: If you will go to almost any good liquor store, you can secure a fifth, half gallon, or gallon of fine sacramental Concord grape wine a lot cheaper than you can make it. It's sure not too sour, too. A Reader.

Week's Store Sales Up Here, Off in Region

By S. Oliver Goodman

Stimulated by special promotion, sales of Washington department stores in the week ended October 2 moved higher counter to a lower trend regionally.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported last night that store sales here advanced 8 per cent during the latest week over the similar period last year. Other cities in the Fifth Federal Reserve District showed a 2 per cent sales drop for the week, while volume in Baltimore stores slipped 6 per cent.

Based on 1935-39 as 100, the Washington store index stood at 336 on October 2 compared with 311 on the same date last year.

For the four weeks ended October 2, the bank reported that District of Columbia store sales were 2 per cent higher than in the corresponding period last year. Regionally, dollar volume was up 3 per cent.

Dun & Bradstreet, in its weekly retail review, commented that coming of fall weather spurred interest in promotions of fall and winter merchandise.

Colborn of Washington bureau of McGraw-Hill Publishing Co., has been appointed assistant managing editor of Business Week . . . Jack R. Cedarblake of Alexandria, Va., has become a research analyst in the industrial relations department of the American Trucking Association, Inc., in Washington . . . Thomas F. Buckley has been elected a vice president and director of Rogers Peet Co.

SALES HOLD FIRM: Peoples Drug Stores, Inc., reported September sales of $3,829,569, a gain of 2.9 per cent over the same 1947 month. Volume for the first nine months this year aggregated $33,543,177, an increase of 0.9 per cent over the corresponding period last year. Treasurer W. H. Churchill noted that the chain operated 139 stores in September, against 136 in the same 1947 month.

AIB ENROLLMENTS: To date, 220 have enrolled in five courses of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, according to Stephen O. Porter, chairman of the local educational committee. At least 50 more are expected for the secretarial and public speaking classes, he said. The enrollments are somewhat less than last year's total, which was the largest in several years. There are 101 signed for banking fundamentals, 24 for bank administration, 51 for negotiable instruments, 27 for business administration and 17 for accounting.

ONWARD AND UPWARD: The Lincoln Service Corp., industrial banking firm whose headquarters are in Washington, showed net income of $327,744 in the first nine months this year, equal to $9.05 a common share. This compared with $277,782 or $7.38 a share in the same 1947 period. President Charles Delmar added that earned surplus has risen 54 per cent since January 1 and now totals $743,668. Assets as of September 30, 1948, reached a new high of $5,294,307.

RATES MAY RISE: Borrowing may become still more expensive. The Federal Reserve Board is reported urging the Treasury to raise its short-term interest rates again. They have gone up from 1⅛ to 1¼ per cent, and the pressure is on to bring them up to 1½ per cent. When they go up, interest rates on commercial bank loans go up, too. This last week business loans of Federal Reserve member banks in New York increased 58 million dollars to a new record high of $5,585,000,000.

INSURANCE: Americans have been buying about a billion dollars of life insurance each month this year to bring the total in force to at least 200 billion dollars. That is just twice what it was in 1929, according to Wendell F. Hanselman, vice president of the Union Central Life Insurance Co. He addressed the recent annual meeting of the American Life Convention in Chicago.

FARE GOULASH: Airline fares are so mixed up these days that even plane executives have to count on their fingers to figure how their rates compare with competitors. Some fares have gone up and then come down. Others have come down and then gone up. Some have stood still but are now complicated with deductions for round trips, family groups, convention-bound firemen, etc. Some of the airlines are even offering "day coach" fares—lower rates on their slower planes with less frills and service (the pretty hostess won't pat your cheek when you turn green during rocking weather).

AUTO OUTPUT: Passenger-car output of manufacturers for the first nine months as compiled by Automotive News compares with output in the like period last year:

Judge Orders Patterson Security Sale

Judge Edward A. Tamm of District Court yesterday authorized the sale of $1,200,000 in securities from the estate of the late Eleanor M. Patterson, owner of the Washington Times Herald.

According to the court order, the sale is necessary to provide funds for the payment of taxes and other valid claims against the estate. The sale should be made with as little delay as necessary because of the reasonable uncertainty as to whether the present market values of the securities will be maintained, according to the petition of the collector, the Riggs National Bank.

3 Found Dead In Air Wreck

Pulaski, Va., Oct. 8 (AP).—Ground search parties today recovered the bodies of three Coeburn (Va.) residents from the wreckage of their plane, missing since September 29, on Max Mountain, 11 miles southeast of here.

The bodies were brought to Pulaski Hospital shortly before noon.

Identification of the dead as N. M. Keith, pilot, and Mrs. Delia Payne and her daughter, Aleta, was made by papers found on the bodies and in the wreckage, State police said.

A widespread search for the trio had been under way since September 29 when the plane vanished on flight from Coeburn to Washington. The search had extended into West Virginia and had centered from Woodrum Field, Roanoke, until late yesterday when C. F. Montgomery, a Roanoke student pilot, sighted the wreckage.

Members of a mine rescue team from Coeburn, who hurried to Max Mountain after Montgomery reported sighting the wreckage and remained overnight, reached the crash scene about 7:15 a. m. today. State Trooper Steve Shelton, circling over the wreckage in a State police plane, guided ground parties to the scene.

The bodies of Keith and the two women were found pinned beneath part of the fuselage. Wreckage of the wings of the plane, a Cub super cruiser, was scattered over an area of 100 yards. The damaged wings indicated the plane plowed through the treetops into the mountainside. The plane did not burn.

Writ Attaches Sale Proceeds

A Municipal Court order attaching proceeds from an auction of furnishings at the Spotlight Club, closed after-hours establishment at 17th and M sts. nw., has been issued, it was learned yesterday.

The order, which is returnable today, was served on Adam Weschler, auctioneer, on behalf of the Randall Motor Co., which owns the premises formerly leased by the club. The motor firm entered the already tangled situation to get payment for an unpaid heating bill allegedly owed by Vincent Grillo, club head.

Weschler obtained $1100 at the auction toward a $550 personal property tax claim against Grillo and an $887 tax assessment for failure to pay corporation franchise taxes for 1946 and 1947. After expenses and the auctioneer's commission were deducted, a net of $788 remained.

However, before the District government could obtain the amount, the Municipal Court order intervened, according to Collector of Taxes Guy W. Pearson. Pearson said he has turned the matter over to the corporation counsel's office for further action.

Rape Charges To Grand Jury

A hearing on rape charges against a Bolling Field pilot was waived yesterday in Marlboro Police Court after State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie said he would present the evidence directly to the grand jury which is now in session.

The pilot, Lieut. William Alger Dawes, jr., 28, of 1235 Alabama ave. se., was accused by a Washington nurse of raping her at pistol point in his parked automobile near Camp Springs, Md., September 3. He was released in bond.

Police quoted the flier as saying he had merely laid the weapon on the dashboard as a precaution against a possible marauder. He told them, they said, he had read of the recent double murder of a Glen Burnie, Md., couple.

Budapest Group Opens Its Season

By Paul Hume

The Budapest Quartet, assisted by two noted guest artists, opened another season at the Library of Congress last night.

Both Coolidge Auditorium and Whittall Pavilion were crowded as Washington's loyal chamber music fans demonstrated their staunch affection for one of the subtlest of musical arts. Carlton Cooley, violist, and Benar Heifetz, cellist, were the guests whose presence made possible a program including music for five and six instruments.

Mozart's magical C Major quintet, dating from 1787, year of Don Giovanni and the historic visits to Prague, opened the program and season in peerless fashion. Only Mozart ever surpassed his own work in this score. The playing of the ensemble was sharpened to a fine point, their intonation and precision reaching past Budapest standards.

It is always interesting to hear Arnold Schonberg's Transfigured Night in its original form. Most live and recorded performances of this passionate work are in the later expanded version for string orchestra, which gives greater impact to dramatic turns of the music. But the advantages of clearer sonorities, possible with six instruments instead of from forty to sixty, show us again the way in which Schonberg has transferred Wagnerian vocal lines to an instrumental medium.

Budapest tone, combined with Cooley and Heifetz, makes such music as Transfigured Night sumptuous. There were moments of less than perfect pitch, principally when the violins were playing in higher reaches. Nevertheless, we hope this ensemble will record this work as soon as Petrillo permits recording.

The evening closed with Brahms' early sextet in B flat. In this kind of romanticism the Budapest players and their colleagues were as at home as with Mozart. The sextet, first of two in this form by Brahms, has a charm that does not last quite as long as the music.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gol

Germans Learn About Our Ham and Beer

For the past few days, Washington Post people have been chatting with two visiting German newspaper editors, who are over here to find out how we Americans do things. Meantime I'm learning from them.

The editors are Walter Gong of Bremen and Joseph Eberle of Stuttgart.

They're very much impressed by New York and Washington. Especially by our fat American newspapers. Over there, the best they can hope for is to publish a four-page paper—every other day.

EBERLE

And of the four pages, three must be reserved for revenue-producing ads. Eight columns are available for news.

When they heard that Photographer Bill Klemm was assigned to "shoot" the Frederick (Md.) fair, the editors went along to see what the rural portion of the United States looks like. During the drive to Frederick, the party stopped at a roadside inn for a sandwich and a glass of beer. "What kind do you have?" Klemm asked the bartender.

GONG

"How about Old German beer?" came back the barkeep.

"Yes," murmured Walter, "the Germans want beer, too. But, Klemm—how did he know we are Germans?"

At the fair, the editors were thrilled by the many evidences of this Nation's manifold agricultural resources. They were especially smitten with a 720-pound grand champion sow, and had their picture taken with her.

"This," mused Joe, as he lovingly patted the sow's back, "is enough pork to satisfy Stuttgart's ration for a week."

OCCUPATIONAL HAZARD

Mind you, I'm not complaining about my job. I think it's the best job in the world. But it does have certain drawbacks.

I was geting my teeth cleaned yesterday. The hygienist pried earnestly at my choppers for a few minutes and then, apropos of nothing, murmured:

"So you spell my name with an 'Sch' instead of an 'Sh', eh?"

The question was punctuated by a specially determined stroke which, at the moment, raised fears that my head would go along with it. Through a mouth filled with mirrors, instruments and fingers, I replied, "Umphugnobblefumph."

That set the hygienist back on her heels for a moment. Obviously, she hadn't been expecting such a snappy comeback. She worked in silence for a while, and then mused:

"Oh, well. I forgive you. You used the item, and helped our organization so (hold still now, I know it's a little tender there) so I don't mind your misspelling my name. If you'd come in twice a year instead of once, this job would be easier on both of us."

"Oh," I assured her eagerly, "I glub frub now on. Posifumphly."

"Good," she said with a final stroke that demolished my nervous system completely. "See that you do."

Now that I'm safely back at the office, I'm being very brave about the whole thing. I tell myself that it wasn't really painful—just a bit annoying for a time. And that "Sch" business was just my imagination. The hygienist was as careful as she's always been.

That's what I keep telling myself. But I'm not very convincing today.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Three chubby gray tiger kittens, 6 weeks old." (Oxford 0695.)

"Three of the cutest kittens you ever saw." (Falls Church 0071.)

"Affectionate, well-trained, unusually marked 5-month-old female kitten." (Oliver 7812.)

"Frisky, 4-month-old female puppy, mixed breed; very affectionate." (Elmwood 879, McLean, Va.)

"Four kittens, 6 weeks old." (Falls Church 1021 evenings and weekends.)

MISCELLANY

Marie Barnes of 3500 Ely pl. se. has written a poem in praise of the Redskin ticket-taker who let her in to see the game even though she'd lost her tickets. Marie dropped the precious ducats, somebody immediately pounced on them, and disappeared . . . Kendall School, Columbia Institution for the Deaf, still needs several hundred dollars in contributions to put across its plan to use television for the education of deaf children. William J. McClure is the principal, and you can address him in care of the school, 7th st. and Florida ave. ne. . . . Shirley Kaplan of 4604 30th st., Mount Rainier, Md., reports that "the hardest thing to buy in Washington is an old-fashioned treadle Singer sewing machine." . . . The Potomac Co-Op Federation will hold a whingding in the Silver Spring Armory Sunday (3 to 10 p. m., $1.50, and that pays for a buffet supper, square dancing, and all the rest.) Reservations at Republic 1078. . . . Christ Child Farm for convalescent and underprivileged children will benefit from the luncheon and fashion show to be held at the Shoreham at 1 p. m. Wednesday. Mrs. Donald Buckingham (Wisconsin 8888) can give you the details . . . Charlotte M. Mahoney of 1141 Oates st. ne. tells me that the Alumnae Association of Dumbarton College of Holy Cross will also hold a fashion show, but one week later (8 p. m., October 20) in the college auditorium, 2935 Upton st. nw. Tickets are $1.20 and the dough goes to the scholarship fund . . . Frances Watts of 6024 8th st. nw. says that most of our comic strip pickers are off base; "Napoleon is in a class by himself." You don't budge me, Frances. I'm still a Barnaby man . . . Andre Shaw of 53 Forrester st. sw. says Ginny LaMaster can stop worrying about the name of the tune played in the movie "Rope" if she'll get hold of Oscar Levant's recording (Columbia Album M360) of Poulenc's Mouvement Perpetuel No. 1. Personally, I've never heard it. But it's an even money bet that, some place in the rendition, Oscar whistles the melody through his teeth.

DONKEY GOES REPUBLICAN; DEMS BRAY FOR VICTORY

A young lady was passing out Republican campaign literature in Post Square Thursday. Beside her, on the grass, grazed a small donkey, decked out in G. O. P. banners. A puzzled passer-by asked:

"How come you're using a donkey? Isn't the elephant your symbol?"

"Oh, yes," smiled the Republican lady, "but the elephant is already a Republican. Now we've even converted the donkey."

"Humph," sniffed the passer-by as he shuffled off, "that just shows what a jackass he is."

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—King Peter of Yugoslavia is returning here in November and will make a lecture tour. His first lecture will be at Town Hall . . . The Duke and Duchess of Windsor, who will return from Europe early next year, probably will bring all their possessions with them. They're moving everything they own in the south of France up to Paris, and then will ship them to New York . . . Eric Johnston got into Russia by writing a letter to Stalin and reminding him that the generalissimo, during their last visit, had invited him to come back when the war was over. Stalin replied by approving the visa.

Gilbert Miller, in discussing Henry Sherek, his British co-producer of the hit play, "Edward, My Son," says that during his visit to New York, Sherek "measured everything in terms of steaks—like the Indians do with wampum" . . . Harold Linder will succeed Frank Altschul as head of General American Investors, whose assets are over 20 million dollars . . . Jimmy Stewart, who returned to the Broadway stage in "Harvey," has been reading new plays during his current trip to New York. All the plays submitted to him have a "Harvey" theme—about invisible mice, dogs, birds and about a farmer who paves his acreage.

Merriman Smith, the White House correspondent and author of "The President Is Many Men," was on the President's campaign train when Ambassador Bedell Smith arrived . . . When the newspapermen on the train get a story they place it in a weighted envelope which is tossed out the window to a Western Union messenger on the platform . . . Merriman Smith decided not to trust the Ambassador Smith story to the wires. The train was slowing down at Barnum, Tex., and the reporter leaped from it and raced to the one telephone in the station. He telephoned his story and then, to assure his beat, kept the line busy by reciting from the Bible for 20 minutes.

General Eisenhower visited the Associated American Artists to inspect the painting he donated—one of the group to be auctioned for the benefit of the Urban League. Eisenhower entered a bid of $50 for his painting. "Not that it's worth it," he explained, "but only because I'd like to have it back."

Propaganda experts report of the strange kick-backs in Soviet propaganda throughout the satellite countries and in Russia. "The Grapes of Wrath" was shown in the movie theaters to illustrate the poor living conditions prevalent throughout America. But the moviegoers there were impressed principally with the final scene in which the Okies are forced to leave. "Look," they concluded, "everybody in America has cars" . . . Featured also were the clips taken from the newsreels of the Detroit riots, and the close-ups of men being beaten by police. "Look," said the moviegoers, watching men fall, "look at those fine shoes they're wearing."

Barnaby and Mr. O'Malley by Pharo and Morley

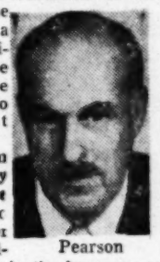
I'll fly down to the paper with this hot story myself! In an hour or so. After I polish it up a bit. With a few quotations from "Bartlett" . . . Or, say! If I can find a "Bullfinch's Mythology"--
Gosh.
Barnaby! Where have you been?
Did you phone the newspaper?
No. Mr. O'Malley, my Fairy Godfather did. He's in here.
Now there's no Pixie in here, is there?
Tell us what really happened--
Mr. O'Malley! He's GONE!

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Big Military Lend Lease Planned

By Drew Pearson

It's being kept very hush-hush behind tightly locked Pentagon portals, but, no matter who is elected, the Department of National Defense is preparing a large-scale military lend-lease program to be presented to Congress next January.



Pearson

The program is vague only regarding the final amount to be asked of Congress. Estimates by those in the know range from 4½ to 6 billion dollars.

Behind all the conversations held by England, France and the Benelux countries on how to stop the Red army has been one large question. How much will the United States contribute.

The men in the Pentagon are now preparing three separate projects to be put up to Congress.

1. A straight lend-lease program under which we would ship overseas arms and equipment for about 25 French, British and Benelux armored ground divisions.

2. Establishment of semipermanent American air and ground force bases in Italy, France, England, western Germany, Belgium and the Netherlands.

3. A Canadian-American plan for a ring of air bases stretching through Norway-Greenland-Alaska in order to block Soviet air attacks across the Arctic.

Also under consideration is the standardization of all armaments used by members of the Western military alliance.

Automatic War Kickoff

The western European nations are also urging Pentagon officials to ask Congress for the right to declare war automatically in case any of the western European countries are attacked by Russia. Thus far Secretary Forrestal and his aides are balking.

One headache plaguing the Pentagon planners is the terrific cost of a new lend-lease program when piled on top of the Marshall Plan. Next year the Marshall Plan will cost about 5 billion. Add another 5 billion for lend-lease military aid, plus another 12 billion for our own military establistment, plus 5 billion for interest on the national debt, plus 4 billion for veterans' benefits and you get the grand total of 31 billion dollars.

This is all before any money is appropriated for the normal functions of Government.

Even Dewey Slips

Tom Dewey is a cool, shrewd campaigner, but even he makes occasional slips. However, few of his trip-ups hit the newspapers, though every time President Truman sticks his foot in his mouth it is sure-fire front-page news.

Arriving on the Colorado border the other day at the little town of Julesburg, Dewey got off on the wrong foot by telling how happy he was to be welcomed again "by the people of Denver."

This fluff hit the newspapers, but only a few local papers noted an incident in Greeley. Dewey was interrupted in the middle of his speech by a plane buzzing over the open-air gathering and blaring forth over a loudspeaker, "Vote for Hamil."

Dewey on Ball

It is no secret that Dewey dislikes Minnesota's bearish Senator Joe Ball, now having a tough fight for reelection against Democratic candidate Hubert Humphrey, Mayor of Minneapolis. But when Vic Johnston, former Stassen man now working for Dewey, reported that Ball was in trouble, Dewey's reaction was to let bygones be bygones.

"You don't owe Joe Ball anything," Johnston remarked.

"That's all right," snapped Dewey "We've got to elect him."

Marshall's Problems

It isn't the main reason for his return to Washington, but one thing Secretary Marshall is reporting to President Truman is his difficulties with the French and British.

He has had a much tougher time than the press dispatches indicate keeping our Western Allies united regarding a firm Russian policy.

French Foreign Minister Schuman has been especially hard to keep in line. With a large bloc of Communist deputies to worry about, he tried to persuade Marshall that the United Nations should order new Big Four diplomatic talks instead of a showdown before the U. N. For a time Schuman was quite insistent, argued that if the U. N. ordered Russia to lift the blockade it would get nowhere. Russia would merely ignore it.

Marshall argued differently. He pointed to the months of patient palaver with the Russians, said it was obvious Moscow intended to do nothing except stall.

For a time, the British also leaned toward French appeasement. But Marshall was adamant. Politely, firmly, he made it clear that the United States was committed to staying in Berlin. If we go out of Berlin, we would soon be out of Germany.

With the United States spending billions on European recovery, it was important to remember that if the Allies pulled out of Germany there could be no recovery. Thus ran Marshall's argument. In the end, the French agreed.

No thanks suffice

If I should say a thousand thanks . . . I know they would not be . . . Sufficient words for all the joy . . . That you have given me . . . They could not start to tell how much . . . Your company has meant . . . And all it has contributed . . . To keep my heart content . . . How happy you have made me with . . . Your understanding smile . . . And how the very thought of you . . . Has made my life worth-while . . . My only moments that are sad . . . Are those when you are gon . . . Because your presence does so much . . . To help me carry on . . . And that is why a thousand thanks . . . However sweet and true . . . Would never be enough to give . . . My gratitude to you.
